FRANCE AGREES TO HOOVER DEBT PLAN

BURKE WINNER BY ONE STROKE OVER VON ELM

Connecticut Youth Gains U. S. Open Golf Crown in Second Play-Off.

71 ON LAST ROUND ERASES FOE'S LEAD

Coast Star One Shot Ahead at Half-Way Mark; Putting Wilts Near End.

(Associated Press Sports Editor).

Inverness Club, Toledo, Ohio, July 6 (A.P.).—The greatest of American golfing marathons, lasting five days and 144 holes, came to an end this evening on the battle-scarred links of Inverness with Billie Burke, the Lithuanian-American boy from Connecticut, crowned as open champion of the United States and occupant of the throne vacated by Bobby Jones.

Just when it looked as though Burke and his fighting rival, George Von Elm, of Los Angeles, intended to battle it out all week, black-haired Billie rallied to win by a single stroke with a final par-equaling round of 71, his best and by far the most spectacular round of the struggle between these two.

Burke finished the second 36-hole play-off today with a score of 77, 71—148. Von Elm wound up with a tally of 76, 73—149.

Terminate Long Deadlock.

They had been tied at the end of the regulation 72 holes of championship play at 292 each, 2 strokes ahead of their nearest rival, Leo Diegel. At the close of the first 36-hole play-off, Sunday, they were again deadlocked at 149 strokes apiece, so that when they finished the last hole today they were only a single stroke apart in their record-shattering duel, Burke with a grand total of 589 strokes for 144 holes and Von Elm with 590.

Twice before, in this epic of American golf history, Von Elm, the blond fighter from the West, had pulled himself back from impending elimination by holing a long putt on the eighteenth green of Inverness for a birdie 3.

There was no such climax, or even an opportunity for it, today, for Burke had seized advantage of Von Elm's woeful putting in the afternoon to come up to the final hole with a two-stroke margin. Billie played so safely, with the title in his grasp, that he took three putts on the last green, but he was satisfied to do so after Von Elm failed to get down from 20 feet for the birdie he wanted so badly.

5,000 Fans See Finish.

The final play-off was close and exacting all the way, especially as Burke fought his way out in front in the afternoon after being a stroke behind in the morning. The price of admission to the grounds was reduced to $1 for the afternoon, and this attracted a crowd of more than 5,000 spectators, most of them, it seemed, entirely new to tournament gallery experience, and consequently more difficult to control. The tense character of the match, as it drew toward the close of the fifth day of battle, increased the excitement among the spectators to such an extent that marshals and police frequently were swept off their feet.

Von Elm appeared more upset than Burke by the behavior of the gallery. He had several times complained in the morning that the clicking of cameras was bothering him around the green. Once, at the thirteenth hole, the noise from a camera shutter so affected him, while he was at the top of his swing in a trap, that he shot the ball clear across the green. Frequently both Von Elm and Burke were obliged to step away from the ball and wait until spectators quieted.

Von Elm's Putting Wastes Chances.

Whatever the grand total of this outcome, the fact was that Von Elm's play on the green suffered astonishingly. His poor putting all afternoon cost him whatever chances he had to overtake his steady rival, who had par subdued right up to the finish hole, as well as Von Elm.

By contrast with the putting of Von Elm, who missed at least a half dozen shots of from 3 to 6 feet, Burke needed only one putt to hole out on seven greens of the final round, due largely to his sensational approach shots dead to the pin.

After they had been all square no less than six times during the day, the first of three deciding "breaks" came on the thirty-second hole, where Burke took the lead and never again lost it. On this 416-yard layout Von Elm found the rough with his tee shot for the first time in the day. It was in such thick grass that he had to play a safety shot to the fairway. Then he approached just short of the green, while Burke was fairly well on in two. Billie picked up a stroke easily and was off on his winning finish.

Burke had to hole a 5-footer to keep his lead on the thirty-third, where his approach hit a newspaperman and stopped just off the edge of the green. Von Elm's last chance for a comeback then virtually faded when he took 3 putts on the thirty-fourth, missing a 2-footer as a climax to one of his unsteadiest exhibitions of the day.

Gamely, George shot his second to the thirty-fifth green 6 feet from the

Frederick Banker Involved With Four Others in Alleged Plot.

A six months' investigation by special agents of the Department of Justice came to an end yesterday when the District grand jury, as its last official act before going out of office, returned an indictment charging Emory L. Coblentz, millionaire Frederick (Md.) banker and politician; G. Bryan Pitts, convicted former head of the F. H. Smith Co.; John H. Edwards, jr., a former vice president of the company; Miss Helen L. Schneider, formerly private secretary to Pitts, and Henry O. Hart, accountant who testified in the Pitts trial, with "aiding in the commission of perjury."

The indictment, one of the lengthiest in years, bore 37 counts and covered exactly 149 pages of specifications and allegations. It was prepared in the office of the Department of Justice and it bore evidence of having been cautiously gone over by the two men who have prosecuted Pitts and his associates—Nugent Dodds, special Assistant Attorney General, and Neil Burkinshaw, a special assistant to Mr. Dodds.

Coblentz's name has frequently been heard in the case, and his connection with the indictment was foreshadowed. Many of the allegedly spurious 145 documents that formed the basis for the indictment bore Coblentz's signature. These documents were authorizations purporting to give to Pitts the right to funds he is alleged to have taken from Smith company subsidiaries.

It is the Government's contention that these papers, which were offered in evidence when Pitts, Edwards and C. Elbert Anadale, another Smith company former officer, were on trial last winter were made up in one batch at Pitts' home in Palm Beach. There was testimony before a United States Commissioner when Hart, who had been arrested several weeks ago, was arraigned, to the effect that these documents were made up and then given an appearance of age by subjecting them to the fumes from a bromic acid sponge.

Pitts, now serving a fourteen-year sentence, was indicted and tried for conspiring to embezzle $5,000,000 of the funds of the F. H. Smith Co. To show to the jury that he was duly authorized to withdraw a portion of this money, documents were introduced bearing authorization to Pitts to use the money.

The authorizations were drawn on the Beverley Building Co. and the Montclair Corporation, both of which were subsidiaries of the Smith company. The indictment alleges that these 145 authorizations were fraudulent and that they were made to "fraudulently obstruct justice."

The first 36 counts charge that Pitts was the principal offender, but that the others aided and abetted him. The last count is in the nature of an omnibus count and all of those indicted are charged with a conspiracy to obstruct justice by the use of false documentary evidence. Under the District code a penalty of not less than two years nor more than ten can be given upon conviction of a charge of perjury.

GLOBE FLIERS ACCLAIMED ON CAPITAL VISIT

Post and Gatty Guests of President at Luncheon.

SIDEWALKS LINED BY CHEERING CROWD

Bad weather, which kept the famous globe-girdling plane, Winnie Mae, on the ground in New York, yesterday failed to dim the enthusiasm of Washington's reception to the famous fliers, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, their wives and their backer, F. C. Hall, millionaire Oklahoma oil man.

The Capital's honored guests had hardly a moment to themselves from 12:05 o'clock, when they descended from a train at the Union Station until the close of a banquet in their honor last night at the Willard Hotel.

Their strenuous day began with a preliminary reception at the Union Station, and included luncheon with the President and Mrs. Hoover, a reception in their honor at the Washington Auditorium, tendered by the National Press Club, a special showing of pictures of themselves on the famous flight, and closed with the dinner last night.

20,000 Have Long Wait in Sun.

The party plans to leave this morning at 7 o'clock, aboard a Ludington transport plane for New York. This, incidentally, will be Mrs. Gatty's second flight in an airplane.

Their sudden change in plans probably lessened the spontaneity of their first public appearance in the Capital. Hundreds who at first had been led to believe that they would reach the city by airplane, and who then learned the party was to arrive by train, began to gather along Pennsylvania avenue as early as 10 o'clock.

These aviation enthusiasts stood for almost two hours in the blazing heat, waiting for the short parade along the famous avenue. When the guests of honor appeared at last perhaps 20,000 were flanking their route to the White House, where President Hoover waited to receive them. What the crowd lacked in numbers, however, it made up in enthusiasm, and as the leading car bearing Pilot Post and Navigator Gatty passed by the throng burst into applause.

Cheered by Passengers.

The train bearing Mr. and Mrs. Post, Mr. and Mrs. Gatty, Mr. Hall, George Mander, Mayor Walker's representative, and Richard Blythe reached Union Station promptly at 12:05 o'clock. Only members of the welcoming committee, headed by Senator Hiram Bingham, president of the National Aeronautic Association; George W. Offutt, president of the Board of Trade, and Bascom Timmons, vice president of the National Press Club, and newspapermen, were allowed under the shed.

The fliers' party was escorted to awaiting cars as their late fellow passengers and several hundred spectators who had gathered in the concourse cheered. There was a delay as the photographers had their innings and then the party started to the White House, in acceptance of President Hoover's invitation that they lunch with him.

The fliers ran the gantlet of another admiring group on the White House lawn and were cheered until Capt. Russell Train, the President's naval aid, and Maj. John M. Eager, acting military aid, who met them at the door, conducted them inside to the President.

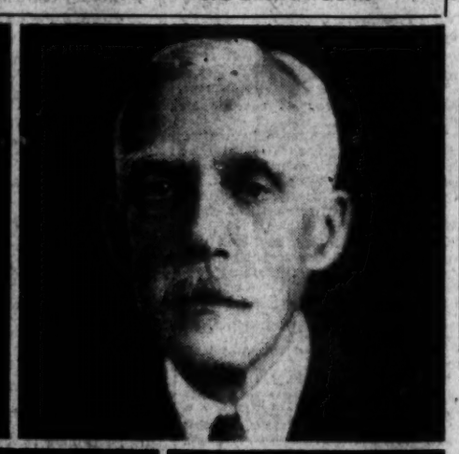

President's Felicitation.

After a short talk with the President, Post and Gatty were escorted to the south grounds for photographs and from there went to the residential section of the Executive Mansion. The wives of the two men were taken directly to the north entrance of the

ROOSEVELT SCORES EXCESS GOVERNING

Blames High Taxes Upon Too Much Local Administration.

University, Va., July 6 (A.P.).—Taxes are excessive, and the reason is too much local government, said Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, in addressing the Institute of Public Affairs tonight.

A New York citizen may live under ten layers of government, the executive said. This "ten-layer citizen" is one who lives in a township outside a village, and his governments, Mr. Roosevelt said, are Federal, State, county, township, school, fire, water, lighting, sewer and sidewalk. Many are merely districts, but all levy and spend tax money, he declared.

The remedy for this is a reduction and simplification of local government and reallocation of functions, Mr. Roosevelt declared.

"In this country it is said we have 500,000 units of government," the governor said. "Take my own State. We have 62 counties and 60 cities. We go on from these larger wheels of the machine to 932 towns, 525 villages, 9,600 school districts, and 2,365 fire, water, lighting, sewer and sidewalk districts, a total of 13,544

Text of Debt Agreement; Hoover Issues Statement

Paris, July 6 (A.P.).—The text of the war debt moratorium accord, approved today by France and the United States, was given out tonight by the French government. It follows:

"After exchanges of views the French government states that it is in agreement with the United States on the essential principle of President Hoover's proposal and on the following propositions which may be expressed thus:

"First—The payment of intergovernmental debts is postponed from July 1, 1931, to June 30, 1932.

"Second—However, the reich will pay the amount of the unconditional annuity.

"The French government agrees insofar as it is concerned, that the payments thus made by the reich shall be placed by the Bank of International Settlements in bonds guaranteed by the German railroads.

"Third—The suspended payments shall be subject to interest in accordance with the conditions suggested by the American Government, payable in ten annual installments beginning July 1, 1933.

"Fourth—The same conditions shall apply to the bonds to be issued by the German railways.

On the three points which it is recognized do not concern the United States Government, the

The President made the following statement yesterday on the reparations accord:

I am glad to announce that the American proposal for one year's postponement of all intergovernmental debts and reparations has now been accepted in principle by all of the important creditor governments. The terms of acceptance by the French government are, of course, subject to the approval of the other interested powers, for whom the American Government naturally can not speak. Without going into technical terms, while certain payments are made by Germany for reparations account, the substance of the President's proposal is retained as the sums so paid are immediately reloaned to Germany.

The technical difficulties arising from many complicated international agreements, which involve the aggregate payment between governments of over $800,000,000 per annum are now in the course of solution by the good will and earnest cooperation of governmental leaders everywhere.

The American part of the plan is, of course, subject to the approval by Congress, but I have received the individual assurances of support from a very large majority of the members of both Senate and House, irrespective of political affiliations.

The acceptance of this proposal has meant sacrifices by the American people and by the former allied governments, who are with all others suffering from world-wide depression and deficits in governmental budgets. The economic load most seriously oppressing the peoples of Germany and central Europe will be immensely lightened.

While the plan is particularly aimed to economic relief, yet economic relief means the swinging of men's minds from fear to confidence, the swinging of nations from the apprehension of disorder and governmental collapse to hope and confidence of the future. It means tangible aid to unemployment and agriculture.

The almost unanimous support in the United States is again profound evidence of the sincere humanity of the American people. And in this year, devoted to economic upbuilding, the world has need of solemn thought on the causes which have contributed to the depression. I need not repeat that one of these causes

Publisher Faces Suit Of $500,000 for Libel

American Bond and Mortgage Official, Chicago, Scores Article in Magazine Linking Him and Curtis With Capital Hotel Deal.

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—A suit asking $500,000 damages from E. Haldeman-Julius, of Girard, Kans., and his publishing companies, alleging libel, was filed today in United States District Court by Harold A. Moore, vice president of the American Bond & Mortgage Co.

In the declaration to the suit, Mr. Moore denied charges allegedly made in an article in Haldeman-Julius' magazine, The American Freeman, on May 9, 1931, that he and the mortgage concern engaged in irregularities in the financing of various real estate projects, including the Mayflower Hotel, in Washington, where Vice President Charles Curtis resides.

The declaration stated that the Vice President's name was linked "in a defamatory manner" with the company's control of the Mayflower Hotel, and denied Mr. Moore or his three sons knew Mr. Curtis, as allegedly stated in the article.

Mr. Haldeman-Julius recently announced he would be a candidate in the next election for the Vice President's old seat in the United States Senate. In an article in The American Freeman, the publisher asked Mr. Curtis what he paid for his suite in the Mayflower Hotel. In an open reply, the Vice President declined to answer the question, because he considered it a personal matter.

Mr. Moore declared in the suit that neither he nor his sons, Charles, Kenneth and Harold, know the Vice President, or have ever had any dealings with him; that they never enriched themselves at the expense of bondholders of the Mayflower Hotel, the Libby Hotel in New York, or the Whitehall Hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., as alleged in the article; or that they had ever sold bonds on property they knew was about to be condemned.

Rich Spaniard Will Wed Grace Moore on July 15

Jellico, Tenn., July 6 (AP.).—R. L. Moore, Jellico banker, announced today that his daughter, Grace Moore, Metropolitan Opera soprano and movie star, would marry Valentine Parara, wealthy Spaniard, at Cannes, France, about July 15.

The operatic star's father said he received a cable from his daughter announcing the approaching marriage, but said he was not at liberty to give any further information.

Miss Moore attended Ward Belmont College in Nashville. Later she attended a voice culture school in Washington and then appeared in light opera and went into musical comedy.

White House Visit Thrills Mrs. Post and Mrs. Gatty

Wives of Globe-Girdling Fliers Find Mrs. Hoover Charming Hostess; Deny That They Suffer From Stage Fright; Will Fly Back.

Mrs. Harold Gatty, wife of the navigator of the famous airplane Winnie Mae on its world girdling flight, is apparently the ideal wife. She "just does as she is told."

She admitted this much last night when she and Mrs. Wiley Post, wife of the Winnie Mae's pilot, were cornered by newspaper people.

After discussing the things they enjoyed most on their visit to Washington with their famous husbands yesterday the questions turned to the future plans of the fliers' wives.

"I don't know what I am going to do next," Mrs. Gatty said. "I really never know from one moment to the next. I just do as I am told. They say to me 'Press conference at 5:30 o'clock,' and here it is 5:30 o'clock and here I am talking to you people."

Both Mrs. Post and Mrs. Gatty conceded that the visit to the White House was perhaps the most "thrilling" part of their trip to Washington to receive the adulation of the Capital. Both were questioned about what they had for lunch, when they dined with the President—but they

Diary of Missing Actress Checked to Solve Mystery

Police Examine List of Men Named in Evelyn Wilson's Private Book for Clews to Her Disappearance; Girl's Silk Purse Found in Gutter.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Police tonight were checking a long list of men named in the diary of Miss Evelyn Wilson, 22-year-old musical comedy actress, in an attempt to solve the mystery of her disappearance Sunday.

At the same time detectives were searching the girl's possessions in the hope of finding some clew on which to base a hunt for her. The diary was found in a pocketbook the comedienne left in her sister's apartment when she went out early yesterday morning to get a headache powder for her mother at a nearby drugstore. Nothing has been seen of her since. A party was in progress at the apartment at the time she left.

Mrs. Anna Wilson, mother of the actress, told police today her daughter had been living in terror for two weeks because, she said, two "rough looking" men had been following her since she withdrew $2,000 from a bank to transfer to a safety deposit box.

In Evanston, Ill., Harry Wilson, a postoffice employe, expressed the

FINAL SIGNATURES ON PROTOCOL GIVE WORLD SCOPE FOR FISCAL RECOVERY

WIDE PSYCHOLOGICAL EFFECT OF ACCEPTANCE EMPHASIZED

Pact Is Triumph for Swift, Determined Diplomacy Through Conversations Carried on Largely by Wireless, Transatlantic Phone; Big Political Bearing Seen.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

All the important nations to which Germany owes money, including France, have now accepted in principle President Hoover's proposal for a one-year postponement of intergovernmental war debts.

The President himself yesterday made the announcement and the news was flashed to a world weary of debts and depression.

The debt holiday, it was said, will begin as of July 1 last, and extend for one year.

France, Germany's heaviest creditor, which had been holding up the American plan for nearly two weeks, finally capitulated late yesterday, and Andrew Mellon, 76-year-old Secretary of the Treasury, called President Hoover over the transatlantic telephone from Paris and gave him the news.

Hoover Emphasizes Psychology.

The President then called newspapermen into his office and read them his announcement of the agreement. He talked in a crisp, vigorous voice.

For days, maybe weeks and months, experts will be arguing over the technical details of the agreement. Other countries must approve the Franco-American pact.

There may be grumbling in England. But the important thing last night was that the nations had agreed in principle to one of the most audacious economic proposals in world history.

It was not on the technical details or the money involved that President Hoover dwelt so much in his announcement yesterday but the psychological effect of his proposal.

"While the plan," he said, "is particularly aimed to economic relief, yet economic relief means the swinging of men's minds from fear to confidence, the swinging of nations from the apprehension of disorder and governmental collapse to hope and confidence in the future. It means tangible aid to unemployment and agriculture."

Disarmament Effect Hoped.

The President also expressed the hope that the postponement of war debts would lead the nations to come to some agreement at the general disarmament conference to be held in Geneva, Switzerland, next February. He pointed out that the cost of armies and navies—$5,000,000,000 a year was his estimate recently—had contributed largely to the depression.

An accord finally was reached yesterday when France agreed that the problem of reparations in kind should be settled by a committee of experts, which would be instructed to keep within the spirit of the President's proposal and see that Germany was permitted the use of whatever money she is obliged to pay this year.

For its part, the United States agreed that the various nations would begin paying back the suspended payments one year after the debt holiday ends instead of two years.

Ten years will be allowed for the repayments.

Original Plan Was Simple.

The President made his bold move two weeks ago last Saturday. He announced it from behind his desk at the White House, where he stood yesterday and said he was "glad" to announce that it had been accepted.

In the beginning, the plan seemed amazingly simple, and that was one reason that the world hailed it as a "masterful stroke." In the rather disagreeable interlude, however, the various technical questions raised by France, the questions concerning a "guarantee fund," "reparations in kind," and so on—these, while vital

PACT ON WAR DEBTS IS INITIALED IN PARIS

Agreement Accepts French Cabinet's Proposal in World Moratorium.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Paris, July 6 (A.P.).—Statesmen representing the governments of France and America drew up and initialed tonight, in the red drawing room of the ministry of the interior, a protocol which, it is hoped, will assure the success of President Hoover's plan for aiding Germany and rehabilitating the financial structure of the entire world.

The fact that an agreement between the two nations had been reached on the Hoover reparations moratorium proposal was announced following a brief conference which began at 9:35 p. m.

At the close of the conference Premier Laval read a communique in which it was stated that the French text of an accord, formulated at a cabinet session this afternoon, had received the approval of Washington. The text had been telephoned earlier in the evening to Washington by Secretary Mellon and Ambassador Edge.

The triumph came after days of anxiety during which the two nations found it difficult to see eye to eye.

France, the nation which makes the greatest financial sacrifice next to the United States, felt that she must fully maintain what the French call her "sacred right to reparations."

The United States, whose President had conceived the notion of suspending war debt payments due to her, on condition that the allies would relieve Germany from reparations payments for a year, was apprehensive lest the French counter suggestions weaken the spirit and principle of that proposal.

Conciliation saved the day. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, the gentle-speaking, modest and aristocratic-appearing fiscal chief of the United States, exercised it. The smiling Ambassador Walter E. Edge counseled it and Aristide Briand, veteran French foreign minister, who has preached it for years at Geneva as a those European countries concerned, have so bewildered the average man in the street over here that he has almost forgotten how simple the plan really seemed in the beginning.

Stripped of technicalities, the President's proposal was this:

The United States would, for one year, excuse European countries from paying on their war debts to this country, if these countries would, for one year, excuse Germany from paying war reparations to them.

U. S. Gives Up $262,000,000.

To put it in figures, the United States would pass up $262,000,000 in war debt payments for one year, if the other allied countries would forego $473,700,000 in reparations from Germany for the same period.

That is now to be done, with the idea of saving Germany from collapse and a possible revolution, and with the further idea of aiding the "economic recovery of the world."

The old Greeks used to say that a good drama ought to have a beginning, a middle and an end. What the outcome of the Hoover proposal may be no one can now foretell. The beginning and the climax of yesterday, however, constitute part of what will be an epochal period in American history. Conceivably it may be known as the "Hoover period."

Conceived in an age of speed, the plan was carried out with a swiftness that has amazed the Old World diplomats.

Negotiations by Telephone.

It was a swiftness made possible by the transatlantic telephone. Each day, or it might be night in Paris, President Hoover would talk over the telephone to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, and it was largely in these talks that the "whittling away" was done that resulted in an agreement.

As has been said, the ultimate effect of the President's plan can not now be foreseen. Already, however, the stock exchanges of the world are in a bullish mood.

One reason Europe hailed the President's proposal was that it read in it an indication that the United States has taken on an internationalist tone and will henceforth take a more intimate interest in Europe's affairs—at least, her economic affairs.

Debt Readjustment Seen.

European statesmen—and some American statesmen, too, for that matter—are convinced that the Hoover plan will lead to an entirely new adjustment of intergovernmental debts, with a scaling down of both Germany's debts to her European conquerors, and the conquerors' debts to the United States, the only country that asked neither territory nor "tribute" from Germany.

That President Hoover's daring move may have far-reaching effects on American political history is conceded on all sides. A month ago he looked like a one-term President. Today politicians are predicting that if his plan succeeds, if it brings about even a measure of relief to the United States and to the world, his reelection in 1932 is assured.

If it fails, if conditions get worse, well that is something else. The Republicans in that case no doubt would say that the President had done the best he could, but that would hardly go very well with the voters.

Politics Takes Holiday.

A real political holiday has existed since the President made his war debt proposal. With the exception of a blast from Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), of California, there has been no discordant note among the members of Congress. Insurgent Republicans and Democrats, who had been tearing the hide from the President, have come forward to indorse his plan. The Democratic publicity machine, which had been revolving at top speed, has virtually come to a halt.

No one expects, of course, that this situation will continue. That Congress, however, will approve the President's proposal when it meets in December, is a foregone conclusion.

The President made himself fairly sure of that before he even made his proposal by consulting with members of both parties. At the outset, he lined up about 25 members in support of the plan. Yesterday he announced that well over a majority has indicated its intention of voting for the plan, and a majority is all that will be needed.

News Men Block Retreat.

That the President would have an announcement to make was made known yesterday a little after 4 o'clock, when Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania; Acting Undersecretary of State William Castle and Acting Secretary of the Treasury Mills came out of the President's office. They had been in there listening in while the President talked to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

The small army of newspaper reporters which has been camping around the White House and the State Department since the story broke immediately blocked the way of the two men.

"You will have to talk to the boss," said Mr. Mills.

The "boss" was President Hoover, and it was made known that he would see the reporters in a half hour. He saw them in less time than that.

Hoover Reads Statement.

He was standing behind his desk, attired in a blue coat and white trousers. One hand was in his pocket, and the other held the statement he was about to read. His face had been tanned by his brief stay at his Rapidan camp, and he seemed happy. It was the first time the newspapermen had seen him in his office since he announced his debt-holiday plan.

"I am glad to announce," he said, "that the American proposal for one year's postponement of all intergovernmental debts and reparations has now been accepted in principle by all of the important creditor governments."

Theodore Joslin, secretary to the President, stood by his side, holding a batch of mimeographed copies of the statement that was being read. These were for the newspapermen.

Settlement Is Compromise.

Around Secretary Joslin were gathered the representatives of the large press associations, organizations whose wires and cables girdle the word. When the President had concluded, Joslin handed the statements to the press association men first, and then began a wild dash for the telephones.

The final agreement between the United States and France might be called a compromise, although taking the Franco-American negotiations as a whole, there is no question but that the United States backed down from what at first was a stubborn opposition.

The question that had held up an agreement over the week-end had to do with reparations in kind. Contracts have been drawn up for this year under which Germany is obliged to pay for the materials that go into structures erected in the devastated areas of France and other allied countries.

Experts to Settle Detail.

France suggested that a committee of financial experts decide what was to be done about the $20,000,000 involved in these reparations in kind. The committee's decision was to stand. The United States agreed to let a committee settle the question, provided that, in settling it, the committee kept within the broad spirit of the President's plan and saw to it that Germany was given back, either in loans or by other means, just as much as she was required to pay out.

After some haggling, France finally agreed on this.

In turn the United States yielded slightly on one point.

The United States and France had tentatively agreed that the war debts to be suspended this year be paid back in installments over a period of 12 years. Payments were not to begin until two years after July 1 when the one-year holiday began.

Yesterday the United States consented to have the paying-up period shortened to 11 years.

Britain May Grumble.

This was done by specifying that the lull between the end of the debt holiday and the beginning of the paying-up period be shortened from two years to one.

These and other agreements that are involved in the French-American accord must, of course, be approved by the other creditor nations involved, but the President does not anticipate any trouble on this point, notwithstanding the fact that Chancellor Snowden, of Great Britain, has been grumbling over giving concessions to France.

Also, it was explained, the European nations that are signatory to the Young reparations plan will have to get together and work out an agreement with regard to certain aspects of the Hoover plan that do not concern this country.

American May Be Observer.

These countries must further determine how the proposed committee of financial experts is to be made up. This will be an all-European committee, created to consider solely European questions. However, if it is desired that an American observer sit in, the United States will be glad to appoint one.

Intimate behind-the-scenes stories in connection with the Hoover debt proposal will be breaking here and there, no doubt, for months to come. Thus far, only a few are public property.

High administration officials, however, have given newspapermen a broad outline of the international drama out of which the proposal grew.

That conditions were bad in both Germany and Austria was, of course, well known here. How bad they were in Germany is described by Dr. Max Jordan in an article in the current Commonweal. Dr. Jordan, who used to be a correspondent here in Washington, but who is now in Berlin, wrote the article before President Hoover's plan was announced.

German Straits Pictured.

The article says in part:

"One out of every four Germans (including dependents) is out of work, and among the fortunate majority of jobholders the living standard is far from comfortable. Some figures may be of interest. About half of the German people, 32,500,000 to be exact, are engaged in gainful occupations. Out of these 32,500,000, some 16,000,000 are earning less than 100 marks, or approximately $25 a month!

"About 29,500,000 people have an income of less than 200 marks, or about $50, a month! Only some 3,000,000 Germans are earning more than 300 marks a month, but most of them are all but comfortable. Seventy-seven thousand lucky individuals display the extravagant earning of between 1,500 and 3,000 marks. In the end, one finds that there are some 30,000 Germans left whose income surpasses the sum of 3,000 marks or not quite $715 a month."

A large part of those employed, Dr. Jordan said, were contributing part of their wages to the dole fund, which fund, fattened by contributions from the Government, was being distributed among those who were not employed.

In order to raise the nearly $500,000,000 which she is obliged to pay the allied nations in reparations, Germany had raised taxes to the limit and had cut her budget to the bone. But even so it was evident that she was headed for disaster. The same was true of Austria.

Austrian Bank Collapses.

At this stage, the two German ministers—Dr. Bruening and Herr Curtius—went to London to talk the crisis over with Prime Minister MacDonald, of Great Britain.

They had hardly concluded their talks when a warning signal came from Austria. The Kreditanstalt, the big bank of Vienna, announced that it could not meet its obligations. The Bank of England went to the rescue.

The Reichsbank in Germany was no better off. The gold had been rapidly disappearing from its vaults, and it was believed that it would collapse before the week was over.

On Friday, June 19, President Hoover announced that he was contemplating taking steps that would relieve the situation in Europe and particularly the situation in Germany.

Proposal Effect Is Electric.

The next day he made public his bomb-like proposal for a one-year holiday on debts all around. The effect was electric. Markets boomed, pessimistic statesmen issued rosy statements, and the wake at the Reichsbank was called off. In another day, it was believed, the bank would have collapsed.

Great Britain, having a hard time balancing her budget and a heavy creditor of Germany, was quick to accept the President's proposal, and so was Italy. Germany and Austria accepted, of course. Gradually, all of the countries came around with the exception of France, the wealthiest of all the Allies.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon was in London at the time the President made his proposal, and Secretary of State Stimson was preparing to start on a tour of Europe. Mr. Mellon was supposed to have gone over on a holiday trip to visit his schoolboy son. On his arrival, however, he went into conference with Prime Minister MacDonald and other British ministers.

Mellon Sent to Paris.

When the French balked at the Hoover plan, the President sent Secretary Mellon to Paris with instructions to try and bring about a settlement. In Paris Secretary Mellon was assisted by Ambassador Edge.

Then began a series of negotiations that did not end until last night. If the agreement that has been reached is a triumph for President Hoover, then it is also a triumph for Secretary Mellon, whose physician must have been appalled at the long hours that he put in with the French ministers. On one occasion it was far after midnight when he put in his transatlantic call for Washington.

In the absence of Secretary Mellon, the President's financial adviser here has been Ogden Mills, the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, and, needless to say, his stock has gone up too.

The departure of Secretary of State Stimson for Italy in the midst of the negotiations, left the State Department in charge of Acting Secretary William Castle, and he, together with Mills, has been in constant contact with the President. The able manner in which he has held up his end already has elicited high praise.

Hoover Himself Leads Work.

The chief negotiator at this end, however, was the author of the debt holiday proposal—President Hoover. For nearly three weeks he has worked on hardly anything else. The number of visitors was cut down to the minimum. Press conferences were called off and about the only guests at the mansion were two who had been called in for consultation on the debt proposal—Senator Dwight Morrow, of New Jersey, financier and diplomat, and Alanson B. Houghton, former Ambassador to Great Britain and Germany.

The President had planned to go to his camp on the Rapidan Friday afternoon, but a snag in the negotiations in Paris alarmed him, and he stayed at the White House. Under his direction a memorandum was sent to Paris that night.

President Foregoes Dinner.

The next morning he did go to camp. An unfavorable reply to the American memorandum, however, caused the President to forego his Sunday dinner and rush back to Washington. The newspapermen who were covering him at the camp were an hour behind him on the return trip. All that the President had to eat was a box lunch which was sent to him in a fast car.

Arriving here the President announced that the French proposal with regard to reparations in kind was unacceptable.

Yesterday Acting Secretary of State Castle announced that a "new and simplified formula" had been sent to Secretary Mellon. The next announcement after this was the one in which the President said that the debt holiday plan had been accepted all around.

GERMANY ASSISTED IN CRUCIAL MOMENT

Curtius Pays Warm Tribute to Efforts Made by Secretary Mellon.

Berlin, July 6 (A.P.).—If ever help came in the nick of time, it is President Hoover's aid to Germany for which the track has at least been cleared by the Franco-American accord on a reparations moratorium which was reached at Paris tonight.

When news of the accord reached Germany shortly before midnight, Foreign Minister Curtius had already retired to his villa, but he readily responded to a telephone call from the Associated Press.

"It was the very highest time," he said, "not only for us but for all concerned.

"What Andrew Mellon did is simply 'grossartig'—grandiose. To think that this fine old gentleman came over here expecting to spend most of his time with his son and instead plunged into the intricacies of these discussions is simply great!"

The foreign minister said that until the details of the accord reached him he preferred to say nothing further except that he was "very happy that this test of nerves is over."

Ambassador Sackett Relieved.

Another happy man was American Ambassador Sackett.

"Washington was kind enough to call me on the telephone to tell me the good news," he said. "While I do not know all the details, I know positively that President Hoover's ideas have triumphed fully.

"It was a rather busy time for all of us and we are all glad to return to normal work. The whole affair is a fine demonstration of international cooperative effort."

Attempts to reach Chancellor Bruening at the same time were unavailing. He had left his office and could not be reached in his apartments. His state secretary and other officials had left the chancellery much earlier.

Millions of German citizens perhaps will not realize until the full story of these anxious four weeks since the Chequers conversation is told, how near the Fatherland approached to either bankruptcy or revolution.

Serious Credit Withdrawals.

Within the last four or five weeks Germany has been compelled to pay back about $500,000,000 of short term credits in gold and foreign exchange after a similar amount had been drained out of her economic life by credit withdrawals last autumn following upon National Socialist successes at the polls.

In the wake of these credit withdrawals came a panic of her own citizens, manifesting itself in the hoarding of foreign exchanges, especially dollars and pound sterling, which further depleted the Reichsbank's reserves.

Profiting by this panicky feeling and by general pessimism over business depression, radical parties of the right and left had found a high pitch of discontent which threatened to crystallize into overt acts.

On top of this, Chancellor Bruening felt compelled to promulgate his emergency tax decrees, touching deeply the pocketbooks of all citizens.

Called "Gift From Heaven."

President Hoover's action was indeed "a gift from heaven" for Germany, as Foreign Minister Curtius described it.

But during the two weeks which followed the President's announcement, and while the details of the application of the plan were being thrashed out at Paris and Washington, Germany experienced a "run" on her nerves even more exasperating than the run on the gold and the foreign exchange reserves of the Reichsbank.

How confident Germany's statesmen and economic leaders are that the Hoover plan will set Germany on the road to recovery may be judged from the fact that the general board of the Reichsbank, in spite of the bank's plight, declined to take further restrictive measures when the news came from Washington and Paris that an accord was imminent. Economic observers expect the country to make certain, though laborious, progress.

STIMSON REACHES SICILY ON VACATION

Secretary of State Visits Palermo; Will Be in Rome Thursday.

Palermo, Sicily, July 6 (A.P.).—Henry L. Stimson, American Secretary of State, landed here today and remarked that during his tour of Europe this summer he expects "to do a certain amount of observing and form conclusions on conditions political and otherwise."

Mr. Stimson, the second United States Cabinet member to visit Europe while momentous negotiations are going on toward the rehabilitation of the world's business, observed Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's precedent by describing his trip as primarily for a vacation and sight seeing.

Europe expects him to play as great a part diplomatically as has Mr. Mellon, whose time in London and Paris has been so occupied by official business that he hasn't yet had a chance for the vacation he said he was looking forward to when he docked at Southampton several weeks ago.

Party Proceeds to Naples.

The Secretary of State looked well and reported an excellent crossing. He and his party received an enthusiastic welcome, although his wish that there be little ceremony was respected.

After Mrs. Stimson had been presented with a large bouquet of Sicilian roses, the visitors saw the harbor by motorboat and the city by motorcar. They returned to the S. S. Conte Grande at 11 p. m., and an hour later the vessel started for Naples, where they will disembark tomorrow.

John W. Garrett, American Ambassador, and Francesco Mario Taliani, master of ceremonies representing Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, will welcome them at Naples.

To Meet Leaders Thursday.

The Secretary of State will arrive in Rome Wednesday evening and the following day will begin his conversations with the leaders of the Italian state.

Thursday evening Mr. Garrett will be his host at a dinner which Premier Mussolini has promised to attend. Foreign Minister Grandi will entertain him at lunch Friday.

Mr. Stimson will proceed to Paris about the middle of the month, according to his present schedule, and will visit Berlin July 21, immediately after Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Henderson of England have concluded their conversations with the heads of the German republic.

The American Secretary of State expects to continue his "observations" in London about July 27.

LONDON IS RELIEVED OVER DEBT CONCORD

Anxiety Throughout Nation Is Followed by Spirit of Thankfulness.

London, July 6 (A.P.).—Profound relief and a spirit of thankfulness prevailed in London tonight over the news that the French and American reparations moratorium negotiators had reached an accord at Paris.

Many politicians, officials and financial experts had spent the evening following the course of the final conversations at the French capital by means of telephones and tickers and the pleasure expressed over the successful outcome was proportionate to the anxiety which continued to be felt throughout the evening.

British newspapers do not publish early morning editions on the previous evening, so the nation at large will not learn of the accord much before breakfast time tomorrow. The British public has been following the course of these negotiations with an attention far more keen than it usually gives to international events.

That the public will hail the news of the agreement with no less satisfaction than those who know of it was doubted by no one tonight.

On the human side, warm tributes may be expected in the press and from the public tomorrow for Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon.

The British popular imagination has been touched by the reports from Paris of the efforts of the veteran American Secretary to secure the accord, and tales of his unruffled demeanor and unfailing courtesy in all the ups and downs of the protracted discussion have been read with sympathetic interest.

With reference to the concrete details of the settlement, satisfaction was expressed in such circles as were in a position to commnt tonight that the problem for French demand for unconditional annuities was solved by France's undertaking to pay the money received by her into the World Bank for International Settlements for placement in German railway bonds.

This was felt here to be a particularly neat way out of a difficulty that might have brought the Hoover proposal to naught.

Since no mention of a guarantee fund or of payments in kind appeared in the text of the official communique cabled to London from Paris, it was assumed the position stood as indicated in advices earlier in the evening and that these matters should be the subject of discussion by a meeting of the Young plan signatories.

Commentators tonight declared such a proposal hardly was one to which the British government could object, as it always had been the British viewpoint that the Hoover proposal was one thing and the Young plan another, and the less the two became intertwined the better.

How Great Britain and France will succeed in reaching an agreement on the question of the guarantee fund and payments in kind was a matter on which no one was prepared tonight to speculate.

But there was no disposition to cast gloom into the atmosphere of rejoicing occasioned by the Paris accord.

In the earlier hours of the evening, however, Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden's recent statement in the House of Commons that Great Britain was unprepared to make further sacrifices unless other powers cooperated in them was widely recalled throughout London.

Illness Defers Belgian Parley

Foreign Minister Hymans Not Well; Plan Attacked by Newspaper.

Brussels, July 6 (A.P.).—The Belgian cabinet council which was to discuss President Hoover's debt moratorium proposal tonight has been postponed owing to the illness of Foreign Minister Hymans. The meeting is expected to be delayed a few days.

Ferdinand L. Myer, counselor of the American Embassy, had an interview this morning with Van Langenhoven, secretary general of the foreign office, and afterward was received by Premier Renkin.

In an editorial regarding American-French moratorium difficulties, the Brussels Nationalist newspaper, Nation Belge, says President Hoover is defending German cash with as much avidity as if he himself were the Reich's finance minister. This, says the paper, corresponds to a reality, considering the number of millions of dollars invested by Americans in German industry. The paper also says that in President Hoover's conception Germany will have the last word.

Text of Debt Agreement; Hoover Issues Statement

French government makes the following declaration:

"(a) Concerted action by the principal central banks through the intermediary of the Bank for International Settlements shall be organized for the benefit of European countries which find themselves particularly affected by the proposed suspension of payments.

"(b) A previous understanding must be arrived at between France and the World Bank for International Settlements so that France will only be called upon to complete the guarantee fund provided for in the case of a moratorium under the Young plan by monthly payments equal to the needs of the World Bank and as a result of payments effectively transferred by Germany.

"(c) Concerning payments in kind, is the burdens imposed and the fears aroused by competitive armament. Contemplation of the past few weeks should bring a realization that we must find relief from these fundamental burdens which today amount to several times the amount of intergovernmental debts.

the various technical adjustments necessitated by the application of the American proposal and the present accord shall be studied by a committee of experts named by the powers interested, which shall reconcile the exigencies of existing conditions with the spirit of President Hoover's proposal. France reserves the right to ask the German government for indispensible assurances touching upon the use to exclusively economic ends of the sums by which the Reich's budget will be lightened."

WAR DEBT PROTOCOL IS INITIALED IN PARIS

necessary basis of all great world efforts, even fought for it.

The American and French statesmen spoke frankly to each other. Once or twice during the protracted negotiations Secretary Mellon and Ambassador Edge went home from the conferences in gloomy spirits.

Gradually, however, the divergent views were whittled down until the accord was achieved.

The simple but historic scene of the signature of the protocol at the ministry of interior was profoundly impressive. Premier Laval, Secretary Mellon and Ambassador Edge made a few brief remarks emphasizing the great significance of the agreement.

Premier Laval expressed the belief that their gesture will not have been in vain if, as is believed, confidence is born anew in the world and a new era is opened for the peoples of France and Germany.

The text of the protocol is brief. It provides that payments on intergovernmental debts be suspended from July 1, 1931, and June 30, 1932.

Germany is to continue her unconditional reparations payments, but she is to get them back. The World Bank of International Settlements is to put these funds immediately into bonds guaranteed by German railroads.

France undertakes to secure concerted action by European central banks to come to the relief of other countries of central Europe. It is understood, but not specified, that the American Federal Reserve Bank will join in this move.

France must reach an agreement with the World Bank for International Settlements, under which she may build up the guarantee fund of $125,000,000 which she is supposed to deposit there for the event that Germany declares a moratorium. The guarantee must cover the amount only to the point which the World Bank deems necessary.

These payments by France presumably will be in proportion to the payments Germany will actually make in the form of nondeferable annuities.

On the point of the suspension of reparations payments in kind, which proved thorny for the American and French statesmen at the very end of the pourparlers, conciliation brought the formula which President Hoover approved by telephone at the last moment, sending Secretary Mellon and Ambassador Edge smilingly to the final session.

This problem will be left to experts. Although the text is not entirely clear as to what the precise task of the experts will be, they will be expected to harmonize existing contracts for such payments with the spirit of President Hoover's plan.

The agreement, known as the protocol, was first signed by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and then by United States Ambassador Edge. They were followed in turn by Premier Laval, Foreign Minister Briand, Finance Minister Flandin, Budget Minister Pietri and Andre Francois-Poncet, undersecretary for national economy.

The protocol was in French, and two copies were initialed.

The announcement followed a session at which wearied American and French statesmen had again tackled the German reparations problem in an attempt to reach a final solution to the question of how to apply the principles of President's Hoover's war debt plan, the essence of which is that Germany should be relieved and relieved quickly.

Indications of difficulty in the winding up of these negotiations between Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Ambassador Edge on one side and Premier Laval, Foreign Minister Briand and Finance Minister Flandin on the other, were found by the French public in the fact that the cabinet sat in special session more than two hours and a half to prepare the French arguments.

This extraordinary meeting of the ministry, presided over by President Doumer, was convoked suddenly after the Americans had produced a bombshell in the form of an entirely new memorandum, prepared by the Washington Government and cabled to Paris today.

This was the third memorandum from Washington since the negotiations got under way.

It was a complete restatement of the American position concerning the suspension of German reparations payments. It dwelt upon the merits of the American plan and upon the wisdom of conserving its principles.

An official communique issued Sunday morning, when international circles deduced the negotiators had achieved accord, laid emphasis upon the point that the basis of accord was founded on the French conception. This was put in, it was understood today, out of courtesy to the French and to satisfy French public opinion.

The whole atmosphere of the negotiations today was electrical but the conviction persisted that success would be achieved.

The first development on the day's program was an afternoon session attended by both the French and the American negotiators. This was adjourned to permit the cabinet to consider the latest message from Washington.

After the cabinet deliberations, the plenipotentiaries got together again but soon adjourned to permit Mr. Mellon and Mr. Edge to resort once again to the wireless telephone to Washington and, incidentally, to get a bite to eat.

Immediately after this recess was taken, Premier Laval read a communique which produced an optimistic impression. The communique emphasized that the premier had delivered to the Americans the text of the bases of accord between the two governments which had been approved by the French cabinet.

As the communique pointed out the American representatives had withdrawn in order to telephone to Washington, it was assumed an accord could not be considered officially sealed until the Secretary of the Treasury and the American Ambassador had returned for the latter session with their announcement of Washington's decision.

MELLON, EDGE LAUD AID GIVEN BY FRENCH

Pay Trbiute to Genial Spirit of Conferees; Confident at All Times.

Paris, July 6 (A.P.).—After the Franco-American debt accord had been announced tonight, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Ambassador Edge received American newspapermen in the red drawing room of the minister of the interior. Mr. Mellon made the following statement:

"Our intercourse throughout all our meetings with our French colleagues has been most agreeable and pleasant, and their cordial, frank attitude has greatly facilitated our labors, and throughout our negotiations we have been at all times confident of final accord."

At this point Mr. Edge moved forward and said: "Don't you think, Mr. Secretary, that we might add the following:

"The American negotiators express to the American public their happiness on this occasion and their appreciation of the generous efforts of the French government, headed by Premier Laval, to reach an agreement destined to rehabilitate the financial structure of the world."

Mr. Edge then turned to J. Theodore Marriner and Robert Pell, members of the embassy staff, and said: "I want to say a personal word and to speak of the splendid cooperation of Mr. Marriner and Mr. Pell.

"They at all times helped Mr. Mellon and myself in achieving the final successful results of our labors."

Coal Mine Owners Will Confer Here

Half Dozen Already Have Accepted Invitation Sent by Lamont.

(Associated Press.)

A half dozen operators of bituminous coal mines yesterday had accepted Secretary Lamont's initation to an informal conference on the industry's problems here next Thursday.

Replies to the Secretary's letter, mailed late last Thursday, were expected by him tomorrow from others of the 25 who were invited.

The conference, limited to operators, was called by Secretary Lamont in an effort to find out how the operators would view a general conference on the situation in the industry with labor and others interested participating.

Should the conference develop an attitude on the part of the mine owners warranting it, a general conference would be called later.

The initial move for conferences looking to some means of rehabilitating the industry was made by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine workers of America, who wrote President Hoover asking him to call a general conference. The President referred the subject to Secretaries Lamont and Doak.

Laval States Accord Is "Heavy Sacrifice"

Paris, July 6 (A.P.).—Following the announcement of the agreement tonight on President Hoover's reparations moratorium proposal, Premier Laval issued the following statement:

"An accord has been concluded. President Hoover has given his adhesion to the text, the terms of which were decided upon at a cabinet council today.

"It is an adhesion which consecrates a heavy sacrifice for our country. It will be understood that the government wished to maintain that Franco-American solidarity which is a condition of international cooperation more than ever necessary for peace.

"It will be observed that the government has not allowed France's sacred right to reparation to be prescribed.

"If from the accord confidence is born again in the world, our gesture will not have been in vain. And if in Germany the bearing and sense of our generous attribute is understood, a new era should open for the two peoples."

CURTIS AND CAPPER REPULSED ON WHEAT

Farm Board Refuses to Hold 1930 Grain Till Price Is 85 Cents a Bushel.

(Associated Press.)

The Farm Board stood by its wheat sales policy yesterday during a two-hour conference with Vice President Curtis and Senator Capper, of Kansas, but it did assure them it would not sell any of last year's surplus "at the present range of prices."

The two Kansans demanded that the board refuse to sell any of the 200,000,000 bushels of wheat carried over from last year until the price of this year's crop has reached 85 cents a bushel.

The board clung firmly to its announced policy of selling the surplus at the rate of 5,000,000 bushels a month when and if prices improve.

Leaving the conference room, Capper termed the position of the board "unsatisfactory." Curtis was displeased but said he was "hopeful."

May Not Appeal to Hoover.

Both apparently were willing last night to rest their case with the board and had abandoned temporarily a plan of appealing to President Hoover. Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, previously had gone to the board with a demand that last year's surplus be held off the market entirely during the marketing of this year's crop. He, too, was ready tonight to leave the issue with the board.

In making their appeal yesterday Curtis and Capper said Kansas wheat farmers were being forced to sell at well below 50 cents a bushel. They attributed a recent decline in the price of wheat to the policy of the Farm Board in dealing with last year's surplus.

"Unsatisfactory," Says Capper.

"I regard the Farm Board's policy as unsatisfactory," said Capper. "Farmers are not getting the cost of production for their wheat and I believe an announcement by the board that it would hold off last year's surplus would improve the price."

Curtis said the board emphasized the line in its announcement of July 1 that "It is not the purpose of the corporation to make any immediate sales even of those limited amounts at the present range of prices."

Topeka, Kans., July 6 (A.P.).—Commenting upon the refusal of the Farm Board to change its policy relative to sale of stabilization wheat, Gov. Harry H. Woodring of Kansas, said today he believed "it is time for Chairman Stone and the other members of the board to resign."

Police Asked to Search For Two Missing Youths

Washington police have been asked to look out for James and Fred Burkindine, who are reported to have been missing from their home in Capitol Heights, Md., since 4:30. The two boys were supposed to have had about $8 when they left home.

James, who is 15, has been living with a relative in Capitol Heights, while Fred, one year younger, has been living with his parents in Washington. Several days ago the younger lad ran away from home to join his brother in the Maryland town and had just been located by his parents when the pair disappeared.

CALDWELL IS FOUND GUILTY IN NASHVILLE

Banker Assessed 3 Years in Prison for Fraudulent Breach of Trust.

Nashville, Tenn., July 6 (A.P.).—Rogers Caldwell, former investment banker, was convicted by a criminal court jury today of fraudulent breach of trust, and his punishment was fixed at not more than three years in the State Penitentiary. His attorneys announced they would file motion for a new trial.

At the district attorney-general's office it was explained "a sentence of not more than three years means from one to three years."

For a number of years Caldwell was one of the outstanding financiers of the South. His investment banking house, with the slogan, "We Bank on the South," dealt in municipal and county bonds from all parts of the Southland, and estimates placed the number of Southern securities disposed of during the company's fourteen years existence at between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000.

Offices were maintained in the various financial centers of the United States. The company engaged in financing in a wide and varied field that included many large mills, hotels, road-building projects, bridges and the like. The company has assisted also in the financing of office buildings, hospitals and apartment houses, and was interested in a number of insurance companies.

In addition to his business activities, Caldwell has been prominent in sports, especially in horse racing and fox hunting. He disposed of his racing stable shortly after the crash of his business last November.

The charge against Caldwell grew out of the alleged violation of a trust agreement between Caldwell's collapsed investment house, Caldwell & Co., and Hardeman County, Tenn. It was charged that securities less valuable than those specified in the agreement were pledged as collateral on the trust, thus violating it.

Caldwell denied he knew of the irregularity until long after it occurred, and he testified that when he learned of it he immediately took every possible step to correct the condition.

J. Dewitt Carter, a vice president of Caldwell & Co., testified, however, that he called the Haredman irregularity and other alleged violations to Caldwell's attention on many occasions.

Council in Hyattsville Weighs Street Paving

Hyattsville Town Council met last night to consider petitions for improvement of streets in the town and to hear arguments of owners who favor or oppose paving streets beside their property.

While the council took no action, it was considered as decided that Bayley street, from Franklin street to Oakwood terrace, would be paved, as all the abutting property owners favored the work. Paving of Phillips and Wine streets and the rest of Bayley tareet was also discussed, but there was some difference of opinion among residents as to necessity for the improvement.

SCENES AS WORLD FLIERS VISITED NATION'S CAPITAL CITY

Adoption Misconstrued by Justice Proctor, Attorneys Say in Answer.

A memorandum opinion of Justice James M. Proctor in which he held that the adoption of Mrs. Beatrice Henderson Wholean was void because she was over 18 years old at the time, and also because her mother was then alive and her consent had not been obtained, was attacked yesterday by Mrs. Wholean's attorneys.

They pointed out, in an answer filed late yesterday, that Justice Proctor had misconstrued the original purpose of the adoption of the supposed child of John B. Henderson, jr., by his mother, Mrs. Mary F. Henderson.

This purpose, they say, was merely for the establishment in law of the rights of the then Beatrice Henderson as an heir of Mrs. Henderson, and her son. The adoption was purely a move, Attorneys H. Prescott Gatley and Arthur P. Drury say, to make Mrs. Wholean an heir-at-law with the right of inheritance.

Justice Proctor, according to the answer which Mrs. Wholean filed, went afield when he found that since the girl was over 18 she could not be legally adopted. The statute under which he had authority for this merely outlined the fact that at 18 years of age, a female child was no longer subject to parental control and custody.

Justice Proctor is asked to grant a rehearing so that the attorneys for Mrs. Wholean may submit for his consideration additional authorities for their contention that the adoption was legal.

Mostly Men in Oregon.

Salem, Oreg., July 5 (U.P.).—Men outnumber women in Oregon. Of the state's 953,786 population, 499,672 are males and 454,114 are females, or 110 men per 100 women.

POST AND GATTY ACCLAIMED BY PRESIDENT AND THRONGS

White House, where they were received by Mrs. Hoover.

"I am happy personally to congratulate you on your achievement of flying around the world in the remarkable time of less than nine days," the President told Post and Gatty.

"The first flight around the world was made only seven years ago when officers of the United States Army spent fifteen days and six hours in the air, but, because of many delays and mishaps, required 175 days for the entire journey.

"Your accomplishment is striking testimony of the advancement which has been made during the last few years by American pilots and engineers. I congratulate you for your courage, determination, technical ability and skill."

Members of the White House luncheon party included:

Guests at White House Board.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Post, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gatty, Secretary of War Hurley, Postmaster General and Mrs. Brown, Secretary of Commerce Lamont, Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, president of the National Aeronautic Association; Walter H. Newton, of the President's Secretaries, and Mrs. Newton; Assistant Secretary Davison, Assistant Postmaster General Glover, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Jahncke and Mrs. Jahncke, Assistant Secretary of War Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of Commerce Young.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics, and Mrs. Moffett; Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the Army Air Corps, and Mrs. Fechet; F. C. Hall, backer of the flight; Mrs. E. W. Allen, of New York; Mrs. George C. Scott, of Richmond; Capt. and Mrs. Charles Russell Train, naval aid to the President, and Maj. John M. Eager.

From the White House the globe-girdlers expected to return to the Willard Hotel for a short rest before the reception at the Washington Auditorium. However, they found newspapermen waiting to ply them with questions.

In this interview, Post gave one of his main reasons for abandoning the idea of flying the Winnie Mae to Washington yesterday.

Gatty Talks Fishing.

This reason was the condition of the Washington-Hoover airport as he found it on his last trip here.

"The last time I flew to Washington," he said, "it had been raining and the field was very muddy. Last night I was told it was raining in Washington, and since our wives were coming with us, I decided I would not take the chance. I felt it as safer in event of rain, to take the train, and then I knew we would not be late."

Gatty was accused of "stealing the show" at the White House luncheon.

"He's an old seaman and fisherman," Post said with a smile, pointing to his companion, who sat on the davenport beside him. "I didn't know anything about 32-ply thread and he did. So I hardly got a word with the President."

Both fliers said the President questioned them about the details of their eight-day dash around the earth.

Press Club Trophies.

Post and Gatty did get a little rest between the luncheon and the auditorium reception, for Senator Bingham, who acted as personal conductor of their [illegible] in Washington, throughout the day shooed the newspaper men away after they had fired questions at the two men for half an hour.

At the Washington Auditorium Post and Gatty were presented with two globes—maps of the world—on behalf of the National Press Club. Mrs. Post and Mrs. Gatty were presented with bouquets of roses, and during the ceremonies a small boy slipped up on the stage and presented each wife with a single magnolia.

Approximately 2,500 flocked to the auditorium for the reception. Senator Bingham was presented by Eugene S. Leggett, president of the Press Club, and delivered a eulogy on the feat of Post and Gatty in circling the world in record time.

"Magellan's people took three years to go around the world; the first aviators took 175 days to go around the world. Post and Gatty took 8 days 15 hours and 51 minutes.

"This is an achievement to make every American proud of his race and proud of America. It is an undertaking on the part of those three (Post, Gatty and Hall) to make us cast aside pessimism and put on the cloak of optimism, go forth to carry out the destiny that is before us and keep America first in the air."

Rare Honor Given by N. A. A.

Secretary of Commerce Lamont introduced the noted aviators, and both, with a show of reluctance, spoke a few words to the crowd. It is apparent that they much prefer flying to talking.

Then, as Gatty, who spoke last, sat down, the crowd started calling for Mr. Hall. The backer of the flight has kept himself in the background of the round of receptions, greetings and public adulation all day long, but as the applause grew he walked to the microphone and greeted the crowd.

The dinner at the Willard last night was tendered Post and Gatty by the National Aeronautic Association and the Board of Trade. The event saw the two fliers join one of the select circles of aviation, for they were made honorary members of the association. Only twelve have ever been accorded this honor, and only five are now living. Included in the list of honorary members of the association are Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Rear Admiral Richard E. Bird.

Pangborn and Herndon Delayed by Rainy Skies

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—As Wiley Post and Harold Gatty received the congratulations of the President today on their flight around the world, the men who hoped to lower their record scanned rainy skies and again postponed their start.

Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, who hope to girdle the globe in six doys, almost got away yesterday, but thickening weather delayed them, and today it seemed unlikely that conditions would be favorable for another two days.

Two other teams of aspirants for Atlantic flying honors were also earthbound by the weather. Alexander Magyar and George Andres again postponed their flight to Budapest, and Russell Boardman and a companion waited for sunny skies before beginning an ocean flight that has been hanging fire for a year.

Bridge Arch Forms Farms.

Payson, Ariz., July 5 (U.P.).—Arizona's oddest farm is a five-acre piece forming the top of the arch of Goodfellow's Natural Bridge in the colorful district north of Roosevelt Dam. The soil of the farm is good. The bridge is 180 feet high and has a wall to wall spread of 250 feet.

WORLD FLIERS' WIVES THRILLED BY CAPITAL

had forgotten that. But when a newspaper woman asked what Mrs. Hoover wore—both memories returned perfectly and their description was minute.

Someone suggested that perhaps stage fright had caused the lapse of memory about the White House luncheon, but Mrs. Post strongly denied that.

"We've been through enough in the last few days to get over any stage fright," she declared smiling. "We're hard-boiled now."

Both said they felt no nervousness during the eight days and a half their famous husbands weer winging their way around the world. Mrs. Post said she had perfect confidence in both men and place and therefore felt no apprehension.

Mrs. Gatty had a different reason: "There is plenty to do when you have three children to mind. I didn't have time to be nervous," she declared.

Both Fond of Flying.

Mrs. Post has made trips by plane on numerous occasions, but Mrs. Gatty made her first flight when she caught a plane in an effort to reach New York in time to see her husband land on the last lap of the world flight. The plane was forced down in Pittsburgh because of bad weather—"but I loved it, though!" she said.

If present plans are carried out, Mrs. Gatty will make her second trip today when the party in Washington with the fliers return to New York at 7 o'clock this morning on a Ludington transport plane. Then plans are to leave New York about Wednesday for Oklahoma by plane. These plans are rather indefinite, however.

Both women were full of praise for Mrs. Hoover as a hostess. "She made us feel at home from the very first," Mrs. Post declared.

"She showed us all through the house and gardens," Mrs. Gatty explained.

Sit by Air-Minded Men.

At the luncheon Mrs. Post and Mrs. Gatty had been seated "just one seat over" from Mrs. Hoover, and each had been accorded an "air-minded" gentleman on either side of her.

Mrs. Post, of Oklahoma City, sat between Secretary Hurley, also from Oklahoma, and Secretary Lamont. Mrs. Gatty was seated between Postmaster General Brown and Senator Hiram Bingham, president of the National Aeronautical Association. And sitting beside the President were their famous husbands, Post on Mr. Hoover's right and Gatty on his left.

There appears to be a marked resemblance between the natures of each husband and wife. As Gatty does most of what little talking is done by the Post-Gatty team, so Mrs. Gatty carried most of the burden of the interview last night. Mrs. Post had little to say and never answered a question unless it was put directly to her.

Police Find Liquor in Auto.

U. S. TODAY TO ASK COURT TO JAIL FALL

Special Prosecutor Armed With Doctors' Word He Can Stand Trip.

(Associated Press)

Convinced that Albert B. Fall is able to go to jail, the Government today will ask that he be imprisoned at once.

Atlee Pomerene, special prosecutor in the oil lease cases, will appear before Justice Bailey in the District of Clumbia Supreme Court to request an order for the removal of the former Secretary of the Interior from El Paso, Tex., to a District prison.

Decision to do this was reached after examination of a report on Fall's physical condition submitted by Army doctors at William Beaumont Hospital near El Paso.

Private Doctors Dissent.

Private physicians who examined Fall had expressed the opinion he was unable to make the trip to Washington. The Government then requested the examination by Army doctors and Fall spent several days in the hospital.

District Attorney Rover said yesterday a study of this report had convinced the Government that Fall is in condition to stand the journey here.

The physicians' report, which made no recommendation, will be submitted to Justice Bailey. He is empowered to suspend sentence if he disagrees with the conclusions of the Government.

Frank Hogan, Fall's attorney, is expected to oppose the Government's request. He may submit affidavits of physicians who believe it would be perilous for Fall to attempt the trip to Washington.

Fall was convicted in 1929 of accepting a bribe of $100,000 from Edward L. Doheny, multi-millionaire oil operator. Attempts to have the verdict reversed in higher courts failed.

Pardon Hope Seen Dim.

Unless Justice Bailey suspends the jail sentence, Fall's only hope of escaping prison is a Presidential pardon. President Hoover's denunciation in his speech at Marion, Ohio, of those who "betrayed" President Harding apparently indicated that he would not extend clemency to the former cabinet officer.

El Paso, Tex., July 6 (AP.).—Albert B. Fall had no comment to make today on the Government's plan to ask tomorrow that he be taken to Washington to begin serving his sentence of a year in jail.

Members of his family said he had "not been feeling very well" since his return to his residence in El Paso from William Beaumont Government Hospital, where he was examined more than a week ago by army physicians.

LIE DETECTOR TRIPS WITH NEW CHANCE

Suspect Usually Is Unable to Suppress Internal Surge in Him.

Chicago, July 5 (A.P.).—Leonarde Keeler's lie-detector gives its suspects a second chance.

When the detector, which records breathing and heart action, registers a surge of emotion that the lips have belied, the suspect is told exactly what the recording needles have done.

He is set before them again, with his eyes upon the tell-tale parts, to repeat his answers and see whether, forewarned, he can suppress the internal surge—the holding of breath, or perhaps its involuntary quickening, and the change in his pulse.

Usually he can not.

Still Young Man.

Keeler, a psychologist, graduate of Stanford University, still in his middle twenties, is center of the Chicago scientific crime detection laboratory.

"A single test of ten or fifteen minutes is usually sufficient to ascertain the guilt or innocence of a suspect," he says. "If the suspect is determined guilty he is subjected to more questioning. At the completion of the initial test he is shown his record, which is carefully explained to him.

"For the second test the guilty man is seated so he can watch the needle.

"The guilty individual now knows the machine recorded his lies and that, if unable to control his responses during the second test, he surely will prove guilty.

"His added effort to control his responses, as he sees them appear on the record will cause greater disturbance.

"On completion of the second test, or one or two subsequent tests, above 75 per cent of the guilty confess."

Unexpected Events Shown.

Sometimes the detector shows up unexpected events in a person's past. Two traveling men, arrested in Wisconsin for bank robbery, proved to be not guilty.

The Keeler lie-detector helped in the exoneration. But emotionless to robbery questions, one of the salesmen showed a "jump" at the apparently harmless question:

"Did you attend college?"

It turned out that he alone of all his fellow salesmen was not a college man, but on his application for employment he had falsified, claiming to be a graduate.

Mongrel Dog Is Honored.

Dickenson, Mont., July 5 (U.P.).—Jiggs, a mongrel dog, has been recommended by the National Antivivisection Society for decoration as a life saver. The dog belongs to Eddie Schesler and is credited with saving the life of Raymond Kuhn, who was in danger of drowning.

U. S. FILES ANSWER IN PITTS' PAPER SUIT

Document Claims Seizure in Florida Vault Was by Legal Process.

Assistant United States Attorney William A. Gallagher, representing the Government in the fight instituted by G. Bryan Pitts to regain custody of papers seized in a vault in Palm Beach, yesterday filed an answer to the Pitts petition on behalf of Nugent Dodds and Neil Burkinshaw, special prosecutors; E. C. Snyder, United States marshal for the District, and Frank E. Cunningham, clerk of the District Supreme Court.

The answer declared that the seizure was legal and that it was made on a warrant of distraint issued by the internal revenue collector for Florida. The articles are being held for sale and were "temporarily produced before the grand jury of the District" in connection with an investigation into perjury charges.

Seven trunks and one box were found in the vault, the Government answer said. Henry O. Hart, now indicted, had leased the vault under an assumed name. Papers, documents, canceled checks and other exhibits which Pitts "wrongfully and fraudulently" carried away from the Smith company offices were found in the vaults, and typewriters on which allegedly false documents were made up were seized.

The machines were examined by experts and their work was compared with the typing on the authorizations used by Pitts in his defense, the Government alleges, and these experts pronounced them to be the machines on which the authorizations were manufactured. Dismissal of Pitts' petition is asked.

Democrat Scores G. O. P. Tariff Act

Col. Halsey Sees Party as Harmonious in Coming Presidential Race.

Excoriating the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill, Col. Edwin A. Halsey, secretary to the minority of the United States Senate, pointed out the fulfilment of the damage economists predicted from its passage and predicted a sweeping Democratic victory in 1932, speaking before a dinner meeting of the Women's Democratic Educational Council last night.

"If the Republicans are counting on Democratic dissensions as an asset in the coming campaign they will be disappointed," Col. Halsey declared. "After the next convention, when we have made our platform and named our candidate, the Democrats will be found one harmonious party."

At the picnic dinner held in Rock Creek Park Miss Mae Helm, a past president of the council, gave a talk on the life and politics of Woodrow Wilson. Mrs. Clara Wright Smith is the present president of the organization.

Aluminum Company Asks $1,000,000.

Pittsburgh, July 6 (AP.).—The Aluminum Company of America filed suit in Federal Court here today against the Federal Government asking return of approximately $1,000,000 in income tax payment and interest. The suit asserts the company paid $650,632.38 excess income and excess profit taxes in 1919 on intercompany transactions of the corporation and 27 affiliated companies, and asks return of that amount with interest from 1919.

PITTS, COBLENTZ AND OTHERS INDICTED ON PERJURY CHARGE

ington, where his real estate and financial dealings have been numerous. He was a witness in the Pitts trial, and he testified that 31 of the authorizations bore his signature, although he could not remember when he had signed them. These 31 authorizations were drawn on the Beverley Building Co., of which Coblentz was a vice president.

Agents of the Internal Revenue Bureau assisted unwittingly in obtaining evidence of the alleged frauds. They went into Pitts' safety vaults at Palm Beach on warrants that authorized them to seize his assets for alleged nonpayment of income taxes. What they found there stopped the grand jury of the last term from reporting an indictment, and the case against Pitts and his associates was deferred until the material thus obtained could be gotten into shape for presentation to the grand jury.

The grand jury that went out yesterday has been hearing the case on and off for two months. It heard John R. Thomas, Pitts' brother-in-law; Coblentz, Edwards, Anadale, Charles T. Malone and Louis Loebl, special agents of the Department of Justice, and others give testimony.

There is little likelihood of any of the indicted persons being given a trial before next fall. They will be arraigned before Justice Peyton Gordon Friday, at which time they will enter pleas.

On being informed of the indictment returned against him Coblentz dictated the following statement:

"I have just received information that my name has been connected with an indictment by the Federal grand jury in Washington relating to certain evidence presented at the trial of G. Bryan Pitts in December last.

"I was formerly interested in two properties owned by corporations the stock of which Pitts subsequently purchased. During my connection with these properties it was my duty to sign certain authorizations and papers in connection with payments that were actually and properly made to parties to whom they were due.

"After my connection with these properties had been terminated I was requested to sign certain of these authorizations that had not been executed before, in order to complete the corporate records.

"Shortly before Pitts' trial, I learned for the first time that these two properties were involved in his alleged embezzlements, which occurred after I had terminated my connection and he became their sole owner. I immediately communicated with both Pitts and his counsel and insisted that under no circumstances were these papers to be used as evidence, and was assured that not only would they not be used but they had actually been destroyed.

"I was naturally astonished when these papers were presented at the trial and since then have given to the Department of Justice every assistance within my power in investigating the matter.

"I want to emphasize that I have never received any profit, either directly or indirectly, from these properties. I am surprised and shocked that my name has been used in connection with these indictments. My conscience is entirely clear and I ask that the public reserve its judgment until all of the facts become known.

"In conclusion I want it distinctly understood that this matter is entirely a personal one and that no financial institution or other corporation with which I am connected or associated is in any way involved, interested or affected."

14 New York Lawyers Face Ethics Charges

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Fourteen lawyers were before Referee Shearn today to answer charges of unethical practices in paying "gratuities" to John C. Weston, former prosecutor in Women's Court, in consideration of his "laying down" on cases.

Weston was to have been given a hearing also, but his case was removed from the docket when he resigned. The charges are based upon evidence turned up in Samuel Seabury's investigation of magistrates' courts. A fifteenth attorney, Joseph A. Butler, was not represented when today's hearing opened. Process servers said they had been unable to find him.

REPUBLICANS PLAN PRECINCT MEETINGS

Party in Arlington County Gets Ready for Convention Next Friday.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With the holding of Republican mass meetings tonight in each of the eleven voting precincts in the county, for the purpose of selecting delegates to the county Republican convention to be held Friday evening in the Lyon Park Community House, will launch the opening of what promises to be one of the most aggressive campaigns ever waged by the Republican organization, leaders say.

The meetings tonight will be held in the following places:

Arlington precinct, the Arlington firemen's hall; Ballston precinct, Ray Cogswell's electric store; Carne precinct, Ruby Lee Minar's office; Cherrydale precinct, the firemen's hall; Clarendon precinct, No. 1, C. W. Clever's real estate office; Clarendon precinct, No. 2, the Spaulding Building, Wilson boulevard; East Falls Church precinct, A. A. Anderson's store; Lyon Park precinct, Havenner's store; Rosslyn precinct, office of Rose Bros. Co.; Virginia Highlands precinct, the firemen's hall, and Glencarlyn precinct, the library building.

At the convention Friday evening it is planned to name nominees for both State and county offices. Thus far there are but two who have announced, subject to the convention for the office of county trial justice. They are B. M. Hedrick and M. G. Ely. For Commonwealth's attorney, Clarence R. Ahalt; for the county board, Thomas D. Baille, Col. J. G. Pepper, Herbert M. Bowbeer, E. M. Harris.

In June 300 deeds were recorded in the county clerk's office, according to the monthly report yesterday. The tax to the State amounted to $778.44.

Other items included in the report are: Wills, 6, State tax $8; chancery suits, 14, State tax $21; actions at law, 15, State tax $24; fines collected during the month for violation of the prohibition law, $316, with costs totaling $451; fines collected in cases other than prohibition, $76.25, with costs amounting to $131.25.

Delinquent real estate taxes collected during the month and going to the State treasurer amounted to $202.96. The amount collected which goes into the county treasury amounted to $1,708.98.

County Game Warden W. Harry Johnson announced yesterday that all dogs must display the required tag in accordance with the State law. All persons owning dogs who continue to disregard this law will be cited into court and a fine imposed, the game warden stated.

Lyon Park, through the determined efforts of the citizens association, headed by a special committee of which DeWitt M. Evans is the chairman, is about to be the first community in Arlington County to have an improved public park.

About two years ago, the firm of Lyon & Fitch, developers of that section, deeded to the community a tract of land that had been reserved for the purpose of a park, and upon which a wading pool for the children has been constructed. It was understood that the park would have to be kept in condition by the residents.

Until recently only that section upon which is located the community house was given the care necessary to make the park a recreational center. Deciding to make the entire area into a park that would be a credit to any community, the committee set to work with lawn mowers and hand sickles and cut the tall grass.

The wading pool has been cleaned thoroughly and with the aid of the Clarendon Fire Department has been filled with fresh water. The swings and other playground equipment has all been repaired, and the children of the community are enjoying themselves.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department will be held tonight at the home of Mrs. Oliver Scheffel. Plans for the annual carnival to be staged the week of July 13 will be discussed at this meeting.

The Arlington County Kiwanis Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock at Windsor Arms, Glebe road.

Melvin Holmes, of Washington, and William Hamilton, of Cherrydale, were held for the action of the grand jury on a charge of mayhem, following a hearing before Police Judge Harry R. Thomas yesterday. The case resulted from an alleged beating administered to Charles Bouton, of Clarendon, a week ago.

Hamilton was fined $19.25, including costs, on an additional charge of assaulting Roland Harrison, also of Clarendon, at the same time.

Hamilton and Holmes are accused of having followed Bouton, Miss K. Jefferson and Peter Stark to Harrison's home in Clarendon Sunday night, a week ago, where the fight is alleged to have taken place after an argument on the Lee highway. Holmes waived hearing.

Both men were later released on $1,000 bond each.

Charged with possession of alleged liquor, Roseanna Richardson was held for the action of the grand jury by Judge Thomas. She was later released on $500 bond.

Charged with reckless driving, William Roberts forfeited the sum of $15 in police court yesterday.

Meeting last night in the Spaulding Building at Clarendon, the League of Republican Women of Arlington County completed its plans for the subscription 500 and bridge and dance party to be given tomorrow night at Windsor Arms, Glebe road.

According to the president, Mrs. C. W. Harris, cards will be played from 8 to 10:30 o'clock, at which time dancing will begin and continue until midnight.

separate, independent governmental units."

Mr. Roosevelt cited one New York county, in discussing the cost of government, where local taxes had increased from $337,000 in 1900 to $22,000,000 in 1929, an increase of about 59 times. Property values increased only 35 times and population five and one-half times, he said.

Among the measures suggested by the governor were abolition of direct State tax on real estate and personal property, sharing State-collected taxes with localities; granting of State aid and reorganization of local government.

"In New York," he said, "we have evoked all of these methods except reorganization. That has been advocated by my distinguished predecessor (Alfred E. Smith) and by me. The Legislature, for various reasons, has almost wholly neglected or refused to act on proposals to simplify local government, or to make a comprehensive study of local government, looking toward improvements."

BLUE LAW ENEMIES MAP NEW CAMPAIGN

Mayor of Bradford, Pa., Is Reelected President of National Group.

A vigorous offensive against the activities of organizations favoring enactment of Sunday closing laws was mapped out last night at the annual business meeting of the board of directors of the National Association Opposed to Blue Laws. Officers for the coming year were also elected at the meeting in the Willard Hotel.

Mayor Spencer M. De Golier of Bradford, Pa. was reelected honorary president, and Clarence Darrow, of Chicago, internationally known lawyer, was again named chief counsel. William R. Bullion was elected president, to succeed Dr. Joseph A. Themper, who had been executive officer for five terms. Dr. Themper was named treasurer.

Gale Renamed Secretary.

Linn A. E. Gale, who has been secretary since the formation of the national association, was chosen for his seventh year in that office. Dr. J. C. Sorenson was named chairman of the board of directors.

The board of directors for the ensuing year will consist of Gale, Themper, John J. McGinnis, C. B. Rosenberger, Hugh McCaffrey, Marx Lewis, Henry W. Selah, Mrs. Gertrude E. Mackenzie and Henry Flury.

The list of honorary vice presidents remains unchanged and includes Sinclair Lewis, Rupert Hughes, Gov. George W. P. Hunt of Arizona, Secretary of State David C. Winebrenner of Maryland, E. Haldeman Julius, Bishop William Montgomery Brown, the Rev. C. W. Whitmore, of Reisterstown, Md., and the Rev. L. Griswold Williams, of Reading, Pa.

Expansion Efforts Planned.

Chairmen of the various State branches were mainly reelected. Dr. Sorensen, who is also chairman of the national board of directors, was made chairman of the Maryland Association Opposed to Blue Laws. Mr. McCaffrey, who is a justice of the peace in Clarendon, was again elected chairman of the Virginia association.

Profs. Flury, Lewis, Gale and others addressed the meeting briefly, urging more active resistance against the efforts or organizations and the "bigotry trust" to secure laws forbidding Sunday movies and Sunday baseball.

President-elect Bullion in accepting office discussed plans for expanding the organization and strengthening liberal forces in other States.

CORN REFINER PAYS $5,000 IN DRY CASE

Pleads Nolo Contendere to Charge of Plotting to Break Law.

Springfield, Ill., July 6 (A.P.).—The Corn Products Refining Co. of New York was fined $5,000 in Federal Court today on a plea of nolo contendere to charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws.

The Corn Products Co. was named codefendant with the Fleischmann Yeast Co., the J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co. of Keokuk, Iowa, and 43 individuals in a blanket conspiracy charge more than a year ago.

The Hubinger Co. was found guilty of the charge last March, and its permit for the use of alcohol in manufacturing was reported abrogated. The yeast company elected to fight the charge and the Government has until Friday to file briefs supporting its contention.

Defendant Murdered.

One of the individual defendants, Dominic Tarro, was found dead in Springfield soon after the indictment was returned. His body, bound with wire, was found in a stream, but the Government prosecutors insisted the identification was incomplete and retained the charges against him.

The nolo contendere plea was entered by the Corn Products Co. after the conviction of the Hubinger Co. The New York concern was charged with shipping large quantities of corn sugar into Macoupin County for use in manufacturing liquor. By its plea the Corn Products Co. neither admitted nor denied the charge of conspiracy and the case against it was dismissed with the $5,000 fine. The maximum fine for a corporation under the law is $10,000.

Irregularities Admitted.

The Corn Products Co. in its plea asserted that several months prior to the return of the indictment the company had discovered irregularities in the operation of its St. Louis office which had resulted in substantian changes in management. The charges in the indictment were based upon the sale of corn sugar to Dominic Tarro, through the St. Louis office prior to the reorganization.

The plea stated that in September, 1929, the officers of the company received information regarding Tarro's business which resulted in immediate discontinuance of corn sugar sales to him. The plea admitted the company feared it could be found technically guilty of conspiracy, and therefore sought to relieve the expense of litigation by seeking immediate settlement.

Officials to Discuss Potomac Problems

River Conservation Will Be Topic at States' Meeting Here.

Baltimore, Md., July 6 (A.P.).—Conservation officials of Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland plan to meet Thursday in Washington at the invitation of Swepson Earle, Maryland conservation commissioner, to discuss conditions in the Potomac River.

Mr. Earle, in a letter to Henry O'Malley, commissioner of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, said the question of rights on the Potomac where Virginia and West Virginia could use the river in common, had been brought to his attention.

While the United States Supreme Court had confirmed the Maryland attorney general's ruling that control of the river above tidewater was under the jurisdiction of his State, a more cordial feeling and a closer union would react to the benefit of all three States, Mr. Earle said. A concerted effort to cleanse the river of pollution also was desired, he added.

Among the Virginia officials to attend will be A. Willis Robertson, chairman of the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries; Supervising Warden Fletcher, Joseph W. Chinn, commissioner of fisheries, and representatives from the attorney general's office.

2 ELECTIONS HELD IN PRINCE GEORGES

Edmonston Ticket Unopposed; Seat Pleasant Votes for First Time.

Two town elections were held yesterday in Prince Georges County, one of them being the first election of a newly incorporated town and the other being unusual in that the whole ticket up for election was unopposed.

Yesterday's election in Seat Pleasant was thte first held there, the town being incorporated only a few weeks ago. Herman O. Acuff was elected mayor, no candidate having appeared against him, and Irwin I. Main, also unopposed, was elected.

The following councilmen, with the votes they received, were elected: Adrian Fisher, 175; Arthur Jones, 169; Fabian Augustine, 162; Val Armstrong, 118; Dan Moreland, 129. Unsuccessful candidates were John C. Crown, with 114 votes; James Arnold, 111, and William Donn, 97. Of these, Fisher and Armstrong must get permission from the Civil Service Commission before they can take office, both of them being Government employes.

In Edmonston, for the first time in the history of the town, none of the candidates for office was opposed. In spite of this, about 50 complimentary votes were cast out of a registration of about 200.

Those elected are Eldridge W. Lusby, mayor; George W. Sheets, councilman for the Second Ward; Brooke Hunter, councilman for the First Ward; and Henry Eberle, treasurer. Mr. Eberle, who was reelected, has been treasurer of the town ever since it was incorporated six years ago. Mr. Lusby was formerly councilman for the Second Ward and chairward and chairman of the council's road committee. He succeeds W. W. Lewis, former mayor, who declined to run again.

HOOVER TRIUMPHS.

President Hoover's moratorium on reparations and war debts is a reality. With remarkable swiftness and precision the President has brought the whole world into accord with his proposal. Formidable obstacles have been met and overcome. The achievement is all the more significant because the American Government made no sacrifice of principle to bring France into harmony with its plan.

Technical details of the agreement, including reparations in kind, which were the last hurdle, will be left for a committee of experts to decide. But those experts will have no authority to negotiate any question outside of the "broad spirit of the President's proposal." The details which they will settle are relatively unimportant. What the world has been waiting to hear is that reparations and war debts would be actually suspended for one year. For millions of people in the United States and abroad this agreement marks the turn from depression and despair to hope, renewed activity and ultimate prosperity.

One paragraph in President Hoover's statement is especially significant:

> While the plan is particularly aimed to economic relief, yet economic relief means the swinging of men's minds from fear to confidence, the swinging of nations from the apprehension of disorder and governmental collapse to hope and confidence of the future. It means tangible aid to unemployment and agriculture.

This agreement can be interpreted in no other way than as a great victory for President Hoover. He is responsible for the original proposal and for the successful completion of negotiations with France. Tempering firmness with an understanding of the problems of France, he won every substantial point in the negotiations without deviating from his original purpose. Yet the whole agreement has been concluded in an atmosphere of confidence and good will that contribute to the more hopeful economic outlook.

President Hoover worked indefatigably to iron out the differences that arose between the United States and France. In Paris Secretary Mellon kept the negotiations keyed up to a high pitch. No stone was left unturned that might aid in bringing the two governments into complete accord. Seldom, if ever, have international negotiations of this character been pursued so relentlessly. Disagreement has never been contemplated. President Hoover, having set his face grimly toward the goal of reparations relief, has allowed nothing to interfere with the successful completion of his task.

Where no changes in the spirit of the original offer were involved the United States compromised. For the sake of keeping the Young plan intact the American Government agreed that Germany should continue to pay unconditional annuities, but those payments are to be made available to Germany in the form of loans. Another compromise was reached on the length of time that Germany and the debtor nations shall be allowed to make up the suspended payments. But the President has insisted that Germany be relieved, in effect, of all reparations for one year. In that position he now has the support of all interested parties.

The refusal of Mr. Hoover to be drawn into European controversies over reparation payments is highly commendable. The question of guarantee payments was one of the most serious snags struck in the entire negotiations. That matter is to be dealt with by the signatories of the Young plan, of which the United States is not one. Had the United States been drawn into this controversy endless complications might have ensued. President Hoover had no intention of disturbing the international obligations of Germany, or of the allies to the United States. That he was able to keep the negotiations of this moratorium free from entangling and embarrassing agreements is a high tribute to his statesmanship.

At no time did the President allow leadership in the movement to get out of his hands. The French government tried repeatedly to turn the negotiations off into channels that would be particularly advantageous to France. But Mr. Hoover remained firm in his demand that Germany be allowed the full measure of relief contemplated in his original suggestion.

Other interested governments must, of course, accept the terms of the French-American agreement, but there is no doubt that they will do so. Every country has come to the support of Mr. Hoover in this effort to turn back the forces of depression. The approval of Congress too must be secured, but President Hoover has assurance of support from large majorities in both the Senate and House, irrespective of political affiliations.

Since the proposal was first made there have been no serious doubts that a debt holiday would be declared. Nevertheless, the world could not receive the full benefits of the agreement until it was actually completed. The moratorium carries with it such a powerful stimulus that it may well mark a definite turning point toward prosperity.

MR. MACDONALD'S ERROR.

With the authority of the chairmanship of the Senate committee on military affairs behind him and as a member of the American delegation at the London Naval Conference, Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, in courteous but firm language corrects the statements of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to the effect that the military forces of the United States are being increased. The senator contends and gives figures to substantiate his claims that, both numerically and in point of expenditures, very substantial reductions have been made.

"In 1921," says Senator Reed, "our Army appropriation was $494,000,000 and our Army consisted of 255,745 officers and men. This was the size of our regular Army after demobilization of our emergency war-time forces. In the same year our Navy appropriation was $448,000,000 and the Navy's strength in officers and men, 136,950. In 1930 our Army appropriation was $331,000,000 and the total strength of our regular Army had been reduced to 136,750. Today our naval appropriation has come down to $390,000,000 and the strength of officers and men has come down to 88,785."

These reductions unmistakably prove that the United States practices as well as advocates disarmament. The American Army is substantially smaller than that of Great Britain, barely representing minimum needs. In 1921 the British army exceeded that of the United States by 85,000 officers and men. While British forces have been cut from 312,000 to 201,428, the latter figure for this year compares with an American force numbering 130,750.

Senator Reed has done well to challenge the evident misinformation of Mr. MacDonald and make clear the patent lack of militaristic expansion in the American program. This is still further evidenced in any comparison between American and British expenditures if higher costs in the United States are taken into consideration. Higher wage scales add 50 per cent to the expense of building a cruiser in this country, and in the construction of destroyers and submarines the added cost is comparatively much greater here. Another factor to be considered is the rate of pay in the American Army and Navy, which averages 60 per cent higher than in the British service. American efforts for world-wide reduction of armaments have been sincere and disinterested from the initial proposals. Good faith has been demonstrated by the United States through actual curtailment of both appropriations and personnel of the Army and Navy. Premier MacDonald does no service to the cause of disarmament when he assumes a holier-than-thou attitude based on distorted facts.

AMERICA MISUNDERSTOOD.

A group of business leaders from twenty Latin-American republics will visit the United States next October. After attending the fourth annual Pan-American commercial conference they will make a tour of inspection to leading American industrial and commercial centers.

If this visit gives the travelers a clearer understanding of American motives and feeling toward Latin America it will be of the greatest value. The people of this country are largely unaware of the suspicion with which they are regarded in the Southern republics. It is generally thought throughout these countries that America's chief preoccupation is a desire to go down and conquer them. The dread with which "American Imperialism" or "Yanquismo" is regarded, especially in the Caribbean states, is little known in this country.

The American people are not motivated by a desire to terrorize or annex weak countries. Were this the case, conquest would have been accomplished long before now. The superior military strength and resources of this country would make war with any Latin-American republic a one-sided affair. Obviously it is not intimidation that has kept America from invading her Southern neighbors.

The policing of several Latin-American states, as well as other policies necessitating armed intervention, has been criticized, not only abroad but in this country.

Much of that criticism arises because of the general misunderstanding of the attitude of the United States toward Latin America. This Government believes that its duty is to prevent European occupation of any of the weaker states in this hemisphere. It sometimes becomes necessary for Uncle Sam to step in to prevent situations that might justify intervention by European powers. Under such circumstances the United States performs a friendly service to the country in question. Nicaragua is deeply appreciative of the aid given by the United States in stabilizing its government.

Any movement which tends to elucidate the actual relationship between the United States and its neighbors on the South should be welcomed.

HONORED GUESTS.

Post and Gatty are names that will be forever linked in the record of American ahievement. They require no initials, no geographical locations, to identify them. They are the world fliers known to all the world. Washington has been lauding their great exploit from a distance in chorus with the entire country for a fortnight. Yesterday the Capital got acquainted with them in person.

The fliers who circled the top of the world in less than nine days encountered a day of continuous entertainment. They lunched with the President at the White House, they faced eager thousands at the Washington Auditorium to hear again high praise of their skill and courage, and in the evening they were the dinner guests of the National Aeronautical Association.

By the time the fliers have been through the demonstrations in New York, Washington and their own State of Oklahoma, as well as many between and after, they will understand a new phase of American overproduction. But they are hardy fellows and will survive this smothering in flowers, both real and verbal.

This country takes its heroes both seriously and strenuously. Post and Gatty are the latest darlings of the limelight. They are receiving well-earned plaudits for a feat that is unique in the conquest of the air. It not only proved their skill as pilot and navigator, but it enlarged the possibilities of air travel and set the whole world talking aviation as no amount of propaganda could have done. For this feature of their flight, particularly, were the Capital's guests given due credit by their fellow aviators last evening. Aviators may be better able to appreciate the many difficulties Post and Gatty encountered, but all realize the superb character of their exploit and join in their praise.

NATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY

From the New York Evening Post.

So many stupidities are committed in the name of psychology that it is most refreshing to come across something on the subject which has the ring of common sense. Such is Sir Austen Chamberlain's analysis, in the July issue of Foreign Affairs, of British, French and German psychology. The credit for this analysis is not all Sir Austen's. He quotes some delightful sentences from a volume by Prof. Salvador de Madariaga.

The German, remarks the former British secretary of state for foreign affairs, is by nature a systematizer. "He likes to see where he is going, to foresee as far as may be the accidents of the route and to be assured of good accommodation at the end of his journey. 'According to plan.' How often did not the phrase recur during the war in German bulletins?"

> The Englishman, on the other hand, finds such systematic planning irksome and uncongenial. He submits himself to it with reluctance even when circumstances impose it on him and, even while submitting, he distrusts the process in which he is engaged, doubts his power to pierce the mists of the future, and secretly relies on his capacity to meet emergencies as they arise. In difficult times there is no more common ending to a political discussion between Englishmen than the phrase, "Well, I suppose we shall muddle through somehow." It could never occur to a German or a Frenchman to seek consolation in such a reflection.

And what of the Frenchman? At this point Sir Austen turns to Prof. Madariaga, who cites the French and the English—"two peoples * * * whose long intimacy of peace and war might have been expected to develop an accurate mutual knowledge"—as offering "an unrivaled illustration of the psychological obstacles which beset all international work." It is not altogether impossible, observes Prof. Madariaga, to bring the French and the British delegates at Geneva to see eye to eye. "Only," he adds, "their eyes are so different." His explanation of this difference is delicious:

> The whole difficulty comes from the particular region in which the center of gravity of their respective psychologies is situated, which in the Frenchman is above, and in the Englishman below, the neck. The Frenchman thinks with his head and with nothing but his head; the Englishman thinks — or rather, as he himself says, "feels somehow" with everything but his head, and, provided he does not allow his head to meddle with it, he is generally right.

Is this characterization of the Englishman offensive? Not to Sir Austen, who proceeds to relate an anecdote confirming it. When he first saw the passage, he says, he was secretary of state for foreign affairs. It struck him as so acute an analysis of "the characteristic mental processes of two nations which have so much difficulty and yet so great need to understand" each other that he read it to the permanent undersecretary of state, now the British Ambassador at Washington, Sir Ronald Lindsay. Says Sir Austen: "He did not resent or deny the soft impeachment. On the contrary, he exclaimed, 'Isn't that good? I see myself. I constantly come into your room and say: I have a sort of feeling that this would do or that wouldn't.'" And the two men laughed as they looked together into the mirror which Prof. Madariaga had held up to their English nature.

A nation can not change its psychology, no matter how well it understands that psychology. But such understanding is bound to reduce the natural difficulties of its dealings with other nations, especially if it has some inkling of their psychology, too.

POST HASTE.

How did Offenon Finnegan break into this moratorium game?

Secretary Mellon would have enjoyed a more restful vacation if he had taken a job in the Kansas wheat harvest.

The next flying mark to rate a ticker-tape reception and a presidential luncheon will probably have to be nonstop flight to both the North and South poles.

By the time Post and Gatty get through attending hero banquets a round-the-world flight will seem a reposeful experience.

Washington staged a very good exhibition of "throwing the house out the window" for the world fliers, even after they had seen New York do the same.

Mrs. Willebrandt files a suit to determine who owns the air. She evidently does not believe the gas station signs.

Prof. Bradley finds the suppression of cannibalism more poorly enforced among the Congo pigmies than is prohibition in the United States. The open season for head hunters must be thirteen months a year.

Since cellophane wrapping has been discovered to be edible and almost as near food as bran, cigarette companies may soon be vying for breakfast food trade.

Joe Stalin, stallin' for time on the five-year plan, needs credit. But Russia, having decreed a perpetual debt holiday, has nothing to be relieved of.

"A national debt, if not excessive, will be to us a national blessing." How would Alexander Hamilton evaluate the blessedness and excessivity of the $11,000,000,000 European nations would transfer from the credit to the debit side of Uncle Sam's ledger?

Since Von Elm and Burke were even strokes at 72, 108 and 144 holes, it is no discredit that the tide of fortune chanced to favor one at the 180th hole.

Senator Reed gives specific answer to Premier MacDonald's claim that Britain alone has reduced war forces: Since 1921 the United States has reduced Army and Navy expenditures $216,000,000 annually and cut personnel by 143,160 men.

The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States has arrived in Rome after a record-breaking air trip. It would be a Hughes joke if he should settle the Vatican row before Secretary Stimson gets a chance.

A BIRD THAT FLIES IN THE WATER.

There is no stranger bird of fact, and scarcely of fable, says the Christian Science Monitor, than the water ouzel of the northwestern United States—that small, wrenlike poet of white and turbulent currents, that enters the torrent as fearlessly as any grebe. He is a perennial astonishment to such as know the mountain streams that rush from the grave, green hills to seek the sea. For though his feet are unwebbed, his contours those of some singer that delights in leaf and branch, his affection is given to swift water. From it he gains his livelihood; near it he makes his home.

It is something to have witnessed the brisk disappearance of this diver beneath a tumult from which a very brave swimmer would shrink. No dearer contradiction is to be found in avian history. If this bird swims then surely swans may sing. The water ouzel, that flies low above the wildness where trout are turning, flies also when beneath the water, and treads daintily upon the bottom of the stream.

Being Kind to Animals Seems Easy If You Don't Own a Balky Horse.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THIS is the story of a pacifist who discovered a weakness in theories.

Bill Jones was a pacifist. He could see no difference between war and murder.

When he read some admiral's statement that a fleet was merely a police force, necessary to uphold international law, he said impatiently: "Bosh! That might be true if one nation owned the earth; but the business of police is to fight criminals, and fleets fight other fleets, right or wrong."

When he read some statesman's declaration that armies were necessary to protect nations from envious neighbors, he exclaimed: "How utterly absurd! The different States in our union get along without armies. Cities compete without armed forces. The nations could live together in peace if they would. They think armament necessary because they never have tried a more civilized way. They could settle disputes in court as private citizens do. They go to war instead because they have armies and fleets ready for use. Let them disarm and thus remove the temptation to rely on force and they will find it a simple matter to settle all differences by arbitration."

Bill toured the country preaching the faith that was in him and won so much renown that a political party in need of a candidate offered him the nomination for the Presidency. And he was elected.

"Now," said Bill, "I have power enough to lead the nations of the world in paths of peace."

He invited the ambassadors of the powers to a conference and said to them: "War is wicked. Armament encourages warfare. I shall set the world a good example by disarming this great nation, and under no circumstances shall I lead it to war. Will you disarm and help me keep the peace?"

The ambassadors made excuses. Their nations were afraid of one another and dared not leave their frontiers unprotected. They had colonies to keep in subjection and trade routes to protect.

Bill pleaded. He talked economy. He pictured the horror of war. He grew eloquent in praise of ideals. He spoke of brotherly love.

"That's fine and true and noble," said the ambassadors, "but we must arm or be destroyed."

Bill wept. He was bitterly disappointed.

"But how can I disarm," he wailed, "if the other nations won't?"

"Oh, that's easy," said the ambassadors. "Nobody will bother you. Just scrap your guns and sink your ships. It's a great idea."

"Yeah?" said Bill. "So you fellows can jump on us if we don't obey orders. Why, you bullheaded, double-crossing crooks, I'll build a fleet big enough to lick the daylights out of your whole darned crowd."

Doesn't Choose to Run.

Houston Post-Dispatch.

Mr. Coolidge has indicated that he does not choose to run in 1932. From time to time he has indicated he was supporting President Hoover in his policies, from which the inference might fairly be drawn that if the President desired renomination, he would have the aid of his predecessor.

Even before the President's proposal for a war debt moratorium was offered and his renomination made certain thereby Mr. Coolidge was giving indorsement to Mr. Hoover that could not be interpreted in any other way than as an indication of the desire of Mr. Coolidge to see the President succeed himself. In his address at Marion, during the dedication of the Harding tomb, the Massachusetts statesman could have confined his remarks to Harding. But it is notable that he used the occasion to give an unconditional indorsement to the present Chief Executive.

A New Psychology.

New York Herald Tribune.

Another buoyant day on the world's stock exchanges adds its impressive testimony to the psychological value of the Hoover proposal. And in essence it is a matter of psychology. It is a declaration that the nations can, in a crisis, adjourn the whole tangle of political calculation and economic fears which has so often paralyzed their action and can meet a real issue even though it exacts from some a sacrifice of immediate interests. In that light Mr. Snowden's announcement that Great Britain will forego the payments due her from the Dominions is of paramount importance. Under Mr. Hoover's proposal Great Britain would have given up only about $20,000,000 in net payments, and her support of the plan might have appeared to be at little cost to herself. She now offers to give up some $30,000,000 more, which means that for the sake of sanity she is willing to make a sacrifice not so very much less than that asked of France or offered by the United States.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Review of Silver Situation Reveals Distress in Many Lands—Writer Is Glad United States Holds to Gold Standard.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the brief period of less than two years silver has dropped in price from sixty cents an ounce to twenty-six. It is a moot question whether this tremendous drop is due to world-wide depression following in the wake of the war, or whether silver has deliberately been placed upon the toboggan for its "ride" to oblivion, thereby reducing the buying power of more than a thousand millions of people, from the sun-swept plains of Hindustan, Persia, Abyssinia, Mexico to Central and South America, and bringing about the world depression.

It is believed that the precipitate drop in silver within two years was caused by the British government in India and the French government in Indo-China dumping silver on the market to secure gold as a reserve for placing these countries on the gold standard. The results have been extremely unfortunate for the great masses who had their savings locked up in silver. As Mr. Darling, an eminent London banker and economist says, they have been filched of their savings. Their buying power has been reduced just at a time when greatly stimulated by the world-wide influence of motion pictures. The damsels of India can not purchase that beautiful American gingham by cashing in some of their filigree or other ornament. The ragged water boy of Mexico who deposited his silver savings in a disused water jug, secretly sunk in the dirt floor of his miserable hovel, thinking to replace his donkey with a Ford, finds the more he saves the less he has, as silver recedes in price.

China, the largest user of silver, would like to dump, but is unable to do so by reason of everlasting civil war. No doubt silver minted in the splendid new mint in Shanghai is the strong arm of the recognized government at Nanking. However, their minister of finance warns that, once unified, China will go to the gold standard. If China dumps silver it will go to ten cents an ounce or less, and those who are now cheered up by a recent advance of two or three cents, thinking it will recover its old price of sixty cents, will find their hopes futile, for silver has practically been demonetized throughout the world. It is a commodity same as eggs, wheat or copper and much too high at even twenty-six cents an ounce. The use of silver for subsidiary coinage such as shillings, half dollars, quarters and dimes will not save silver. France sets the example of economizing on that small item, substituting copper and nickel for subsidiary small change.

We are on the gold standard and glad of it. John Sherman put us there January 1, 1879, when he resumed specie payments by displaying gold and silver in windows of banks throughout the country. The people soon found they preferred the paper substitutes. Our money system now floats over 300 millions of fiat greenbacks, six million coined silver dollars taking up needed room in the Treasury, belated national bank notes and a volume of reserve flexible currency based on wealth, proudly at par with gold. Bankers jeer our conglomerate money, but if other nations would copy it, perhaps times would greatly mend. Who knows a thing about it after all?

Aged Correspondent Revives Question of Taking Over Islands in Payment of Europe's Debts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Do you remember that after the Civil War the United States had to pay every dollar borrowed from foreign powers? If these European countries do not wish to pay their debts, why should not our Government take over all the islands near our country in payment for their debts? Germany has one near the Panama Canal. There is Jamaica, Bermuda and other islands. If this is brought to the attention of the public it will be interesting to see what results it will bring forth.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

ON GOING OUT.

The women folks look up at me
And cry: "You are not fit to see!
That coat needs brushing, and your tie
Is old and worn, and all awry,
And very shabby is your hat;
Surely you won't go out like that!"

They're fretted by the speck of dirt
Which seems to settle on my shirt,
And should the collar band be worn
Or show a spot that's frayed and torn They'll give the ultimatum flat:
"Now you're not going out like that!"

How easily they dust the coat
And trim the muffler round my throat!
How lightly they apply the touch
Of neatness which I need so much,
That outwardly at least I'll be
What women folks call "fit to see."

Lord, when it comes my time to die,
Let not my spirit be awry.
Grant me the time the while I live
To ask forgiveness and forgive,
That this old soul of mine may be
On its arrival: "fit to see!"

Let some one come to me who knows
Where every little blemish shows
And say: "This bit of wrong repair!
Brush off those dusty signs of care!"
And with the same old friendly pat,
Make sure I don't go out like that!

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Turkish Girl Sends News to Native Land

Miss Kismet Sirri Is Guest at Embassy in Capital.

LIKE a page from an Arabian Nights chapter of old, transported to the whirl of modern journalism, is the tale of Kismet Sirri, "daughter of the Far East," who is a guest this week at the Turkish Embassy, taking a rest from her studies at Rollins College, Florida. Invited to Washington by the ambassador, a friend of her family in far-off Smyrna, the girl is giving the Capital a kaleidoscopic survey, a pencil in one hand and a notebook in the other.

For Miss Sirri, who came to the United States a year ago and is making her visit in Washington, has set a definite path in life—she will follow the footsteps of her father, Mehmet Sirri, widely known journalist of Asia Minor and publisher of two papers in Smyrna. In her eyes the dreams of fantastic lands and in her smile the purpose of the modern young "collegiate" Miss Sirri is having a grand time in the study of events here, social and political.

Each day she cables a news story to her father's papers, the Voice of the People, a Turkish publication, and Le Levant, a paper printed in French.

With one eye on the morning newspapers and the other on her college schedule at Rollins the ambitious young woman from out of the East has spent a strenuous year at school where she is registered for "everything" pertaining to journalism. Rising with the tide of emancipation for women in the lands of the Mediterranean the girl with the symbolic name is here to imbibe all she can of American methods of gathering and assembling the news and intends to remain here another year as a student at her chosen college in the South.

A former student of the American Collegiate Institute in Smyrna she speaks perfect English and throughout the winter dispatched articles on college life to the student publication in her native city. After a short visit at the embassy Miss Sirri will go to New York where she makes her home when not in college and plans to spend a part of her vacation at a girls' camp in order to further study the daily lives of students, whether at study or play.

The visit of the pretty child of fate, for that is what her name, Kismet, means, recalls another maid from Turkey who spent some time in Washington a few years ago, acting as secretary at the embassy by way of recreation from her studies at the University of Chicago.

She is Miss Zedide Beha, who came to Washington to relieve Miss Elizabeth Nelson, who is now Mrs. Jack Tate, and who had been serving as social and private secretary to Mr. Ahmet Muhtar, Ambassador also at that time.

Miss Beha's boundless energy and ambition to adapt Western ways and to secure a basic knowledge of the educational methods of this country was a source of wonderment to her friends, who were numerous in the Capital. Like Miss Sirri, she came to America to assimilate the fun and work of the Western world. At the completion of her work here Miss Beha returned to Chicago University.

Vice President Curtis Returns to Capital.

The Vice President, Mr. Charles Curtis, has returned to Washington after passing several weeks in Topeka, Kans. He is with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, in their home in Cleveland Park, for the summer.

The Vice President and his sister were the ranking guests last evening at the Willard at the dinner given for the round-the-world fliers, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty. The dinner was given by the Washington Board of Trade and the National Aeronautic Association.

Count Laslo Szechenyi, Minister of Hungary, sailed last night on the Bremen for Europe and will go to his home in Budapest. Also on the boat was the Norwegian Minister, Mr. H. Bachke, who sailed for Bergen.

The First Secreary of the Norwegian Legation, Mr. Leonhard C. P. Offerdahl, who returned from Norway last week, will act as charge d'affaires, in the absence of the minister. Mme. Offerdahl, who is also spending the summer in Europe, will rejoin her husband here later in the season.

MISS KISMET SIRRI, who is visiting at the Turkish Embassy for a short time. Miss Sirri is a student at Rollins College, Florida, and will remain in this country another year before returning to her home in Smyrna.

Miss Abercrombie Back From Wedding.

Miss Clara Abercrombie has returned to Washington from Chestnut Hill, Pa., where she went to attend the marriage of Miss Constance Morris, of Villanova, to Mr. William E. Goodman 3d. She was accompanied to Philadelphia by her sister, Mrs. Thomas A. Wilson, who will not return to Washington until the fall.

Miss Helen Davis, daughter of Gov. Gen. Dwight F. Davis of the Philippine Islands, who sailed recently from Seattle to join her father, arrived at Manila on Sunday and was met by Gov. Gen. Davis, who returned from a tour of the islands especially to meet his daughter at the boat. Disembarking also was Senator Key L. Pittman, of Nevada.

Miss Mabel Boardman has established her summer residence at Northern Lights, her cottage at Point-au-Pic, Murray Bay, Canada, having left Washington about ten days ago. Also at Murray Bay is Mrs. William Howard Taft, who went there earlier in the season in accordance with a long established custom, as the late Mr. Taft spent his holidays there for 30 years or more. Miss Laura Harlan, also a devotee of Murray Bay, always goes there, the Late Justice Harlan having had a summer home there. Others who frequent the resort are Mrs. Ezra Butler McCagg, who has a cottage there, Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Fairbanks and Mr. and Mrs. Allen P. Sherman.

Canadian Trip Is Arranged by Montefuerte

Retiring Counselor of Spanish Embassy Leaves Today.

The retiring Counselor of the Spanish Embassy, Count de Montefuerte will leave Washington today and will go to Niagara Falls for a visit and from there to Montreal to pass a few days. He will visit Quebec and will go from there to Boston for a short stay and will then board the Cristobal Colon to sail for New York, from where the boat will sail for Europe on July 15.

Count de Montefuerte was the guest in whose honor a group of his young American friends entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower.

It is with great regret that his friends bid farewell to Count de Montefuerte. He has been in Washington a little over a year, and in that time has served both the monarchy and the republic with equal ability. After the resignation of the former Ambassador, Senor Don Alejandro Padilla y Bell, the Count assumed the duties of Charge d'Affaires, and though he was serving a government which was opposed to the principles of his party, he served Spain to the best of his ability, and remained in charge of the Embassy until the new Ambassador, Senor Salvador Madariaga, arrived to relieve him of the difficult duty.

The Counselor of the Italian Embassy, Count Alberto Marchetti di Muriaglio, has returned to the Capital after passing the week-end at Newport, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Rennert have as their guest, Mrs. Consuelo Hooper, of New York.

Mrs. John Francis Butler, widow of the former Commercial Attache of the American Embasy in Paris, and Secretary of the American Embassy in London, will sail July 16 on the America for France.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hopkins and Miss Clara Pierce, of Philadelphia, Pa., accompanied by Dr. Alice Carson, of Latvia, are passing several days at the Powhatan.

Mr. John Baldwin Cochran and Mr. William Bowie Clarke have returned to Washington after a motor trip through Virginia. They stopped off in Virginia Beach to spend a few days.

Miss Sherry Snodgrass has joined her mother, Mrs. Ray Snodgrass, at their apartment at the Shoreham Hotel. Miss Snodgrass is now on a vacation from Sharpsville Academy. After spending a few weeks with her mother, Miss Snodgrass plans to go to Camp Greenwood, Va., during August.

Doris Kelly Is Married to Mr. Nutwell

Ceremony in Church Is Followed by Wedding Breakfast.

St. Gabriel's Church on Grant Circle was the scene of an attractive wedding at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, when Miss Doris Lucille Kelly, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James W. Kelly, of 4512 Illinois avenue northwest, and Mr. James Joseph Nutwell were married.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Betty Ann Kelly, and Mr. Nutwell had as his best man Mr. Vincent Paul Lester. The bride was given in marriage by her father, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father John J. Sweeney.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the country estate of Mrs. Urban Wagner, an aunt of the bride, of Silver Spring, Md., after which the couple left for a wedding trip, which will include Atlantic City, New York and Canada.

Numerous showers have been given for Mrs. Nutwell who is a member of the Beta Chi Sorority. They will be at home to their friends after July 15 at 3600 Connecticut avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred King have returned to their apartment at the Shoreham after spending the holiday week-end at their former home in Parkersburg, W. Va.

Lieut. and Mrs. Charles Summerall, jr., have as their guests at their home in Fort Myer the latter's parents, Col. and Mrs. Russell P. Reeder, of Fort Leavenworth, Kans. They will spend the summer with the Summeralls. Lieut. and Mrs. Summerall had as their guests recently the former's parents, the former Chief of Staff, U. S. A., and Mrs. Charles P. Summerall, who are spending the summer at Valle Crucis, N. C.

Mrs. Reginald Cocroft, wife of Maj. Cocroft, now on temporary duty at Fort Sheridan, will be hostess to a party at dinner on the Shoreham Terrace tomorrow evening.

HEARINGS UPON GAS SERVICE AND STOCK SET IN SEPTEMBER

Public Utilities Commission Announces Program of Investigation.

RATES AND PRESSURE INQUIRY TO BE FIRST

Pierce May Be Summoned for Quiz Concerning Alleged Holdings.

The Public Utilities Commission late yesterday set the dates of the proposed gas hearings on general service and ownership for the latter half of September. The rate and pressure inquiry will begin on September 14, while the ownership hearing is scheduled for September 21.

Orders for both sessions will be drafted by Earl V. Fisher, executive secretary, this week. Notices of intention to hold the hearings were sent out by the commission several weeks ago.

Rate Adjustment Scheme.

Among the items to be considered at the first hearing will be the bills rendered by the Washington and the Georgetown Gas Light Companies during the last eight months, pressures during the same period, minimum and maximum pressures to be allowed in the future, the adequacy of the present transmission systems, and rates, particularly insofar as they are affected by pressure.

A scheme of adjusting rates accordingly whenever pressure exceed the maximum established by the commission. The gas companies have asked that the maxium pressure be raised from the present temporary 8 inches to 10 inches and that the minimum be increased from 2 to 3 inches.

Pierce May be Called.

The purpose of the ownership hearing is to ascertain who controls the local gas concerns so that the commission can decide whether to seek a dissolution under the La Follette anti-merger act. Last winter and spring the corporation counsel's office and the Department of Justice conducted an intensive investigation which indicated that the present ownership is in violation of this law.

Some difficulties are likely to be encountered by the commission in bringing the alleged owners to the hearing, however, because of the question of jurisdiction. A. E. Peirce, who is reported to be the principal owner, may be forced to appear, even though his residence is in Chicago, because he was recently elected a director of the Georgetown Gas Light Co.

Arson, Housebreaking Charged in Indictment

Eustace Bailey, Negro, was indicted yesterday on charges of arson and housebreaking. He is accused of having broken into the offices of the Action Fuel Company, 911 South Capitol street, November 25, and in an effort to hide the telltale fingerprints he feared he had left, he is alleged to have fired the building.

Police reported that a huge iron safe in the offices had been battered open, and firemen reported that they were suspicious of the origin of the fire. About all the loot obtained, police said, were checks of no value to any one but the officers of the coal company.

2 Men Are Indicted In Fatal Fight Cases

Death of Frank Starling, Negro, June 13, yesterday led to an indictment charging Lorenzo Ferguson, Negro, with murder. The two are alleged to have been fighting when Ferguson struck Starling with a brick and killed him. The fight was at Ninth and O streets northwest.

A second degree murder indictment was returned against Richard Wise, Negro, in connection with the death of Willie Turner, another Negro, who was stabbed fatally in a fight over a cigarette June 25, in front of 1207 Fourth street northwest.

'Legs' Diamond's Friend Murdered in Beer War

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Charles Entratta, pal of Jack "Legs" Diamond, gangster, was shot to death shortly after noon today. He was the victim, police said, of a Brooklyn beer war in which the name of Al Capone has figured recently. His slaying was the sixth in seven weeks in Brooklyn and the Bronx by warring beer factions.

Entrata was in the private office of a Brooklyn bottling works when three men entered. The marked man made a move toward a side door, but the three fired ten shots at him and five hit. He was said to be a sales manager for the bottling concern.

Railroad Traffic To Capital Held Up

Cloudburst Causes Creek Near Baltimore to Quit Its Banks.

Railroad traffic from New York to Washington was halted for more than two hours last night, when train No. 127 from New York became disabled near Herberts Run, a few miles out of Baltimore, when it tried to plow through a flood on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks.

Northbound traffic was unimpeded by the flood which was caused by a cloudburst that overflowed Herberts Run and pooled on the southbound tracks. Train No. 127 was sent through the miniature lake.

Mud piled up on the tracks and disabled the pony trucks underneath the engine. A relief engine was sent from Baltimore. Train No. 127, which was due at Union Station at 6:05 p. m., did not arrive here until 8:20. Trains following No. 127 were also slightly delayed.

Woman Reindicted In Operation Death

Hazel Chinn Released on $2,000 Bond After She Returns to City.

Because she returned to the District after she told United States Attorney Leo A. Rover that she would leave if an indictment charging her with a criminal operation was nolle prossed, Miss Hazel M. Chinn was reindicted by the grand jury yesterday. She is at liberty on a $2,000 bond.

Miss Chinn is alleged to have assisted David Leroy Russell in an operation that resulted fatally for Miss Thelma R. Cain, 19-year-old stenographer, last December. Russell entered a plea of guilty and was given four years by Justice Peyton Gordon. At that time Miss Chinn was given her liberty because the indictment, insofar as it pertained to her, was dropped.

After Russell was sentenced, Miss Chinn went to New York City with a wealthy welfare worker, who obtained a position in New York for her. As soon as this woman left for Europe, Miss Chinn returned to Washington, it was said, and got a position at the Department of Commerce. The District attorney's office discovered that she had returned to the District and the original charge was placed before the grand jury and an indictment was requested.

JURY CLEARS POLICE OF GRAFT SUSPICION

Tells Justice Gordon Inquiry Gives Department Clean Bill of Health.

In a special report to Justice Peyton Gordon yesterday the District Grand Jury gave the Metropolitan Police Department a clean bill of health, insofar as the investigation of graft in the downtown area is concerned.

The investigation was launched following an interview Harry N. Douthitt, former editor of the Bluecoat, gave while he was a patient at Casualty Hospital recovering from an attack made upon him by two men who invaded his home at the Portner Apartments.

In that interview, Douthitt expressed the opinion that there was an "ice bill" in the First Precinct. He repudiated the interview by stating that when he was questioned he was still in a semicoma from the concussion of the brain he sustained when he was beaten.

Douthitt went before the grand jury and explained that he did not know what he was saying because he was at that time too ill. He said that he knew nothing of any graft in the Police Department.

Pennsylvanian Dead Of Auto Crash Hurts

The accident occurred at Fourteenth and Clifton streets northwest as the brothers were about to enter their automobile. A taxicab, driven by Leonard Gray, colored, sidewiped their automobile. Gray is being held for a coroner's inquest today.

Auto Seen to Overturn But Can Not Be Found

Prince Georges County police last night searched in vain for the scene of an accident reported to them by Capt. Maurice Collins, of the Seventh Precinct. Capt. Collins said that while driving on the Marlboro pike, about a mile from the District line, a car passed him which narrowly avoided striking another machine.

The other machine, Capt. Collins said, overturned in attempting to avoid the collision. He overtook the machine of the driver which was at fault inside the District line and obtained the name of the driver, which he turned over to county officials. Police and newspapermen were unable to find any signs of the crash. No injured person applied for treatment at Washington hospitals.

2 MILLION GAIN SEEN IN TAX COLLECTIONS

Gasoline and Water Totals Show Large Increases Over 1930.

Total tax collections by the District government during the fiscal year just ended are expected to exceed by nearly $2,000,000 the collections during the preceding fiscal year, according to Chatham M. Towers, tax collector, who is preparing his annual report for the District Commissioners.

Tabulations made so far show that the 36 per cent increase in water rates, put in effect last July, brought $315,026 additional in revenues to the District treasury. A substantial gain was made also in collections from the 2-cent tax on gasoline.

Collections on water rent totaled $1,717,300 last year as compared to $1,402,274 during the fiscal year 1930. They fell $40,374 short of the estimate of Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor. The rates were raised from a minimum of $6.36 to $8.75 for 7,500 cubic feet of water.

Gasoline tax collections amounted to $1,659,264, an increase of $181,312 over the previous year. The collections also exceeded by $148,636 the estimate of $1,897,900 made by the auditor's office.

SEX DISCRIMINATION FOUGHT BY WOMEN

Clubs Session at Richmond Asked to Act on Issue in Trade, Professions.

Richmond, Va., July 6 (A.P.).—Representatives of America's working women, at a round table discussion today, resolved to ask the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, in session here, to act officially against reported sex discrimination in teaching, business and professions.

Resolutions calling upon the convention of the body, of which they were delegates, to take action in the matter were offered by Mrs. Laura H. Penn, of Martinsville, Va., following a round table address on "Teaching" by Madelyn Seabright, of Cheyenne, Wyo., who said teachers and business women are facing the problem of sex discrimination in wages, matrimony, and lack of public recognition professionally and economically.

At the round table on the legal profession, Judge Grace A. Miles, of Montgomery County, Kansas, asserted women lawyers are about 75 per cent better in probate work than men. Another round table, led by Miss Dora M. Moran, of Madison, Wis., discussed the complexities of the income tax law.

With the conclusion of the day's round table sessions officers of the National Federation attended a "president's dinner" at which the principal address was by Emily R. Kneubuhl, New York, executive secretary of the Federation, who said: "By virtue of the fact that business women possess economic independence; that no one can tell them what they must do or what they can not do, they have an almost undreamed power."

The dinner was followed tonight by a reception at the Virginia Executive Mansion, where the guests were received by Mrs. Suzanne Pollard Boatright, of Washington, D. C., daughter of Governor Pollard.

Marion C. McClench, president of the Federation, announced tonight that she will read a mesage from President Hoover to the convention at the Thursday night session. The reading will be radio broadcast.

Takoma Park Fire Being Investigated

Incendiarism Suspected in Bungalow Blaze; Loss Placed at $5,000.

Fire Marshal Oscar W. Scherger, of Takoma Park, Md., is investigating a mysterious fire which early yesterday destroyed a vacant bungalow at Fourth and Eastern avenues, Takoma Park, Md. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin.

The Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department was called to the scene by neighbors but the fire had gained such headway that they could do little more than prevent the spread to nearby houses. The firemen could ascribe no cause for the fire yesterday.

Marshal Scherger was burned on the neck by a spark in the course of the fire, and another fireman, whose name was not made known, had two tires blown out when he skidded into a curb on Eastern avenue while responding to the alarm. Damage was estimated at $5,000.

Capital Woman Buys Famous Florida Baths

Palm Beach, Fla., July 6 (A.P.).—Gus' Baths, widely known bathing beach and casino here, was sold at a foreclosure auction today for $25,000 to Mrs. Cooper C. Lightbown, of Washington, D. C., wife of a former Palm Beach mayor.

The Lightbowns hold mortgages of more than $40,000 on the property. No plans for the future of the resort were disclosed.

Mrs. Cooper C. Lighbown, who makes her home in Washington, at 4803 Colorado avenue northwest, said last night she had received no confirmation of the deal. She said she had no plans for utilizing the property under the circumstances and that Mr. Lightbown, who is now in Palm Beach, is handling the entire affair.

DIARY MAY AID HUNT FOR EVELYN WILSON

opinion his daughter had been kidnaped by a jealous suitor whom, she told him in letters, she had refused to marry.

Police had two minor clews tonight. A black silk purse, the girl is believed to have carried from her sister's apartment when she left, was found in a gutter in front of the building.

Those who attended the party told of a telephone call received a few minutes before Miss Wilson left. The person calling said he evidently had the wrong number and hung up. The number of the apartment telephone is unlisted, and police were trying to learn whether the call was a cue for Miss Wilson to leave.

Miss Wilson was born in Chicago and appeared there as a motion picture and stage actress. In 1919 she was in the cast of George White's "Scandals" and later went to Hollywood.

Marriage, Divorce On Decline Here

288 Weddings, 26 Separations Fewer in Capital, Found in 1930.

Both marriage and divorce are on the decline in the District, according to census figures made public yesterday by the Commerce Department. The department's compilation showed 5.1 per cent fewer marriages here in 1930, and a 22 per cent decrease in divorces under 1929.

There were 5,346 marriages performed here last year, 288 less than the year before. Last year 93 divorces were granted, compared with 115 in 1929. The 1930 low in both classes compared with a peak of 5,760 marriages and 161 separations in 1922.

Census statisticians estimated that, on the basis of an estimated population of 488,000, there were 11 marriages for every 1,000 of population, against 11.7 in 1929, and the number of divorces last year was 0.19, compared with 0.24 the year before. Twenty-one marriages were annulled here last year, and 27 in 1929.

POPE IS CRITICIZED BY FASCIST PRESS

Encyclical Is Attacked as Ban on Editorials Is Lifted by Government.

Rome, July 6 (A.P.).—The war of words between the Vatican and the government was resumed today when Rome newspapers attacked the Pope on the score of his encyclical issued Saturday. The government lifted its restriction on editorial attacks and newspapers vigorously utilized the opportunity to criticize the Pope for sending the document abroad in what is described as a secret manner.

The government, although refraining from detailed comment, called attention to the fact that the encyclical was allowed to be distributed in churches in Italy and the newspaper Osservatore Romano, in which it was published, was sold on newsstands.

The encyclical is called "a new fact" in official circles and the government was said today to feel that the negotiations had been made "very delicate" by it.

It was implied in government circles that progress by diplomats was impossible if the problems at issue between the government and the Holy See were heatedly debated in the press of the world.

Exactly what the government will do, if anything, and the tone of its next note to the Vatican will be determined finally at Thursday's cabinet meeting.

The question will come up at the meeting of the directorate of the Fascist party tomorrow. Premier Mussolini will preside at this meeting, but it is probable that nothing will be made known about the policy the government will pursue until Mussolini, as chief of the state, acts at the cabinet session.

It is considered possible that the Fascist party, as a party organization, may issue a manifesto or fix a plan of conduct for the church as its reply to the Pope's encyclical criticizing Fascism.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

IN the previous article of this series the family names "Morris," "Maurice," "Fitzmaurice," &c. were discussed, especially when these names are found in England and Ireland. Concerning the name "Fitzmaurice" it may be remarked that "Fitz" is an Old French form of the Latin "filius" meaning "the son." However, especially in Ireland a name beginning with "Fitz" by no means always indicates Norman French ancestry. In that country many families adopted the prefix "Fitz" as a substitute for "Mac," sometimes because of a belief that "Fitz" was more aristocratic.

In Germany the family names which are the equivalent of "Maurice" are very numerous. Some of the commonest are "Mauritze," "Mauritz" and "Moritz." German Jewish families have frequently given the personal name "Moritz" to their children because the name is suggestive of the personal name "Moses."

Old documents sometimes show the name "Maurice" in its Latin forms "Mauritius" and "Mauricius." A very early English record bears the name of Mauricius filius Mauricii, which may be translated Maurice the son of Maurice.

"Maurice" is frequently given as a personal name in France, but in that country, as in Germany, it is especially common among Jewish families who have chosen it because it is suggestive of the personal name "Moses." The French form of "Moses" is "Moise."

The Italian equivalent of "Maurice" is "Maurizio." A few of its many variations as Italian family names are "Maurigi," "Morigi," "Morselni" and "Morrizo."

A Mode Interprets the Mode

This lovely black taffeta evening gown uses tucks, pleated bounces and strass buttons for its charm. (Courtesy of Philippe et Gaston, Paris.)

New York, July 6.

OF COURSE, it's not logical and it's not reasonable and in a way it's too absurd * * * but delightfully so! And if she wants to a woman can always fall back on the age-old excuse that she's not supposed to be governed strictly by reason. I'm talking about the wearing of furs in summer, for fur this summer is smarter than ever it was before. And though a scornful male might say that an organdie collar would be cooler, what woman cares when she knows that the soft, white ermine scarf is more becoming * * * as well as smart.

Fox fur scarfs, however, are not being worn much by the smartest women. Fox fur to trim satin and marocain afternoon coats, yes, but not separate scarfs over street dresses. I've told you often, haven't I, that as soon as a chic thing becomes very popular it loses its chic. And that's what has happened to fox scarfs. There were too many of them seen about the place and they've lost their distinction. That's what Jean Patou says, too. And he's launching sable to replace fox scarfs and fox trimming. And sable, we know, can never suffer from an excess of popularity to destroy its smartness for obvious reasons, n'est-ce pas?

Fur trimmed jackets—either with a hip border of fur or bordered entirely in fur, for some reason or other, are extremely smart for summer wear. Lynx is the preferred fur for this bordering business. Lynx has a soft way of blowing in the slightest breeze that gives one an appearance at least of being in a cool breeze even if it's very warm! A three-quarter coat in dark green transparent wool had a border of white lynx and was worn over a white crepe frock at a recent collection of one haut couturier. The effect called forth "Ahs" of admiration, honestly.

And o-o-o-o-oh the things they're doing with pleats and tucks these days! And when the two are combined—wel-l-l, it defies words, so I have sketched the result for you instead! Philippe et Gaston made this evening gown of black taffeta with a severely plain bodice, and in this way accentuated the pointed tucking around the hips, and the rows and rows of finely pleated, pointed flounces. The shoulder straps are of pale, flesh-rose color—almost invisible, indeed, and giving the gown an astonishing air of being held up by nothing much at all! And the tab at the base of the deep back decolletage is buttoned fast by three strass buttons.

• • • •

Why don't you use pleated flounces and odd tucks and things in your evening wear? It's the latest—and loveliest—way of being different!

• • • •

The clever-little-lady-who-really-knows has enough common sense to know that no matter how little she pays for a gorgeous fox scarf in these days when prices are way down, it won't be really a stylish economy unless the fox looks like a millyun dollar one! 'N' the way to make a quite good fox look like one of the awfully expensive ones is to keep it properly put away, where it is free from dust and roughing contacts. And naturally, the more clever you are, the quicker you'll sit down and get your stamped, self-addressed envelope off to the Dare department of The Washington Post for this week's leaflet that tells how to make a very original and attractive bag to keep your scarf in!

Also, we want you to look for the weekly Dare fashion letter in the big Sunday Washington Post.

—FRANCES M'DONALD—

Radio Minded.

DEAR Frances McDonald—Am I a crab, an eccentric—or what? I have been calling on a certain girl for some months with the most serious intentions. We go out a great deal, her choice always being the more noisy places, racket and jazz, and the cheaper music being her idea of life. At her house, from the time I arrive until I leave, on the one evening a week that we stay in, the radio is going full blast without interruption the entire evening, no one paying the least attention to what is being said, sung or played, just a big blare of sound seems to be all that is desired. At first I suggested that as no one was listening to the program we might have a little quiet, but in ten minutes she was up and tuning in. I asked her why. She replied that it was DEAD in the place when the radio was off! To me it was unthinkable that people live like that. It has completely done for our romance. I can see myself coming home each night to a wife who demanded a din of radio and confusion. Of course, I can find a wife without this complex, but do you think it a terrible thing that people are becoming so accustomed to blare as a part of their lives?

EX-LOVER.

Not all people are so afflicted. Your sweetheart happened to be of the group that is very close to the moron mentality to start with. These people have for years been going about in a daze, unequal to the task of making conversation or doing any connected thinking whatsoever. They were often embarrassed by the conversational and social activities of others. The radio has been their heaven-sent boon. It relieves them of all effort. They can turn it on and let their minds go blank. This they do. They start at seven in the morning. And continue until time to retire. They are a sore trial to their intelligent neighbors, but then the more intelligent the neighbor the more he feels that the moron is as much the work of the Creator as he, and therefore entitled and indeed welcome to whatever he may be able to get from life. So the dying soprano and the earnest exhorter who sounds as if the roof of his mouth had been blown out and never replaced, take turns filling the atmosphere with meaningless noise, and the morons in their daze hardly hear them!

You are sensible and wise to seek other interests, as the girl will never be normal. She will find a mate on her own mental level and they will have a radio if the children have to starve. And their offspring would quite probably rather starve than live without lots and lots of gargling barytones shouting down earnest exhorters and blaring bands. It is great. But it is life. So try to like it.

What Today Means to You

"CANCER."

IF July 7th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to noon, from 3:10 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 11:15 p. m. The danger hours are from 12:30 p. m. to 2:45 p. m., and from 5:30 p. m. to 8 p. m.

July 7 should, according to the planetary aspects, bring good luck all round, as the influences are most propitious. Changes can be made with confidence; new enterprise is favored. It is also an auspicious occasion for engagements and marriages; happiness will result from both.

A child born on this July 7th will have an artistic temperament and show a marked taste for music. It will be intellectual, kind-hearted and affectionate. Girls will be good wives and excellent mothers; boys will be ambitious, industrious, unselfish and clever-minded.

Born on July 7th, your will is a strong one, but should be kept under better control. A forceful character is a valuable asset, only when it is properly asserted. It is a liability—and a serious one at that—when it tramples on others' rights and is selfishly exploited. You are apt to adopt the latter method more than the former. Your aggressiveness could, with advantage, be clothed in silk and velvet, rather than brazenly attired in steel armor.

You possess fair intelligence, and are a quick thinker, and a rather impulsive actor. Your emotions are very strong, and you judge others too much by externals.

When things go wrong with you, and they do so very often, you are never a very fair judge of the contributory causes? You always decide, in your mind, that you are in no way to blame, and can always present an "alibi" which places the fault on others or on circumstances. Your attitude in sports and recreations is permeated with this idea. You are a broadcasting winner, but a mighty poor loser.

Your horoscope indicates many ups and downs; more crosses than crowns. Your disposition is affectionate, but you will be spiritually lonely, unless you cultivate less overbearing ways, and acquire a modest spirit.

Culbertson on Contract

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

"DOUBLE, DOUBLE, TOIL AND TROUBLE."

"FREE DOUBLES" or "Sporting Doubles," lingering over into the game of Contract in its early days from the game of Auction, are growing less frequent among wise players pitted against keen competition.

Many a "Free Doubler" has realized, to his great discomfort and financial loss, that bidding among good Contract players had become an art of precise inferences by which not only honor-trick values but also distributional values may be indicated between smart partners by bidding conventions which are, or should be, open books to Declarer and opponents alike. Wise Declarers take courage from their inferences and wise opponents should take warning. A "Free Doubler" received a jolting lesson from the following hand:

Contract Deal
North-South vulnerable—
No score

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♥ (1)	3♣ (2)	Dbl. (3)	Pass
4♦ (4)	Pass	5♦	Pass
6♦ (5)	Dbl. (6)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—This is the type of hand with which many players unsoundly employ a Forcing two-bid. A question between the diamond and the heart bid may be considered close by some, but an entirely wrong inference as to distribution would be conveyed to the partner by bidding the diamonds first. The fact of 150 honors is, of course, negligible when compared to the importance of accurate bidding to reach game.

2—A fine bid, announcing to partner a strong trump suit, together with more than 3 honor-tricks.

3—North's Double is, of course, for penalties and to inform partner. He can count not less than 2 trump tricks, which, together with the 2-½ honor-tricks shown by partner, gives him a fair prospect of setting the contract and as the bidding stands, he has no other way of indicating the strength of his hand to his partner.

4—South's four diamonds is a Forcing bid and commits the partnership to keeping the bidding open until they have arrived at a game contract or better.

5—A daring bid, not at all justified by the bidding between partners. It assumes too much. North's Double of the club might have been based upon the King-Knave tenace in clubs, but South reasoned that if this were the case, North must have the Ace of spades. Support of the diamonds suggested short hearts, four diamonds and five clubs, which made the Slam try seem like a good gamble to a partnership far down on the losing side of the score pad.

6—West's "Sporting Double," in the face of strong distributional values indicated by the opposing bidding, was flying in the face of Providence. After the disaster he stated that he expected, with his 3-½ honor-tricks, including the King of hearts sitting over the adverse heart bid, to set the contract not less than 3 tricks.

West opened with the King of clubs, which was taken in the Dummy. Declarer led a heart, which he took with the Ace in the closed hand. Trumping two hearts, he set up the suit, exhausted the opponents' trump, and ran down his hearts and conceded a spade trick to the Doubler.

West's "Free Double" turned out to be not quite so free as he had imagined it to be. It cost his side 220 points, 6 tricks in diamonds at their doubled value and 100 points additional for making a doubled contract while vulnerable. The Penalty Double of Auction, which was an absurd term even in that game, was supposed to be "Free Double" when the opposing bidding had carried the auction beyond the game limit and there was no danger declaring over a game. In the case of Contract, however, the higher the bid of well informed players manipulating a winning system, the more dangerous it is to double for penalties unless, of course, the declaring side is intentionally over-bidding for the purpose of maneuvering opponents into a contract that they can not make, or out of a game contract by way of a sacrificial bid.

Today's Pointer.

The Forcing principle commits the partners with strong hands containing suit bids to keep the bidding open until game is contracted for, the object being to select the best bid without risking a premature pass.

The Opening Forcing two-bid of a suit is merely a gigantic Approach bid. It tells partner that the Opening bidder has sufficient strength in his own hand to take full responsibility for committing the partnership to a movement toward game that must not stop until the objective of a game declaration is reached.

PERSONNEL CHANGED AT NAVAL ACADEMY

Superintendent Flown Back From Week-End Passed in Connecticut.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 6.—Three important changes in academic departments at the Naval Academy became effective today. Commander A. M. Penn, who has been on duty at the engineering department at Washington, was installed as head of the department of marine engineering, succeeding Capt. Frank W. Sadler, who has relieved Capt. A. T. Church as dean of the postgraduate school. Capt. Church has been transferred to sea duty. Commander Penn was dean of the postgraduate school a few years ago.

Capt. Louis B. McBride reported for duty as head of mathematics, succeeding Commander W. E. Rossell. The latter has been transferred to duty temporarily as the naval member of the faculty of Boston Tech, to which institution student officers at the postgraduate school are detailed for advanced courses of study.

Commander W. W. Smith has assumed duty as executive officer in the department of discipline, succeeding Commander John S. Barloon, transferred to the department of electrical engineering and physics.

These transfers practically complete the changes in department chiefs. There will be a number of changes among junior officers assigned as instructors before the next regular academic term begins in September, however.

Making the round trip in an observation amphibian plane from the Naval Air Station at Anacostia, Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, superintendent of the Naval Academy, returned to Annapolis late today after passing the Fourth and week-end with his family, who are summering at Sharon, Conn. Lieut. N. I. June, of the Corps of Navy Fliers instructing midshipmen of the second class in aeronautics at Annapolis, was at the throttle of the plane.

Admiral Hart is keenly interested in aviation, and particularly the summer course of the midshipmen. A few days ago he went aloft with a group of midshipmen. Ten expert Navy fliers are here as instructors, and as many planes of the P. M. 3-1 type are being used for the summer course which began early in June, and is under supervision of Commander Dewitt C. Ramsay. The first part of the course was devoted to ground-work aviation.

Now the midshipmen are being taken on daily flights at different intervals to gain knowledge in flight tactics. They are not put at the controls, however. The summer course calls for a total of five hours of actual flying.

RIOTS IN KOREA SEEN AS THREAT TO JAPAN

Government Menace Feared as 60 Chinese Are Slain in New Outbreak.

Tokyo, July 6 (A.P.).—Fears were expressed here tonight that sanguinary clashes of Chinese and Koreans in Koreo and Manchuria might lead to demonstrations against Japanese authority in Korea and widespread Chinese attacks upon the half million Koreans in Manchuria and Mongolia.

Dispatches to Japanese newspapers said numerous attempts to turn riots into an anti-Japanese, or independence movement, were made by Korean mobs, who killed three score Chinese and wounded several hundred others in Korea yesterday.

Japanese residents in various towns took measures to protect themselves despite reassuring statements of authorities.

Attack Japanese Police.

The Japanese dispatches pointed out that the movement against Japanese resulted in the Korean rioters at Chemulpo, near Seoul, attacking Japanese police stations with stones and breaking windows.

The outbreak of Koreans against Chinese at Chemulpo was the most serious interracial clash in recent years, the rioters numbering 6,000 to 8,000. Thirty-seven Chinese were killed and hundreds injured.

Korean attacks upon Chinese took place also at Pingyang, Korea, last night, the rioters killing 29 Chinese and wounding more than 300.

Japanese civil authorities at Seoul were expected to ask for military aid should further outbreaks of Koreans occur.

Retaliate for Assaults.

The Korean attacks were in retaliation for assaults by 500 Chinese upon 200 Koreans workers upon irrigation projects at Wanpaoshan, in the Kirin district of Manchuria, Wednesday. The Chinese wrecked a dam and destroyed a number of Korean houses.

The killing and wounding of large numbers of Chinese in Korea, it was felt in Tokyo official circles, may cause Chinese in Manchuria and Mongolia to wreak vengeance upon the 500,000 Koreans in those poorly policed provinces.

Band Concert to Open Slyvan Theater Series

The 1931 series of summer festival programs at the Sylvan Theater will open tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, when the United States Army Band, conducted by Capt. William J. Stannard, and the Lisa Gardiner dancers will present a joint program, to which the public is invited.

The National Capital Civic Fund committee, in conjunction with the office of public buildings and public parks, and the Community Center department has arranged for a limited number of chairs to be placed in the theater at 50 cents each. These seats are now on sale at the Willard, the Washington Hotel, American Automobile Association headquarters and the Franklin Administration Building, Thirteenth and K streets northwest.

Harold Snyder will have charge of lighting effects.

Appendicitic Attacks Pair at Sea; Captain of Tanker Dies.

New Orleans, La., July 6 (A.P.).—The steamer Parismina, out of Havana, hurried toward New Orleans today with the body of a ship captain who died at sea and two men suffering from appendicitis on board.

The Parismina late yesterday was signaled in the Gulf of Mexico by the Standard Oil steamer W. S. Farrish, out of Corpus Christi bound for New York, with an urgent request for a physician. Leaving her course, the Parismina contacted with the Farrish to find the ship's captain, Hans B. Thompson, of Brooklyn, dead of a heart attack, and an oiler, John B. Lytle, suffering an acute attack of appendicitis.

As the Parismina resumed her journey after taking Lytle and the body of Capt. Thompson on board, it was found one of her own oilers, Ernest Fouch, was also suffering from appendicitis.

ELECTRIC FIRM HEAD VISIONS GOOD TIMES

Says U. S. Has Weathered Other Storms; For Constructive Selfishness.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—This country will weather the present economic storm as it has successfully weathered every other great economic disorder of the past, A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., said in a booklet mailed to stockholders today.

In the booklet, "Industry's New Responsibilities," Mr. Robertson pointed out that it seems to be the growing tendency to shift to the shoulders of each industry the burden of providing for those "improvident individuals employed by that particular industry, who are unable to care for themselves in times of need," and added that in certain circles apparently serious consideration is being given "to the paternalistic proposals that big business, or the Government, assume many of the obligations formerly recognized by the individual as his own personal burden and his own responsibility."

Much Relief From Industry.

Meanwhile, he said, industry as a whole has voluntarily done a great deal to relieve workmen more and more of their former responsibilities and many companies are assuming a large part of the cost of providing for employes during the present period of unemployment.

"The tragedy of the situation," he said, "lies in the fact that big business, having assumed all these additional tasks, is just about as helpless as the employe. Every industry is affected differently by the depression. Seemingly none is immune. All are influenced to the extent of having income seriously curtailed and, in many cases, profits entirely eliminated. No company, large or small, seems to be financially strong enough, or lucky enough, to prevent serious shrinkage of its liquid resources in times of depression.

"Under such circumstances the management of every company in every industry is confronted with the difficult and serious problem of deciding what course should be followed. Assuming that every well-managed company accumulated out of earnings some surplus during prosperous times, the question arises immediately as to how this surplus should be used when times are not so prosperous."

Normal Curve Discussed.

Mr. Robertson said that in the years to come, if the business of the country follows the upward curve of normal progress, as it has in the past, and if business flourishes with only occasional periods of depression and unemployment, the recent burdens added to industry will not become too heavy.

"On the other hand," he said, "if these periods of recession come too close together and increase in severity, then industry may not be able to carry on its usual normal responsibilities of payments to creditors, wages to employes, dividends to stockholders, plus the added burden of supporting the individuals who can not provide for themselves in times of unemployment.

"It would be most constructive at this time if there could be developed a more tolerant attitude toward this problem on the part of both industry and the individuals involved. The whole world is afflicted by a new set of conditions. The right cure will be beneficial to every man, woman and child; therefore, any proposal that may lead to progress in that direction should and will, I am sure, receive open-minded consideration.

Looking After One's Self.

"To me it seems highly desirable that we keep alive the old-fashioned individualistic spirit of looking after one's self. It is going to be our salvation. It is one of our greatest inheritances from the founders of this country. After all, no one is as much interested in me as I am in myself. If each and every one of us made it our principal business to look after himself as well as a reasonably prudent man should, there would not be so much required of either industry or the State. That is what I would define as constructive 'selfishness.'"

Camp of Woodmen Ends in Downpour

Foresters Are Greeted at the White House by President.

The Modern Woodmen (Foresters) broke camp in a pouring rain yesterday afternoon in East Potomac Park after an encampment of three days. End of the encampment was formally marked by the lowering of the Stars and Stripes.

The stay here of the Foresters was featured by drill competitions for which cash prizes were awarded. Yesterday they were received by President Hoover at the White House. The Chief Executive made a short speech, congratulating the Foresters upon their aims and the way their organization has been developed.

The Foresters also visited Arlington Cemetery, where a wreath was laid on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier by Gen. Maurice R. Smith, commander in chief of the organization, and Col. A. P. Gagge, his chief of staff.

The Modern Woodmen (Foresters), a subordinate organization of the Modern Woodmen of America, is the largest semimilitary organization in the country with a membership of 1,250,000. There are 2,000 members in the District of Columbia.

Round Table Club To Mark Birthday

Members of Civic Bodies Will Be Anniversary Guests Today.

William Knowles Cooper, former secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association, today will address the fifth anniversary luncheon of the Washington Round Table at 12:30 o'clock at the University Club.

Mr. Cooper will speak on "The Significance of Service Clubs." It was Mr. Cooper who, five years ago, presented the local round table with its charter.

Guests from a number of other civic groups will attend the celebration. A prize will be awarded by Alton G. Grinnell. Announcement was made that Dr. Henry Parker Hill, pharmacist at George Washington University, has been elected to membership.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

ACCORDING to the present outlook, George Bernard Shaw's new play, "Too Good to Be True," will be ready for production in this country in September.

This announcement is made by the Theater Guild after an exchange of cables to determine whether the rumors that Shaw's latest was nearing completion were correct and, if so, if the piece could be made ready to serve as the Guild's initial production of the new season. Being an improvident young fellow with a penchant for tossing his money away on long underseas messages, the so-called Irish iconoclast wired back, "Quite possible."

Assuming that present plans will not miscarry, "Too Good to Be True" will have its premiere in Baltimore, the same city which first saw "The Apple Cart" in this country. It is probable that as was the case on the former occasion, the first night audience will be made up in large measure of Washingtonians.

In view of the half-hearted reception accorded "The Apple Cart," it is to be hoped that Shaw has not been too optimistic in the selection of the title for his new piece.

About the same time that "Too Good to Be True" opens, the Guild will put Eugene O'Neill's new play into rehearsal. This will be in the nature of an endurance contest for both audience and actors, since "Mourning Becomes Electra" is a trilogy requiring three nights for complete enactment. Despite all of Mr. O'Neill's prowess as a playwright, there is just a bare outside chance that to some mourning might also become monotonous.

Passing his 53d birthday quietly in his office last Saturday, July 4, George M. Cohan, according to private advices, seemed principally interested in planning another long tour of the road. Disavowing any intention to retire, he reiterated his confidence in the future of the theater and the revival of "the road." His view is a thoroughly sound one, as his views have always been where the theater is concerned.

"You can't blame people outside of New York for getting out of the theater habit," he says. "For weeks the theater in their town would be dark. That isn't right. You may be sure that the renaissance of the road theater will come when producers cooperate and guarantee that a full season of worth-while shows will be sent to these towns. I realize that this venture may lose money for the first couple of seasons, but in the end it will revive the road and pay for itself."

As for his own plans, Cohan is at work on a new play, "Friendship," which he will open on Broadway in September. Then he will present another new comedy which he is writing. After their New York runs, he will go on tour with these shows. And next spring there may be a new Cohan musical production.

It is my notion that the public would "go for" a new Cohan musical comedy or revue with no less avidity—not to say voracity—than they did for Mr. Ziegfeld's new "Follies," the record breaker, so far, of the entire series.

And John Golden's new play, "After Tomorrow," written by himself and Hugh Stange, will have a novel pre-Broadway showing on July 18. On that date the new collaboration will be presented, for the first time, in a theater aboard the S. S. Belgenland, which is being run on a special "show boat" cruise to Halifax, N. S. If the play proves to be a good sailor and does not succumb to mal de mer, it will be taken at once to Broadway.

Max Gordon, now that "The Band Wagon" is an established sensation, is soon to produce a new operetta by Otto Harbach and Jerome Kern. Kern's success with "Show Boat" and "Sweet Adeline" has made his scores something to look forward to. And he is devoting all his time now to writing music.

For a while, not so long ago, Jerry Kern divided his interest between musical composition and book collections. For years he spent everything he made on rare books. Then he sold them all and realized a fortune for his trouble—which just goes to prove again that man's best friends are his books, or something.

Last week exacted a heavy toll from the theater. In addition to Harry Reichenbach, concerning whose career something was said in yesterday's column, the swing of the scythe cut short the career of Edwin Wallace Dunn—always affectionately referred to by the late Rennold Wolf as Eddie "Waistcoat" Dunn—for the past 25 years personal representative for George M. Cohan, and one of the most popular men in the theater. Mr. Dunn was 73 years of age.

On the same day, and at the same age, Mrs. Mina Croilius Gleason, mother of James Gleason, playwright and actor, now in the films, answered her last curtain in Los Angeles, Calif. The former Mina Croilius, of Boston, was a member of a family that had been associated with the theater for generations. Her son, "Jimmy" Gleason, wrote a part especially for her in "The Shannons of Broadway," but she fractured a hip in alighting from a train at Gallup, N. Mex., and was unable to assume the role, although production was deferred in the hope she might recover in time.

With Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, the round-the-world fliers, in Washington yesterday, to be honored by the highest officials of the Government and the world press, as represented by the membership of the National Press Club, it is of interest that their triumphant return to New York is being pictured in all of the newsreels on view in the Capital—the Pathe News, at RKO-Keith's; Fox Movietone News, at the Fox; Hearst Metrotone News, at the Palace, and the Universal News, with Graham McNamee, at the Earle and Metropolitan. The last named will be promptly shown at Warner neighborhood houses as follows: Home, Tuesday and Wednesday; Apollo, Thursday; Savoy, Friday, and Ambassador, Saturday.

And aren't these crisp, dry days refreshing? I'm only asking.

FRANCE ABOLISHES FILM RESTRICTIONS

New Agreement Is Signed by French Official; Free Exchange Results.

Paris, July 6 (A.P.).—American films may come into France henceforth without restriction as to number, and subject only to an import duty. This was decided today when new regulations were issued after the signing of a new film convention by Undersecretary Petsche, of the ministry of fine arts.

The government decided that henceforth restrictions will only be placed upon motion picture films which come from countries where restrictions are imposed on French films.

The new policy on the admission of American films is a free exchange, it was outlined by today's decree, which marks the end of a three-year struggle.

The struggle began with the institution of a contingency system under which foreign producers were obliged to take one French film for every seven foreign films allowed to enter France.

Those responsible for the negotiations expressed the opinion today that this would be the first step in a general abandonment of the film "quota" system in Europe.

Canada Accuses U. S. Producers.

Ottawa, Ont., July 6 (A.P.).—A special commission appointed under the combined investigations act charged in a report tonight that American producers and distributors of moving pictures were operating a combine to control and restrain the film industry of Canada.

Peter White, special commissioner, who prepared the findings, reported the combine was "throttling" independent exhibitors by withholding films, preventing the erection, and, in some cases, the operation of independent theaters, and enforcing improper contracts on exhibitors using films made or distributed by members of the combine.

Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Ltd., dominant in the Canadian film industry the Paramount Publix Corporation, its American parent company, ten of its subsidiaries; thirteen American-owned distributing companies, and the Motion Picture distributors and exhibitors of Canada, were named as principals of the combine. Paramount Publix Corporation was pictured as dominating the Canadian industry through control of Famous Players Canadian Corporation and two of the distributing companies.

Against Public Interest.

The report declared that "the efforts of the motion picture distributors and exhibitors of Canada, the distributors and Famous Players to acquire and retain Canada as a field for the exploitation of their pictures, produced in the United States, as nearly as may be to the exclusion of others" was against the public interest.

"The acquisition by Famous Players of many theaters, sometimes by threats of building theaters in opposition to the theaters sought, sometimes by threatening to cause the withholding of a supply of suitable pictures, sometimes by taking steps to actually withhold such supply, and the improper use of Famous Players' buying power and paramount position in the moving picture business in Canada" were listed among the detrimental activities of the alleged combine.

This Morning with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

NOTED AT GRIFFITH STADIUM: . . . Walberg vs. Hadley . . . The Rube features wrist action a la Pavlova . . . The ball comes at the batter out of a corkscrew coil . . . From behind Walberg's broad back . . . Hadley cuts loose with a schoolboy overhead . . . And an eccentric little hop at the end . . . That leaves him out of position to field a hot one . . . McGowan chased Rice and Hayes off the steps of the Nats' dugout in the second . . . And cleared the steps on the Philadelphia side in the third . . . Connie Mack made the first error of the game . . . Moving Simmons and Haas far to the left with Myer at bat . . . And Myer rammed his double to dead center . . . Bishop broke all records for quick recovery to throw Cronin out and end the inning . . . After muffing his hot bounder . . . Dave Harris flew to first base like Lindbergh in a tail wind when Cochran dropped the third strike in the fourth . . . And was out by forty feet . . . Walberg perspired like a snowball in the nether regions . . . He tied Hadley for the honors . . . Waite Hoyt can also perspire . . . The fourth was Hadley's first hitless inning . . . It looked as if the first team to score would win the ball game . . . When a couple of passing clouds of distinctly ebony hue made their way over the park . . . Young Williams has been fitting into Mr. Mack's infield very nicely until this series . . . At bat his modus operandi consists of gripping the lumber on the very end . . . And swinging very freely . . . He was at Little Rock with Jimmy McLeod three years ago . . . When Joe Engle had his choice of the second base combination and chose McLeod . . . Who never fulfilled promise . . . And is slipping down the baseball ladder . . . Sent to Chattanooga first . . . Then to Topeka . . . Then to York . . . No Joy for Engel . . . Hadley's grounder in the fifth caught Williams "between hops" . . . Which is fatal . . . It was the A's first error . . . Cronin looked wistfully at the left field bleachers in the fifth . . . And swung ten seconds late at the first pitch . . . Shifting his feet to try to hit to right field . . . But a guy in a slump ought to hit naturally . . . And forget the frills . . . Mack moved Bing Miller almost to center field . . . Leaving right wide open . . . The count was three and two . . . And Cronin fouled three off . . . He fouled four off . . . Simmons was striking his best Ty Cobb pose in left field . . . And Cronin walked . . . Dave Harris back in the game against a left hander . . . He worked the count to three and two . . . And whacked a nice long one into Haas' mitt . . . It was then a legal game . . . Rommel relieved Earnshaw on the first base coaching line for the A's . . . Hadley slipped two fast balls by Haas in the sixth . . . And then sucked him in on a slow teaser that resulted in a soft grounder to Myer . . . Can it be that Hadley's using his head? . . . Cochrane didn't run out his grounder to Kuhel in the sixth . . . And Miller didn't run out his hit to Bluege in the fifth . . . Oh, well, they're champions . . . Mr. Mack was still very much in the ball game . . . And pinch hitters were soon to put in an appearance . . . 'Cause he sent both Grove and Earnshaw to the bullpen starting the sixth . . . Bluege pushed his single to Bishop off the end of his bat in the sixth . . . A great stop but no chance for a play . . . Walberg and Cochrane collaborated like a couple of Siamese twins going in different directions in trying to catch Bluege stealing in the sixth. Cochrane called for a pitch -ut and Walberg tossed him one with all the speed of a rheumatic snail . . . Mickey capped the performance with a wild throw to the bag that almost enabled Bluege to go to third . . . Jimmy Foxx contributed the hardest hit thus far, opening the seventh, but Manush glided over in front of the center-field wall to make the catch . . . Spencer slammed the ball around the infield like a rocket to keep the boys in the game . . . Some of his returns to Hadley had more speed than the pitches . . . But it keeps the pitcher on his toes . . . Jimmy Dykes looked to the bench for instructions with the count 3 and 1 . . . And then took a second strike . . . And then fouled one . . . And then got the first walk issued by Hadley . . . Who tried to pick him off the bag a moment later . . . There was more than a murmur of surprise when Mack let Walberg hit for himself after Williams' single had put Dykes on third . . . Hadley pitched two strikes . . . And then three balls . . . The next one had to be in there . . . It was . . . And Myer gobbled up the grounder that resulted . . . It started to rain . . . But there was no motion toward calling the game . . . Johnson sent Burke, Fischer and Crowder to the bullpen . . . As a precautionary measure . . . But Hadley set three down in a row in the eighth . . . Cronin singled to open the Nats' eighth . . . And the A's looked at Umpire-in-Chief McGowan imploring him to do something about the downpour . . . Which was really assuming torrential proportions . . . Harris sacrificed Cronin to second . . . And Walberg started stalling . . . And Kid Gleason rushed out to Dineen at third demanding something be done . . . But McGowan was adamant . . . One ball was pitched to West . . . And it was raining no harder than five minutes before . . . A hit would win the ball game . . . And then McGowan called off hostilities . . . Into each life some rain must fall . . .

Von Elm Assumes 3-Stroke Lead.

Von Elm looked like a winner in the morning round when he galloped off for the benefit of barely 200 spectators with a 3-stroke lead on the first two holes before Burke warmed up. This advantage was short-lived, however, for George 3-putted the eighth from only 8 feet, poking a 10-inch so carelessly that it failed to drop. Burke, aided by birdies on the seventh and ninth, reached the turn a stroke in the lead, 37 to 38.

Coming home, Burke's wildness off the tees proved costly and he took 6s on the twelfth and fifteenth, something he had not done at any previous time in the tournament. Billie wound up his erratic round by flubbing his approach on the eighteenth completely and taking a 77 to Von Elm's 76 for the half-way stage.

They were all-square again, however, at the twentieth, and when Burke, on the twenty-second, played one of the greatest shots of the tournament he jumped into the lead once more. This shot was a 190-yard iron blow that stopped barely 18 inches from the pin to clinch a birdie 3. It so unsettled Von Elm that he took a 5, needing 3 to get down from the edge of the green. From there on it was an uphill fight for George. He tied it again at the twenty-fifth, only to have Billie bag a birdie 2 on the twenty-sixth with another marvelous iron shot.

Draws Level Again At 28th.

Von Elm drew level again at the twenty-eighth by sinking a 15-footer, only to have Burke do the same thing for a birdie 4 on the long thirtieth. For the last time, George fought his way back to a tie on the thirty-first. It was a losing struggle for him from there on, though he was as game as he ever was right down to the finish.

In the final analysis of this amazing double play-off, the longest on record for any national open championship, Burke's marvelous control of his short game, his consistency on the greens, proved the deciding factor. Von Elm was longer off the tees, sometimes by as much as 50 yards, and usually straighter, but he was much too erratic for his own good when it came to playing delicate shots around the pin that were just as valuable as a 300-yard drive.

Both stood up well under the strain of the championship marathon, played in weather that ranged from stifling, 100-degree heat to the gales accompanying a thunder and lightning storm. Both were at times close to the point of exhaustion, their nerves on edge from the strain, but both poved their gameness in a golfing flight that probably will stand as a record-smasher for some time to come.

Burke, Von Elm Given Bonus for Long Play-Off

Toledo, Ohio, July 6 (A.P.).—Billie Burke and George Von Elm were given a side bonus by the United States Golf Association and the Inverness Club for their record-breaking 72-hole play-off for the National Open Golf Championship.

Prize money was listed originally as $1,000 for the winner, and $750 for the runner-up. Because of the extraordinary play-off, $1,000 more was tossed, with the winner getting three-quarters. Thus Burke's prize winnings in addition to the big cup, emblematic of golf supremacy in America, totaled $1,750. Von Elm's netted $1,000.

Burke's money winnings figured at the rate of slightly over $12 per hole for 144 holes; Von Elm's about $7 per hole.

Leo Diegel, who took down $650 for third money, averaged approximately $9 per hole.

The total prize money of $6,000 was a record for the National Open.

Vines and Gledhill Win In Clay Court Doubles

St. Louis, July 6 (A.P.).—A pair of Californians, Ellsworth Vines, jr., of Pasadena, and Keith Gledhill, of Santa Barbara, late this afternoon won the national clay court men's double tennis championship by defeating Berkeley Bell of New York City and Bruce Barnes of Austin, Tex., in the final round at the Triple A Club heer 6—3, 7—9, 10—8, 9—7.

New Champion Says He Was Inspired by Urchin's Plea.

By BILLIE BURKE

National Open Golf Champion.

TOLEDO, OHIO, July 6 (A.P.).—Well, I won the National Open Golf Championship, but I earned it.

George Von Elm gave me the greatest fight in the history of golf, a fight that lasted 144 holes and wasn't decided until the last hole. I knew I was in for a bitter battle with that fighter of fighters, but little did I realize that he had the stamina, the daring and the great fighting heart that he proved himself to have.

Why I won, I do not know, as there are so many breaks in the game, but I believe I had one thrill of inspiration that made me go on and on.

When I came up to the tee, one shot behind, for the start of the afternoon round, a caddie about 15 years old tugged nervously at my shirt sleeve. I stopped and asked him what he wanted.

"Aw, Billie," he pleaded, "I've got my last dollar bet on you. Go on and win for me."

I slapped him on the back, promised to win, and started. I heard his whoop above the tumult when I squared the match and saw him smiling and then frowning, anxious-faced, as the up-and-down fight went on its way. He got his dollar and if I can find him I'll give him another. He helped me fight that much harder to win.

There was a lot of drama in that grueling battle over Inverness, one of the toughest courses I ever played on. But the one thing that sticks in my mind now is that it was a fight without a single minute's let-up all the way until I came to the last tee today with a two-shot margin. As I stood on that tee with the title, I have dreamed of all my life, in my grasp, I decided here was the place to play safe and sane golf. I relaxed and hit my tee shot easily. Then I pitched up high with a good back spin 20 feet of the pin, right next to George's second. Then I decided to three-putt the green to play dead safe. I rolled my first putt up about five feet of the pin, sent my second

CARDS BEAT CUBS, 6-5, BY RALLY

Doubles by Collins, Roettger After Walk Win in Ninth.

CHICAGO, July 6 (A.P.).—Two St. Louis doubles after two were out in the ninth inning defeated the Cubs today in the second of the series, 6-5. Bob Smith had weathered several storms before this, but the Bruins were unable to get the runs back in the ninth and the series was evened.

Adams opened the ninth by getting a walk, but the next two men went out. Then Collins doubled to center scoring Adams with the tying run, and Roettger doubled to left, scoring Collins with the winning run.

The Cards used eighteen players, including five pitchers. Haines finished and received credit for the victory.

After the Cubs had taken a four-run lead off Stout and Lindsey, the Cardinals came from behind and tied the score in the seventh. The Cubs got another, however, to lead until the fatal ninth. By the win St. Louis took a four-game lead over the second place Giants.

PHILLIES END STREAK OF ROBINS

Elliott's Pitching and Arlett's 13th Homer Win, 5 to 3.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6 (A.P.).—After having won five straight victories and climbed within a jump of second place in the National League, the Brooklyn Robins ran into their former comrade, Jumbo Jim Elliott, here today and dropped the opener of a three-game series with the Phillies, 5 to 3.

Elliott pitched masterful ball to chalk up his eleventh triumph of the year.

Buzz Arlett led the winners' assault with his thirteenth home run of the year and a double, driving in three runs. Lee, of the Phils, and Wright, of the Robins, also connected for the circuit.

Sharkey and Walker Sign As Schmeling Again Sails

NEW YORK, July 6 (A.P.).—As Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion, climbed aboard a boat for Germany, two challengers for his title signed articles today for a fifteen round match at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, July 2.

Cameras clicked moving picture apparatus hummed and the customary heavyweight glares were very much in evidence as Jack Sharkey, who lost his chance to be champion by fouling Schmeling a year ago, and Mickey Walker, resigned middleweight titleholder, signed contracts for the bout Jimmy Johnson will promote for the milk fund.

Walker, who abdicated the 160 pound throne a few days ago, looked tiny compared to Sharkey's 190 pounds of bulk but the toy bulldog of Rumson, N. J. has ben bouncing light heavies and heavyweights around freely in the past year. Sharkey eyed him with amused tolerance as they penned their names. He probably will outweigh Walker 30 pounds.

Sharkey wil start training tomorrow in New York and will move to a camp at Pompton Lakes, N. J., within a few days. He had been working out quietly at Bow Lake, in New Hampshire, for several weeks and appeared brown and fit. Walker will train at Summit, N. J.

Schmeling, conqueror of Young Stribling in Cleveland July 3, was booked to depart on the Europa at midnight but he is expected back in August to defend his title again either against Primo Carnera or the winner of the Sharkey-Walker tilt. This match is scheduled for September 17 with New York, Cleveland, Philadelphia, New Jersey and Cleveland all possible sites.

If the German champion chooses to meet Sharkey, the match can be held here. The New York State Athletic Commission withdrew recognition of Schmeling as champion when the Teuton refused to give Sharkey a return match after taking the championship on a foul here a year ago.

Wife, Charging Cruelty, Divorces "Ken" Strong

Reno, Nev., July 6 (A.P.).—Aurelia Helen Strong, former Follies beauty, was granted a divorce here today from Kenneth Strong, New York University football star of three seasons ago and now playing professional baseball with Toronto of the International League.

She testified the former half back insisted on kicking her about their home as if she were a football and that there were "any number of times" when he struck her. They were married in New York City December 12, 1928.

BobConsidine Defeated in Net Upset

District Champion Is Beaten by Morrison, Unseeded Player.

Scores Are 6-3, 6-4; Victor Gains Early Lead in Rain.

BOB CONSIDINE, defending champion, was beaten in the third round of the forty-fourth District of Columbia tennis championship yesterday afternoon by Don Morrison, former New England junior champion and now of the University of Virginia. Morrison, who is ranked seventh among the country's junior players, gave a brilliant exhibition of all strokes to win in straight sets, 6—3, 6—4.

Playing through a steady rain, Morrison, as sure-footed as a mountain goat on the slippery court, totally undermined the game of his opponent as he strode forward to victory. As steady as Considine from the backcourt, Morrison went ahead of his rival by turning in a better demonstration of volleying and mixing of shots.

Morrison, unseeded and virtually unknown to all in the gallery, soon established himself as a real player, as he raced to a 4—2 lead in the first set, hitting hard and clicking the lines with admirable regularity. Considine, badly winded, could get but one more game during the remainder of the set.

Morrison went out to 3—0 in the second set, saw Considine all but catch him with a reactivated bit of play and then strode on to 5—2. Considine played his best tennis of the match in the next two games, winning his service and then cracking Morrison's to carry the score to 5—4. But it was evident that he had shot his bolt, for with a chance to tie the match in his hands, he grew wild once more, and Morrison, quick to seize the advantage, ran out the match.

Rain tossed a monkey wrench into the program of the tournament, only four matches being played out of 24 scheduled. In the feature of the matches played, Clarence Charest, who first won the District title in 1921, and who has won it three times since then, easily disposed of C. B. Garnett, 6—3, 6—0, despite being bothered by rain on his glasses. The 48-year-old veteran next will meet Gene Hermann.

Other Matches Not Completed.

One doubles match was squeezed in between drops yesterday, Love and Hill entering the third round at the expense of Doherty and Brown, 6—0, 6—3.

Today promises to witness a galaxy of good matches. The fourth round of singles will bring together Morri-

Indians Trounce Tigers, 13-4, to Even Series

Cleveland, Ohio, July 6 (AP.).—The Cleveland Indians ended their home stand before a swing around the Eastern end of the American League circuit by evening their series at two-all with the Detroit Tigers here today, winning 13 to 4. The game was probably the last on Dun Field, as the Indians are expected to enter their new home, the new Lakefront Stadium, when the Athletics open a series here July 26.

The Indians found Hogsett and Herring both wild and hittable, combining 14 hits and 7 bases on balls. They got eight runs in the sixth off Herring, on five hits, four walks and an error.

Grove Today Will Oppose Crowder

Hammered by Nats in Last Encounter in Quaker City.

ROBERT MOSES (LEFTY) GROVE will face the Nationals this afternoon in an effort to even up the defeat which the Johnsons administered to the world's champs Sunday.

Grove will be seeking his seventeenth victory of the season. There was a time when, even though he could regularly beat other teams in the league, he was easy for the Nats. They did pound him unmercifully on their last visit to the Quaker City, but otherwise found him plenty tough during the past two seasons.

Opposing the Mackian southpaw star will be "General" Alvin Crowder. This veteran has pitched poorly this season but turned in a brilliant relief shift in St. Louis his last time out and Manager Johnson believes that he stands a good chance of holding the Elephants in check.

No word has been received from Coach Patsy Gharrity, who strained an ankle at Cleveland, the first stop on the Nats' last Western trip, and then went home to nurse the injury. And Patsy, one of the "bone-breakers" of the club, is one of those continually talking of the durability of the "men of yesterday."

Another Nat from whom the club has received no news in some time is Pitcher Adolph Liska, sent home several weeks ago to rest up a sore salary wing. Just before the team took the last Western trip, the subway flinger advised President Griffith that the rest was helping him. He promised to keep the club advised of his progress, but evidently has run out of 2-cent stamps.

Manush's error in the second was a needless one. It was a poor return peg toward Myer following Dykes' single after Miller had reached first on a hit. It netted Miller a gain of from second to third.

It looked as though Coach Eddie Collins pulled a boner in sending Miller home in the second after West's catch of Williams' fly just behind second. The outfielder's line-peg nipped the runner at home by a big margin for the Nats' second inning-ending double-play of the two rounds played.

Kuhel coaxed the first two passes doled out by Walberg. His walk filled the bases in the second, while the one he drew in the fourth came with West on second.

West retired the Athletics single-handed in the fifth, gathering in hoists off the bats of Dykes, Williams and Bishop. Between the last two catches Walberg scratched a single through the box and carried on to second on Cronin's bag peg past first after making a nice stop of the deflected grasser.

A charley-horse attack is keeping Shortstop Boley out of action and Dib Williams, his understudy, is filling in at short for the Mackmen. He has not looked good here, being charged with an error on his only chance Sunday and kicking in with another yesterday.

Walberg had two strikes on Cronin and then finally walked him in the

Chisox Beat Browns, 5-3, Minus Manager

St. Louis, Mo., July 6 (AP.).—Although without the services of their manager, Donie Bush, the Chicago White Sox stopped the Browns' drive toward first division here today with a 5 to 3 victory.

Vic Frasier, the White Sox hurler, struck out nine opponents and held the Browns to five hits, which, however, included home runs by Goslin and Melillo.

Bush was notified today he had been suspended for three days for a wordy run-in with Umpire George Moriarity yesterday.

Coffman and Blaeholder were the St. Louis hurlers, the former being charged with the defeat.

Double Plays in First Two Innings Turn Back Champions.

West's Throw Cuts Off Run; 14,000 See Mound Duel.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

THE coffers of the Washington and Philadelphia Clubs were all that gained as a result of yesterday's second game of the series between these two contending teams, for rain stopped play in the home eighth with neither team having scored and the contest went on the books as a seven-inning scoreless tie, the second no-decision affair staged here this season. Instead of a twin bill today, this game will be replayed tomorrow—an open date on the schedule.

One of the largest Monday crowds in years was on hand, about 14,000 having wended their way through the Griffith Stadium turnstiles and while the fans were disappointed that Old Jupiter Pluvius butted in when he did, for the Nats were making threatening gestures at the time, they certainly were given a good run for their money, for the game was a thriller throughout.

Cronin Opens With Single.

Four and a half games back, the Nationals were fighting with their backs to the wall and some of the more optimistic saw the residents on the verge of breaking the deadlock when play was halted in the eighth. Joe Cronin had opened this round with a single and had been sacrificed along by Dave Harris. One strike was on Sam West when Umpire Bill McGowan, who had waited as long as he could in the hopes that the frame could be completed, halted play and, after the usual wait, called off all further action for the day.

The Nats might have won out in this frame—and then again they might not have—for George (Rube) Walberg, Quaker southpaw, had been blocking Washington threats all afternoon and this might have proved to be "just another one." He had held the Nats to six hits, including the one Cronin lost when rain interfered, had walked three, and had pulled out of all holes with flying colors.

Despite the fact that Irving Hadley, on the hill for the Nats, had allowed seven safeties, he pitched a better game than did his rival after getting off to a shaky start and being saved trouble by snappy fielding behind him, which ended both the first and second rounds with helpful double plays, one of which nipped a runner crossing the plate. From the second on, Irving yielded but three hits, all coming in different innings after two were out. He performed brilliantly and, in view of his previous failures as a starter, showed Manager Johnson that plenty of help may be expected of him from now on.

Pitchers Tight In Pinches.

Despite the fact that the pitchers were so effective, there were plenty of scoring opportunities offered both teams, as it was in the pinches that the moundsmen showed their mastery over the swatsmiths. On nine occasions, runners on either one side or the other were within a one-baser of scoring, not counting the Nats' unfinished eighth, when they had a man on second with one out, Philadelphia having four chances and Washington five.

With one dead in the first, Haas and Cochrane singled successively, putting men on first and second, and Simmons then rolled to Myer, who started a double play which Cronin and Kuhel completed. Under the same conditions in the second, Miller and Dykes hit one-basers in order, Manush's error letting the first-named carry on to third. Williams then lofted to West in short center and his peg to the plate easily caught Miller, who foolishly was allowed to try to score after the catch.

Walberg's scratch hit and Cronin's error on it put the Mackian pitcher within scoring distance in the fifth, but he was left and the aliens' last threat came in the seventh.

TWENTY GRAND INJURED, MAY IDLE REMAINDER OF SUMMER

Trainer Sees Recovery Soon; Must Forego Race in West.

By ORLO ROBERTSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

NEW YORK, July 6 (A.P.).—Twenty Grand, one of the greatest thoroughbreds since Man o' War, today joined Jamestown and Equipoise on the sidelines of the 3-year-old battles as the result of wrenching his back in winning the Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct Saturday.

Although Trainer James Rowe said the injury is one from which Twenty Grand will recover within a comparatively short time, there is no chance that the big bay champion from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable will go West for the $75,000 Arlington Park classic, July 18.

Unless the injury to the lumbar muscle on his right side readily responds to treatment, the son of St. Germans will be thrown out of training for at least the Saratoga season and probably for the remainder of the year.

With Twenty Grand on the sidelines, A. G. Bostwick's Mate, conqueror of the titleholder in the Preakness and winner of the classic, Jamestown, the 1930 juvenile champion, is laid up for a long rest, while Equipoise has not fully recovered from the quarter crack which caused his withdrawal from the Kentucky Derby on the day of the race.

Injury Blow to Chance To Beat Fox's Record.

Twenty Grand's injury also strikes a blow at the colt's chances of passing Gallant Fox as America's leading money winner. The Greentree star has won $175,575—far short of the Fox's record of $328,165—but was considered a "sure thing" in the rich stakes of the late summer and fall.

Twenty Grand came out of the Dwyer apparently in good condition and showed no signs of distress until he was being cooled out. Last night he showed improvement and this morning Rowe reported that his star was much better.

The champion's time for the mile and one-half was 2:34 2-5, five seconds short of the track record, but little thought was given to the slow performances as Twenty Grand was under double wraps throughout the journey. He beat the Wheatley Stable's Blenheim by one and one-half lengths. Later developments showed, however, that he was laboring despite the fact that Charlie Kurtsinger had him under a strong pull.

VANDERPOOL WINS 13TH STRAIGHT

Beats Flying Heels in Aqueduct Sprint by 2 Lengths.

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, July 6 (A.P.).—The Tennessee Stable's unbeaten 3-year-old colt, Vanderpool, met an older horse for the first time here today and emerged from the battle in his usual victorious manner, defeating the good sprinter, Flying Heels, 4-year-old, from the stable of John J. Curtis.

The race was an ordinary purse affar at 6½ furlongs, decided over a sloppy track in a drizzling rain. It was Vanderpool's thirteenth start, but he hurdled the supposedly unlucky number in impressive style and came out unscathed, not even picking up any of the slop from the heels of his rivals.

Five horses started, but the event was really a two-horse affair, with Flying Heels ruling favorite at 9 to 20, and Vanderpool receding to 2 to 1. They carried equal weights by the scale, 121 pounds, against 129. The Campfire colt ran the distance in the splendid time of 1:18 4-5, and won easily. G. C. Winfrey's Charon was third, beaten five lengths for the place. Sir Johren and High Tom brought up the rear.

200-to-1 Shot Sets Early Pace.

Pete Walls broke Vanderpool on top, but High Tom, a 200-to-1 shot, surprised by racing head and head with Vanderpool for a half mile. Flying Heels was several lengths away in fourth position. Vanderpool began drawing away on the bend approaching the stretch. Flying Heels was unable to cut down any of the winner's lead and was held perfectly safe, two lengths separating the pair under the wire.

Rain Delays Opening Of Pro Net Tourney

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—The first day's play in the American professional tennis championships was rained out today and tomorrow's schedule was doubled up to take care of the postponed matches.

An overnight rain, which continued intermittently through the day, had so soaked the turf of the West Side Stadium at Forest Hills that officials declared the postponement several hours before the first match was to begin.

The slate for doubles play was arranged today with Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey, William T. Tilden and his old Davis Cup partner, Francis T. Hunter, Phil Bagby and Phil Brain, Karel Koseluh and Bobby Sellers as the principal contenders.

Tilden also is the favortite to remove the professional crown from Richards' head. His first round opponent is James S. Burns, sr., of New York City.

Play will continue through Saturday.

ROCKINGHAM CLOSES

Salem, N. H., July 6 (A.P.).—The New Hampshire Breeders Association, conductors of a scheduled 34-day race meeting at the Rockingham Park track, announced after the fifth day's meet today that it would abandon the rest of the program. The announcement followed institution of court action against the system of certificate betting in effect at the track.

Boots and Saddle's
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)
—Arlington Park Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS

ARLINGTON PARK, Chicago, July 6.—A choice of four leading handicap horses will oppose Sun Beau in the mile of the Iowa Handicap, feature event of the Arlington Park program tomorrow. Supporting the main event will be the Denver Purse, an allowance affair for 2-year-olds, over the the 5½-furlong distance. The remainder of the card is turned over to the claiming division which has attracted large and well representative fields in most of the events.

In the headliner, fifth on the card, W. S. Kilmer's SUN BEAU, considered the best handicap horse in training, is conceding weight to his four rivals. Despite his heavy impost of 124 pounds, the son of Sun Briar has demonstrated his ability to carry weight and should carry his speed over the mile route to victory. BEST MAN, from the H. M. Woolfe Stable, in receipt of 23 pounds from the Kilmer color bearer, is a fleet sprinter but may falter at the distance. The minor award should go to Mrs. K. E. Hitt's SUNVIR. GOLDEN PRICE and MORSEL will complete the field.

Ten clever juveniles will match strides in the five and a half furlongs of the Denver Purse, third event, and secondary feature. MEXICO displayed a high turn of speed in the running of the Hyde Park stakes. On that effort the S. W. Labrot colt should show enough improvement to annex this event. SUN'S SON has raced consistently in this class and is favored for the place, with the Zeigler entry of PHANTOM LEGION and AMERICANA as the show possibility.

FIRST RACE—ETCETERA, owned by J. Schorr, was sharply cut off in his last start, but previously had displayed winning form. The Prince Pal colt appears best of the twelve juveniles opposed to him in the 5½ furlongs of the opening dash. SANS COIN, a surprise winner last week, should force the pace, with WELL HEELED third. The latter has trained well and figures to extend the top two.

SECOND RACE—Seven speedy sprinters face the barrier in the 6-furlong dash of the second event. FRENCH LASS raced well in Canadian campaign and, with 111 pounds to tote, should hold her opposition safe. FLAG TIME appears the contender on his third to KNIGHT COMMANDER and CHEERS. ZACAWEISTA turned in a dismal effort last start and is capable of a better showing. The A. Sabath racer appears best of the others for the minor award.

FOURTH RACE—HIS LAST, from the stable of Mrs. J. D. Hertz, winner of his last start, is on edge, and his brilliant showing on Saturday gives the Luke McLuke gelding the call over his eleven rivals in the 1 mile of the fourth number, which is fashioned for 3-year-olds, with the claiming clause attached. ROBRACK shipped well from New York, and on his recent consistent form should battle it out with the Hertz color bearer. ALBAZANO scored easily in his previous outing, at 6 furlongs, and rates the show call.

SIXTH RACE—Eighteen of the older platers in training will contest the purse in the mile and an eighth of the sixth. WORKLESS has shown the most consistent form of this band of claimers and under the conditions should account for the purse. GORMOND turned in a splendid effort in his last winning contest which marked his debut, and rates the place call, with ROLLING SEA favored for show.

SEVENTH RACE—The same conditions will prevail in the final contest as the sixth, which brings together a field of seventeen. Over the 9-furlong route MASTER ACE appears to hold a slight edge over his opponents. PUNISHMENT has some fair efforts to his credit and will be the one to fear. GARNISH has shown improvement in recent efforts and should hold the others safe for the minor prize.

NATS, MACKS BATTLE TO 0-0 TIE

when, with two out, Dykes coaxed a pass and was propelled to third on Williams' single to center. The Nats were given some anxious moments when Walberg worked the count to three and two, for a walk would have filled the bases. He had to hit the next one, though, or be called out on strikes, and a tap to Myer resulted.

The first home threat came in the second, which Harris and West opened with consecutive singles, the latter's being a scratch, one which held Harris to a one-base advance. Bluege moved both along on a sacrifice, putting it up to Spencer, but he could help none, rolling to Dykes, who stepped on third and then got the ball to first ahead of the runner for a double play.

Myers' Double in Third Is Wasted.

Myer's double, with one dead, in the third proved a wasted effort, and in the next frame Spencer was given another chance to jump into the limelight. With one out, West singled, and advanced on Bluege's out, and Kuhel coaxed a second walk. This time the Nat catcher hit into a forced play.

It looked as though the Nats might break through the Athletics' defense when Williams' error gave Hadley life starting the fifth, but both Myer and Manush failed to budge him off first, and after Cronin walked all Harris could do was to loft to Haas. Round six saw Bluege single and later steal, but he died on the middle sack. Walberg set down the Nats in order for only the second time during the game in the seventh, and, as already mentioned, they were showing signs of fight when the weather man stepped in and took the decision.

West and Haas, the center fielders, were the busiest players of the game. Each led his team at bat with two singles, while Haas accepted five chances and West four. The fielding feature was contributed by Heinie Manush, who raced back and toward center to rob Foxx of a hit opening the seventh.

Muehleisen Wins Two Titles at Long Beach

Special to The Washington Post.

Long Beach, N. J., July 6.—Dolf Muehleisen, recent recruit to the United States Army Leech Cup team, yesterday captured the Long Beach singles championship, defeating Dr. Herbert Fischer, of Cynwyd, 7—5, 6—3, 6—0, in the final round.

Paired with Lieut. Stanley K. Robinson, recently crowned singles champion of the service, Muehleisen added another title to his pack late in the afternoon when he won the doubles, defeating Harold and John Custer, of Cynwyd, 3—6, 6—2, 6—2.

GROVE AND CROWDER ON MOUND TODAY

fifth. Hadley was on first at the time and ran about a quarter of a mile while Cronin was fouling balls after the count had reached three and two, breaking for second, of course, on each of the last few offerings.

Hadley made a nice play to toss out Simmons to end the sixth, going well over toward the third-base foul line for the topped bounder. Simmons, running toward first, swung far inside the base line with the idea of being in the way of the throw. He didn't get away with it, for Umpire Brick Owens called him out even before the play was completed.

As early as the Nats' sixth, Connie Mack had both Lefty Grove and George Earnshaw in the bull pen for possible relief work. As Earnshaw went the route Sunday, he probably was down there just to keep Lefty company.

Foxx hits a Philadelphia home run opening the seventh, Manush snaring the drive after a run toward center.

Hadley issued his only pass with two dead in the seventh, Jimmy Dykes drawing it. The first three offerings were balls, then came two called strikes, a foul, and then a fourth ball.

As the eighth inning was not completed because of rain, everything that happened after the seventh did not count. The only fellow who lost anything important in this uncompleted frame was Joe Cronin, whose single opening the home eighth goes into the discards.

Yesterday's rain here was felt as far away as Williamsport, Pa., for, as a result, the Athletics, scheduled to play an exhibition game there on Wednesday, were forced to cancel it in view of the fact that yesterday's no-decision contest will be replayed on this open date on the schedule.

TOMMIE KIRNAN, running in improved form, was close to the pace at all stages and passing CHATTER ON entering the stretch, held POINT FINAL in the last sixteenth. POINT FINAL made up ground in the stretch to best KOSTER MAID. Latter raced fairly well to the end. CHATTER ON was tiring. LINQUIST raced wide. WESTY'S LADY tired. COUSIN JUDY was shuffled back early.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CONTRITION, $5.38, $2.54, $2.10; QUEEN'S PAL, $2.82, $2.26; ACROBATE II, $2.14.

CONTRITION, jumping well and ridden with good judgment, held a short lead most of the way and was taken in hand near the finish. QUEEN'S PAL showed much speed on the flat, but bobbled at several jumps and was not good enough for winner. ACRABATE II outgamed HILLOCK in the final run. HILLOCK had early speed, but tired. SWIVELLER was far back most of the way.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:11. Off at 3:12½. Winner, Mrs. J. D. Hertz's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—EGYPT, $16.04, $7.30, $3.08; CAMP PRINCE, $6.58, $3.46; SILVER LAKE, $2.46.

EGYPT broke quickly and, racing well, drew into a short lead in the first furlong and, increasing his advantage when the stretch was reached, won easily. CAMP PRINCE showed improvement and was well up throughout. SILVER LAKE could not keep up in the early stages, but made up some ground in stretch. PROCESSION weakened after showing early speed. BACHELOR'S TOY ran a good half, then tired.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COLONIAL BELLE, $13.44, $6.60, $5.46; SEVEN VEILS, $11.22, $6.38; WHITE FLYER, $8.12.

COLONIAL BELLE was in tight quarters approaching the stretch turn, but was soon clear and, closing fast, caught SEVEN VEILS in the last few strides. SEVEN VEILS broke quickly and after setting a good pace, held on well in the final run. WHITE FLYER saved ground around stretch turn and closed fast. GIVANNA had early speed. LADY TEDDY met with early interference and was never dangerous. FRENCH HONEY was knocked back at the stretch turn. OSCILLATION met with early interference.

FIFTH RACE—One mile (Hertz course, out of chute). Purse, $1,800; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:16. Off at 4:16. Winner, W. J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BATTLESHIP, $10.44, $4.50, $3.38; SUNNY LASSIE, $3.76, $3.42; WHO WIN, $3.68.

BATTLESHIP outbroke the others and, retaining a forward position in the early stages, took command when ADINE tired and had little trouble holding SUNNY LASSIE at the end. SUNNY LASSIE, outrun early, came fast after going half the distance, but did not seriously threaten the winner. WHO WIN showed good form and was going well at the end. QUATRE BRAS II was shuffled back around the far turn, but came again and finished well. NED O. could never get to the leaders and went wide at stretch turn. ADINE and BOSAFABO quit.

SIXTH RACE—One mile (Hertz course, out of chute). Purse, $1,800; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:45½. Off at 4:47. Winner, S. W. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROCKET GLARE, $33.90, $15.96, $6.24; WILLIAM T., $6.42, $5.38; ULUNIU, $3.38.

ROCKET GLARE, showing much early speed, saved ground all the way and, shaking off CULLODEN entering the stretch, held WILLIAM T. at the end. WILLIAM T. was under restraint in the early running and came to the outside in the stretch to close fastest of all, but Maiben made his move too late. ULUNIU saved ground around the stretch turn and raced well to the finish. CULLODEN raced rather wide in the early stages and could not keep up. SISTER ZOE closed some ground, but did not threaten. SUN FALCON tired. MOPECO floundered after the start.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:17. Off at 5:18. Winner, L. M. Severson's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OTILLA, $9.96, $5.52, $4.12; DUNMORE, $3.38, $3.18; WIZARDRY, $5.00.

OTILLA, close up from the start, saved ground throughout and took a handy lead in the stretch, but barely lasted to win. DUNMORE, under steady restraint in the early running, closed fast on the outside and would have won in another stride. WIZARDRY moved up fast on the outside after going half the distance, but hung slightly in the last sixteenth. WORKLESS raced close up. HOST raced very wide around the first turn and tired after taking a good lead on the back stretch.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:47. Off at 5:48. Winner, M. B. Cohn's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SPANFLOW, $12.94, $8.20, $5.16; SEARINGTON, $5.24, $3.90; ATLIL, $5.60.

SPANFLOW forced the pace in the early stages and, taking a short lead when SUN DREAMER tired, responded gamely to punishment and held SEARINGTON to the finish. SEARINGTON, under restraint early, saved all possible ground, finished gamely, but was in close quarters in the last sixteenth. ATLIL turned in a good effort.

BILLINGS AND MILLER SHOOT 77'S TO LEAD ON PUBLIC LINKS

Today's Play To Decide Line-Up

Rabbitt's 78 Third in Qualifying at East Potomac Park.

22 Shoot Under 83 to Survive First Day Elimination.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

WESLEY BILLINGS and W. R. Miller, each with a score of 77, tied for the lead at the end of the first eighteen holes yesterday at East Potomac Park in the qualification round to determine eligibility of Washingtonians to compete in the national public links championship.

Billings last year came within 1 stroke of qualifying and went to the national at Jacksonville, Fla., at his own expense. Yesterday both he and Miller had several 6s, but also enjoyed some life-saving 3s.

According to the program, the twenty low scores and ties yesterday qualified to play 36 additional holes today. There were 22 contestants with cards of 82 and under. The three lowest at the conclusion of today's play will win positions on the Washington team to compete in the national, scheduled at St. Paul, Minn.

The cards of Miller and Billings were as follows:

Out—
Par	4	3	4	4	4	4	5	4	4	—36
Miller	5	4	4	4	4	4	6	3	4	—38
Billings	4	3	4	5	6	4	5	5	4	—40
In—
Par	5	5	4	3	4	4	5	3	4	—37	—71
Miller	6	6	6	3	3	3	5	3	4	—39	—77
Billings	4	5	5	3	3	4	5	4	4	—37	—77

The event attracted a large crowd to the public links, including Bradley H. Burrows, who is automatically eligible to compete in the national tournament by reason of the fact that he was one of the qualifiers at Jacksonville last year, and the score board was constantly surrounded by an interested throng. James D. Preston, local representative of the public links committee of the United States Golf Association, was in charge. The scores of all the players, other than Miller and Billings, were as follows:

78—Alton. Rabbitt. 38—40; C. M. Merrill. 37—41; Harlan Will. 39—39.
79—John F. Hauser. 39—40; C. C. Heath. 39—40; A. T. Wannan. 37—42; Robert Burton. 40—39.

Grant Deserts Dixie For Net Conquests

Atlanta, July 6 (A.P.).—A diminutive lad who has dominated Southern tennis for four years will be missing when the net stars gather at Birmingham this summer for the Dixie tournament.

Bryan Grant, national clay courts champion and tenth ranking tennis player in the United States, will desert Southern courts this season for a fling at the tournaments in the East.

A native of Atlanta, Grant is a sophomore at the University of North Carolina, and, together with Wilmer Hines, Columbia, S. C., net star, will figure prominently a number of dual college meets this spring. He also is to participate in the Southern Conference tennis meet at New Orleans.

His plans now include competition in the national clay courts event, which he won last year at Kansas City, and participation in the national intercollegiate championship, which title he will attempt to wrest from Cliff Sutter, of Tulane University.

Many Miles Separate Auburn Sports Heads

Auburn, Ala., July 6.—Chet Wynne, head coach and athletic director of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, and Earl McFaden, assistant coach, are spending vacations in different sections of the United States.

Wynne is vacationing in Illinois and Nebraska and McFaden is enjoying a few weeks on the beach at Daytona Beach, Fla. Mrs. Wynne and Mrs. McFaden accompanied the Plainsmen mentors, who will be away from duties at the gymnasium until the latter part of July.

At the close of the first six weeks of Auburn's nineteenth summer school Wilbur Hutsell, track coach and trainer, will leave for a two weeks' journey in Arkansas and Missouri, and Sam McAllister, basket ball and baseball mentor, will return to his home in Chicago for a short visit before the start of the 1931 football campaign.

KENNA UP; GIBSON DOWN.

The Baltimore Orioles have released the veteran backstop, Frank Gibson, to make room for Catcher Eddie Kenna, who was purchased from Chattanooga, of the Suothern League.

CRONIN'S FINDER SIGNED.

Joe Devine, who had been scouting for the Pittsburgh Pirates along the Pacific Coast for the past eight years, was signed last week by the San Francisco Missions to double as scout and coach for Joe Baerwald's club. Besides touring the sticks in search of young talent, he will serve as coach of the team most of the playing season. Devine sent such stars as Ray Kremer, Joe Cronin, Larry French, Gus Suhr, Dick Bartell and Lloyd Waner to the Pirates, picking Bartell and Cronin off the sandlots.

ON THE SIDELINES

by BRIAN BELL

AD WOLGAST, champion of lightweight boxing circles from 1910 to 1912, who has been incompetent since 1917, no longer expects to stage a comeback. For years his confused mind developed weird thoughts of conquest.

"I'm too old to work any more," he told Tom Jones, his former manager, who paid him a visit at the State hospital at Patton, Calif., where the once-great fighter is a patient.

Wolgast, who is now 44 years of age, kept in great physical shape for years and he added in his conversation with Jones:

"But I still do some road work." And then his mind became clouded again and he said:

"I knocked out a fellow just the other day. Took him in the third round."

Wolgast, for several years after he was declared insane, lived at the old Vernon fight club in Los Angeles, then owned and operated by Jack Doyle, Los Angeles promoter.

READY FOR TITLE BOUT.

He worked out daily, and, except for the fact that in ring parlance he "was walking on his heels," he seemed in perfect condition. He thought a championship bout was always waiting for him just around the corner.

One day Tom Doyle, brother of Jack, gave Ad a broom and told him to sweep out. Wolgast's heart was not in the task and, after taking a few haphazard swings with the broom, he handed it back to Doyle with the remark:

"I can't sweep out. Why, I'm crazy."

Ad's youngest brother, Al, a middleweight, is now boxing with indifferent success, with Jones as his manager, but Old Tom says the youth hasn't the great promise of his brother.

Jones and Wolgast never had a written contract. Ad moved West in 1907 and worked as a newsboy in Los Angeles, boxing occasionally. Jim Jeffries saw him, liked his style and referred him to Jones.

$240,000 WENT.

When the manager and boxer parted in 1913 it was with the understanding that Ad would fight no more. Wolgast had saved $240,000, and when he first was declared insane he still had approximately $130,000 in Los Angeles real estate. If he owned the land today he would be a millionaire, but he lost it all, and when the Doyles took him into their fight club he was "broke."

Jones, who had such champions as Jess Willard, Billy Papke and Frankie Conley, in addition to Wolgast, thinks two things are wrong with the "fight game."

Young prospects are pushed ahead too fast, he thinks, and young boxers fail to get enough hard work as they start out to be able to "stand the hard knocks."

U. S. Rifle Team Confident Of Powers of Lucky Stick

"Charm" Gets First Test as Luck Piece of Small Bore Team in International Match in England Friday.

THE magic powers of that talisman of American rifle teams, the famed "whittling stick," are once again to be tried. It is now across the seas ready for the whittling knife of Maj. Julian S. Hatcher, team captain, while the American small bore rifle team is firing its international match at Bisley, England, on July 10.

It was a confident group of eager American marksmen that sailed for England on June 24 and nothing more was needed to keep their spirits and confidence buoyed than the presence of the charm stick. Superstition, maybe, but it holds firmly in the minds of the shooters.

"Stick" Now Faces New Test.

But it is a new test that confronts this victory stick this year for it is its first trip as the luck piece of a small bore team. It won its fame as the standby of American international free rifle teams but now the United States has dropped from the free rifle matches and entered the .22 caliber international game. Yet not even this has caused the shooters to lose a particle of faith in its power nor even to question its reliability.

Maj. L. W. T. Waller jr., of Wilmington, Del., introduced the luck piece—just an old stick he had picked up and started chipping away on—in 1922 when he was captain of the American free rifle team. The United States won that year and every year afterward when the stick was on the firing line and whittled on by the team captain. The years it was not whittled on the United States lost. That is a record too inspiring for the shooters to ignore. Hence, when American teams are firing, they want the stick worked on plenty.

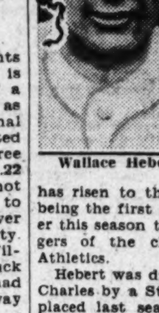

Major Holding On to Knife.

Throughout the year, the victory piece is carefully watched over at the offices of the National Rifle Association and it is looked upon with veneration by the international teams. As to the knife with which Maj. Waller whittled the stick, the several years he captained victorious American teams—well, you just can't pry it loose from him.

However, the whittling stick is not all. The American small bore shooters have such an imposing record that the National Rifle Association can see nothing but another American rifle victory. Nevertheless, Maj. Hatcher will be studiously whittling away on the now very much notched and shaved stick as he directs his team on the firing line at Bisley.

Browns' Recruit Twice Tames A's

Wallace Hebert (pronounced Aye-Bare) was taken on by the St. Louis Browns originally this spring to be the butt for weak hitters in spring training.

Wallace Hebert

He was to stand in the box and watch the boys polish up their batting by plastering his southpaw slants to all sections of the PalmBeach spring training grounds. Then Manager Bill Killefer was to farm him to Milwaukee or Wichita Falls.

From this humble start the 20-year-old Lake Charles (La.) boy has risen to the honored position of being the first American League hurler this season twice to tame the sluggers of the champion Philadelphia Athletics.

Hebert was discovered down at Lake Charles by a St. Louis scout, and was placed last season with the Springfield club of the Western Association.

His curious name, which probably will give sports editors countless battles to get it spelled "Hebert" instead of "Herbert," comes from the fact that he is French. He is descended from the Acadians of "Evangeline" fame. They call him "Preacher."

PIGS IN FRONT BY TIMELY HITTING

Only 2 of 13 on Leading Sec. A Team Bat Under .300.

HEAVY stickwork that more than compensated for whatever the team lacked defensively was responsible for the Dixie Pigs' triumph in Section A of The Post's Capital City League, figures released last night reveal. Only two of the thirteen players on the roster, one a pitcher, batted less than .300 against league opponents.

"Huck" Stahl, shortstop, heads the list of regulars with a mark of .615. Stahl was bettered by King, who hit at an .800 clip, but the latter failed to participate in as many games as his teammate. Three more players, Collier, Radtke and Gidding, slugged the ball for averages of .500 or better. Collier had a figure of .563, Radtke, .515, and Gidding an even .500.

Two men were in the .400 class and three exceeded the .300 mark. Watts clouted the sphere to average .444, Roberts, .421; Adair, .364; Joseph, .333, and Buscher, 323. Dove, with .219, Jones with .214, and Culbertson, who failed to connect safely in five trips to the plate, bring up the rear of the heavy artillery.

COMMITTEE DECIDES UTAH MARKS.

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 6 (A.P.). Collegiate track and field marks no longer are official in this State unless approved by a record committee which met for the first time this year. The committee is made up of delegates from the three largest State educational institutions. An effort is being made to compile a complete list of records established since 1920.

HEINIE SAND INJURED.

A batted ball struck Heinie Sand, Oriole shortstop, on the cheek in fielding practice before the game of June 23 and inflicted a painful bruise that necessitated medical attention, but Heinie didn't let it keep him out of the game. Two weeks previous Jim Stroner, Baltimore third baseman, had been knocked out of the game by a batted ball hitting him on an ear.

TO ENLARGE STANFORD BOWL.

Stanford University, Calif., July 6 (A.P.).—By the middle of the next football campaign Stanford's bowl will be enlarged and wooden stairways will be replaced by new concrete stairs.

Cards Plan Series Ticket Distribution

St. Louis, July 6 (A.P.).—Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, believes he finally has worked out a system for distributing world's series tickets whereby loyal fans will receive their just rewards.

Books of 10 tickets each will be sold at the regular prices, good at any games, and names of purchasers will be recorded. In the event the Cardinals win the National League pennant, all purchasers of two books will be entitled to buy one set of series tickets.

Buyers of four books will be entitled to two series tickets, and so on.

Breadon says he devised the scheme because of many complaints that fans supporting the team all season were unable to get pasteboards to the grand finale, while others who seldom or never visited the park during the summer were favored.

Started Ring Career by Accident

K. O'd Club Champ in Sparring Partner Role.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

CHICAGO, July 6 (A.P.).—From a poor, penniless wanderer, Max Schmeling is certain to earn a fortune with his fists in the ring. The world's heavyweight champion knows what it means to sip life's dregs. Now he doubly appreciates his opporunity to sit in the lap of luxury.

It was just a few years ago that Schmeling was stranded in Muhlheim, Germany, broke, ragged and hungry. For a few cents, he could buy a bowl of thick soup at a place where spoons, knives and forks were attached to the table by chains so that diners could not slip them into their pockets.

Used to Pay to Drive For "Flop."

When Max could gather ten cents he lived in the lodging house where a "flop" on a crowded floor was his bed. A rope was strung the length of the room between two benches. The lodger rested his head upon the rope and slept until an attendant of the "flop house" by the simple expedient of cutting the rope at dawn, awakened the sleepers by dumping their heads on the concrete floor.

Now Schmeling, with riches in his grasp, sincerely appreciates his expensive clothes, automobiles, good food and all the rest that goes with money. While not niggardly, Schmeling is thrifty and does not spend money foolishly. His ring earnings are wisely invested. He takes himself, his boxing and his pocketbook soberly and seriously, as few boxers do. Schmeling is essentially a serious minded man, looking into the future.

"I have my 'Mutter' to care for back in the old country, and I must make a success of this boxing business," says Max. "I do not wish to harm anyone, but this boxing is a profitable work, nein?"

Keeps Close Account Of Money.

Schmeling keeps close account of money he spends and knows where every cent goes. His manager, Joe Jacobs, accounts to him for all expenditures necessary in a training camp, and for all earnings in exhibitions and fights. They keep an accurate account of their earnings and expenditures, as Max does not intend to have any trouble with Uncle Sam's income tax collector.

It was while he was broke that Schmeling, by mere chance, pulled on his first boxing glove. He was then in Muhlheim and, craving exercise, walked into the Sport Club where he was invited to serve as a boxing partner. Max, then 19 years old, knocked out his opponent, who, on regaining consciousness, engaged him for a bout with the middleweight champion of the club. Schmeling treated the champion to a knockout punch and began to wonder just how long men had been earning money at this easy work.

Then he started amateur boxing and won his first twelve fights by knockouts. He became a professional in 1924, and a few months later ran into Jack Dempsey, then heavyweight champion, who was then in Cologne, Germany, on a honeymoon, and earning expenses by appearing in exhibitions. He boxed one round with Dempsey, and that one round started him on to ring success, because Dempsey encouraged the sober-minded German youngster to go in for boxing in a big way.

Danville May Regain High Point Franchise

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., July 6.—Negotiations were in progress this evening under which the franchise of the High Point Baseball Club in the Piedmont League may be brought here. The owners are dissatisfied with the present High Point situation and are asking only free use of the baseball park controlled by the school board.

A school board committee was to decide the matter tomorrow, with a majority of its members already on record as favoring the step and agreed on a nominal rent. The franchise is owned by a woman, who is prepared to transplant the whole organization here. High Point took the franchise originally from Danville several years ago.

U. S. TO TRAIN ALA. POLY'S ATHLETES

21 Are Conditioning at Army Camp at Fort Benning.

AUBURN, Ala., July 6.—Led by James Bush, Mobile, cocaptain-elect of Auburn's 1931 football team; Jack Stewart, Anniston, captain-elect of the basket ball five, and Jeff Beard, Greensboro, captain-elect of the track team. 21 Alabama Polytechnic Institute athletes are conditioning for the 1931-32 athletic campaigns by experiencing six weeks of regular Army life at the R. O. T. C. Summer training camp at Fort Benning, Ga.

In addition to Bush, the following football players are answering the bugle call daily: Sam Wade, Birmingham; Malcom Paterson, Brewton; Felix Creighton, George Egge; Lindley Hatfield, the star half back, and Richard Wible, Montgomery, and Ike Parker, Ozark. All except Paterson have received athletic awards in football.

Recruits Would Form Five Cage Team.

From Auburn's contingent at Fort Benning could be recruited one of the leading cage teams in the South. Five of the six letter men from last season's team, Stewart, Jordan, captain of the 1931 quintet; Hatfield, Tom Lumpkin, Millerville, and Harbin Lawson, Nelson, Ga., and two capable reserves, Odis Aldridge, Boaz and David Rogers, Marbury, are Plainsmen hardwood performers drawing pay from Uncle Sam these warm vacation afternoons. Jordan, Stewart and Lumpkin placed ninth, tenth and thirteenth among the Southern Conference goal shooters last season.

The members of the Tigers 1931 Dixie League and Southern Conference championship team at Fort Benning are: Aubrey and Saurez (Ike) Lewis, Chapman; William Sanford, Deatsville; Charles Mathews, Grove Hill; Clarence West, Louisville, and Jordan. The Lewis brothers received letters.

Although only four members of Coach Wilbur Hutsell's 1931 track and field team are attending camp, Beard, Creighton, Stewart and Jo Plant, Birmingham, this quartet would be a formidable team by itself.

Beard One of Dixie's Best Discus Throwers.

Beard is one of the leading discus throwers in the Southern Conference; Creighton a leading sprinter; Stewart holds the conference record for the broad jump and placed third in this event in the National Intercollegiate meet in Chicago, and Plant has been a leading member of the cross-country team and distance harrier on the cinder team for three years.

The athletes are not the only students connected with athletics at Auburn who are spending a few days this Summer on K. P. duty as Aubrey Lewis, the baseball catcher; Joe Jenkins, LaFayette; Pat O'Rourke, Selma, manager-elect of the football, baseball and track teams, and De-Witt (Bull) Stier, head cheerleader, are also finding out what actual warfare is like at Fort Benning.

Bush, Egge, Jordan, Plane, Stier and West are members of the Engineers and the others the Field Artillery. Upon the completion of four years of R. O. T. C. work, they will receive second lieutenant commissions in the United States Army.

STOKES WINS NEW RIFLE HONORS

District Star Breaks World's Record at Seagrit, N. J.

LIEUT. WALTER R. STOKES, who first gained national fame as a marksman while attending George Washington University, and subsequently gained international honors at the Olympic games of 1924 and 1928, yesterday established himself as brilliant all-around exponent of rifle shooting when he took first place in grand aggregate in the Eastern small-bore tournament, at Seagirt, N. J.

Lieut. Stokes, who is Dr. Stokes, of 713 Nineteenth street northwest, is attached to the 121st Engineers, District of Columbia National Guard.

Scoring 1,110 points out of a possible 1,125, Stokes bettered by four points the world's record held by George H. Sittler, of Germansville, Pa., now participating in the international small-bore matches at Bisley, England, between teams of the United States and Great Britain.

RULE FOR INSERT ... ... p..?ou

Sergt. T. L. Karrell, ordnance department of the local guards, took fourth place in the grand aggregate with a mark of 1,103. Washington proffered still another noted marksman when Charles A. Iovino, 1728 Eighteenth street, captain of Columbus University's rifle team, won second place among class C shooters in the 50-yard stage of the individual championship at Seagirt. Firing in this division was done with .22-caliber guns.

The District team, with a mark of 1,147, took second place in the interstate team competition. Connecticut took first place, and with it the Spencer Cup and silver medals for the six members of its team, with a mark of 1,156 points out of 2,000. Pennsylvania was third, New York fourth and New Jersey fifth.

The local team was made up entirely of guardsmen, on the team being Lieut. Stokes 1928; Sergt. T. L. Harrell, 192; Lieut. T. A. Riley, 191; Capt. J. C. Jensen, 190; Staff Sergt. A. J. Thill, 189, and Capt. C. C. Shields, 187.

YACHT RACES DRAW 300 ENTRIES

Miles River Club to Hold Annual Program Aug. 6-8.

MORE than 300 visiting yachts are expected to put in at St. Michaels, Md., on August 6 to 8, for the annual Miles River Yacht Club regatta, according to Commodore Arthur Farmer, of the club.

The event each year is regarded as a sort of homecoming celebration for southern Maryland. The Maryland Yacht Club makes St. Michaels the terminus for its annual race during the regatta and several Philadelphia clubs stage their cruiser races to end there.

The serving of southern Maryland luncheons to visiting yachtsmen and a revival of the Chesapeake Bay log sailing canoe races will be among the features of the three-day program.

The native fishermen who sail the primitive log sailing canoes will compete for a trophy offered by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland. Other sailing events will include a free-for-all race for the championship of the Chesapeake, St. Michaels sailing scows, star class sail boats and Barnegat sneak boxes. Powerboat races will be held for runabouts, Classes B, C and D outboards, unlimited outboards, cruisers and speedboats.

Quantico Marines Win Over Engineers, 8-1

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., July 6.—Quantico Marines bunched their hits in the second and seventh frames of a well-played game with the army engineers from Fort Humphreys here today and took the big end of an 8 to 1 score. Gorman singled to right in the first, took second on a bad return and scored on Surrett's single through Short. Fort Humphreys' lone marker came as Rowe doubled to left and was singled across by Zaledek. Couch, hurling for the Marines, was effective in pinches and was given excellent support afield. Bumgardner, Soldier hurler, weakened in the seventh and allowed four runs.

Small Profit Realized On Paulino-Baer Bout

Reno, Nev., July 6 (A.P.).—Revised figures today showed that the total gate receipts for the Baer-Uzcudun fight here Saturday were $79,666, enough, according to Jack Dempsey, to enable the promoters to make a small profit.

Paulino Uzcudun received $18,060.60 for his share of the purse and Max Baer got $14,048.50. Dempsey, who promoted the show also refereed the main bout.

BACK TO NATURE.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—A certain group of Brooklyn baseball fans have discovered how to take a "sun bath" and at the same time watch the Dodgers' efforts to bring home a National League pennant. They sit in the extreme end of the center field stands, minus shirts, and shout "valuable" tips to Johnny Frederick, centerfielder, on how to play fly balls.

ADMISSION CUT PAYS.

San Francisco, July 6 (A.P.).—Seeking a cure for an attendance slump, the chief boxing promoter of San Francisco cut admission rates. At prices ranging from 50 cents to $2, he has increased the total gate receipts by approximately 300 per cent.

Boxing Chief Declares Max Must Meet Sharkey

Seattle, Wash., July 6 (A.P.).—James A. Farley, chairman of the New York State boxing commission, today declared Max Schmeling "never will meet another boxer in New York as long as he refuses to meet Jack Sharkey again."

Schmeling is under contract with the Madison Square Garden Corporation for a title fight September 17.

"We think Sharkey is the best fighter in the world," Farley, here in attendance at the annual convention of Elks, declared, "but, although we gave Schmeling his title, we do not consider him the champion."

one two inches from the cup, and it was all over. For once George couldn't get his birdie on that final green, but I doubt if it would have done him any good, as I had all the confidence and coolness in the world just then, and could have got a four, I think, if it was needed.

My only interest now is a nice, cool, shady spot—and I think it is up around Toronto, Canada, watching the other boys play in the Canadian open.

I want a rest—just a few days anyway. In the past 16 days I have played 288 holes of competitive golf. I played 72 to qualify for the Ryder Cup matches at Columbus, about 72 in the actual matches, 72 holes to tie for first place in this national open, and then 72 more to beat George in the play-off. Added to that were 151 holes of practice or 439 holes in all for an average of 27 holes a day. I guess I earned a rest.

Well, my long, long trail to the golf championship of America has ended triumphantly for the time being. I hope I can be a true champion. I plan to play a lot of exhibitions and in every tournament possible, but I hope I never have to tangle with that fellow Von Elm in a play-off again.

Sooners Make Good As Pro Diamonders

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 6 (A.P.).—Baseball players who studied the national pastime on Oklahoma sandlots and are graduates of the State tournament are making their mark in organized company.

Art Herring, pitching star of the 1928 tourney, is doing relief work for the Detroit Tigers and will get a regular turn when he lose a little of his wildness.

Hugh Willingham, El Reno boy, has gone to the Philadelphia Nationals since hitting 38 homers for Dallas in the Texas league last season.

Bill Thomas and John Paul Jones, pitchers, and Jud Waller, outfielder, are on the squad of the Oklahoma City Indians in the Western league, while John McMahon and Parker Brewer are with Omaha in the same circuit.

Considine, Mangan Defend Title at Richmond July 17-18.

A DEFINITE effort to appeal to the "business men tennis players," whose status differs from Von Elm's in that they feel bound not to absent themselves from their businesses in order to participate in long-drawn-out tournaments, has been made by the Middle Atlantic Tennis Association, which yesterday announced that it would confine its annual doubles tournament to two days.

To be held in Richmond, at the Country Club of Virginia, July 17 and 18, the event will draw a large gathering of local players, foremost of whom will be Bob Considine and Tom Mangan, defending champions, who, by virtue of victories in 1928 and 1930, can gain permanent possession of the doubles trophies if successful this year.

Others who will enter are the teams of Eddie Yeomans and Bud Markey, Bill Seidell and Pat Deck, Alan Staubly and Frederico Sendel.

As usual, it has been announced that the winning team will represent the Middle Atlantic section in the national doubles championship, to be held at Longwood, Boston, the week of August 24.

Won Doubles Title In 1928.

Washington began to figure prominent in the Middle Atlantic doubles in 1928, when the then scratch team of Mangan and Considine wrested the title from Eddie Jacobs and Alphone Smith at Columbia Country Club in a match so close that it was decided by 6-4 in the fifth set. Eddie Jacobs and Billy Jacobs took the crown in 1929 at Baltimore, but last year Mangan and Considine returned to the competition and easily won the crown, at Congressional, beating Joe Rutley and Owen Howenstein in the final round, 6—0, 6—0, 6—3.

The Middle Atlantic section has been represented at the national doubles but once in the last three years. Last year Considine, with Dooly Mitchell substituting for Mangan, played at Longwood. The local pair were eliminated in the first round by Tilden and Hunter 6—1, 6—3, 6—4.

Entries for the Middle Atlantic joust should be sent to J. Bernard Robb, chairman of the tennis committee, Country Club of Virginia. Entry fee is $4.

BOTH SIDES OF THE SHIELD

A PREJUDICED PERSON SOMETIMES IS TOLD TO LOOK ON BOTH SIDES OF THE SHIELD. THIS COMES FROM A STORY OF TWO KNIGHTS APPROACHING A SHIELD FROM OPPOSITE DIRECTIONS. ONE SAID IT WAS SILVER, THE OTHER SAID IT WAS GOLD. THEY QUARRELED ABOUT IT AND CAME TO BLOWS. THEN A THIRD KNIGHT CAME ALONG, LOOKED AT BOTH SIDES OF THE SHIELD AND SHOWED THEM THAT ONE SIDE WAS SILVER AND THE OTHER SIDE GOLD.

WHY NOSES ARE "CONKS"

THE ROMANS CALLED A SPOUTING FOUNTAIN A CONCHA. OUR FATHERS HUMOROUSLY CORRUPTED THE WORD TO "CONK" AND USED IT TO DESCRIBE CERTAIN KINDS OF NOSES.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

THE CAUSE OF STAMMERING.

STUTTERING and stammering are in no way related to physical defects, peculiarities of the mouth, or any other parts of the speech organs. There is no tongue-tie, cleft, or anything else that is strenuously wrong. Furthermore, stammerers and stutterers use the speech organs, the vocal cords, palate, vault, tongue and lips just about as other people do.

The same statements hold true as to all other speech defects, with a few exceptions, and those are of secondary importance. For instance, the lispers use the tongue and lips slightly differently from the way others do, and some unusual voice placements result from faulty use of the muscles in the nasal vault region. The trouble with the stutterer and stammerer lies in the brain. His speech machinery is all right but the engineer who drives it gets mixed up somehow in the doing of his job.

Dr. C. S. Bluemel, long a recognized authority on the subject, says these speech defects result from what is called "speech block." The sufferer knows what he wants to say, but he has difficulty in sending the messages to the muscles which make the sounds required. Realizing that the speech wheels are not turning as they should the mind goes into what he calls a "tailspin," whereupon speech becomes most difficult and most unsatisfactory. In this designation Dr. Bluemel is taking an old idea and dressing it up into new words. His "speech block." The sufferer knows with which to designate what others call "a result of fear;" and his "tailspin" corresponds to what has been called "speech panic."

Dr. Bluemel trains stutterers and stammerers out of their speech difficulty by a method that he has described in a book entitled "Mental Aspects of Stammerers" (Williams & Wilkins, 1930). The method is essentially one of relaxation. He trains his pupils to discontinue physical trouble which they engage in when they speak.

First, there are lessons in relaxation. The pupil is taught to read with especial reference to the words, but with no muscle response on the part of the speech muscles. This he calls "mental speaking." The words are thought, and the speech organs are set for them, but no breath is driven through to make sounds. Not even whispering is done.

The next exercise is reading aloud in unison by a group. Next, the teacher and pupil read aloud together. If the pupil falters the teacher goes right on and carries across the bridge, the pupil dropping out and then putting in when the fault is passed. Next, the same method is followed with the group, the class associates bridging across the defect.

The aim is to train in relaxation, calm, courage and self-confidence.

CASTOR OIL BEANS.

E. G. L. writes: Please advise if the castor oil bean, taken from the seed pods of the castor oil plant, known by the botanical name of Ricimus communis is poisonous if eaten. Have been informed that last year several children died from having eaten the seed pods from such a plant.

REPLY.

Castor oil is made from this plant. The plant contains a poison. Some of the poison is present in castor oil.

STOCK PRICES LOSE IN SLUGGISH DEALING

Drop Is Fractional on Sales of 1,000,000 Shares; Debt Delays Blamed.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—The financial markets were inert and generally featureless today. Sluggishness on the stock exchange was due to the protracted delay in reaching an agreement on the debt question and share values fluctuated irregularly, although the close was lower and the undertone heavy.

The 1,000,000 share turnover in stocks was the smallest since June 17. After numerous losses of 2 to 4 points during the early trading, the market took courage from the continued optimism at Washington and regained much of the decline. However, prices sagged again in the last hour and the average net loss was slightly more than a point.

United States Steel, which closed last Friday at 105, was down 2¼ at its lowest and was never quite able to make up its decline. The last sale was at 103¾. American Telephone, after fully recovering a 3 point drop, closed 1⅞ lower and there were net declines of 1 to 2 in American Can, Bethlehem, Woolworth, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Sears Roebuck, Case, Consolidated Gas, International Telephone, Atchison, Southern Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio.

National Biscuits Break.

National Biscuit broke to a new low for the present shares, influenced by reports of smaller earnings. Alaska Juneau had poor support and rose 2 points. General Motors and Chrysler at one time showed small advances, closing about steady. Rails as a group were neglected. Coppers and oils eased a little.

Although Wall street had not abandoned hope for a settlement of the moratorium issue, it was somewhat concerned by the weakness of the German mark, and by the withdrawals at Berlin which that weakness reflected. Reports from Germany told of rather large losses in foreign exchange by the Reichsbank, thus adding to the problem of maintaining a gold ratio which last week was only a tenth of a per cent above the legal minimum.

The Reichsbank's decision to use the $50,000,000 credit, granted here seven years ago to the gold discount bank, indicates that the $100,000,000 aid extended recently by several central banks was well below the actual needs.

News Fails to Aid.

Domestic news of interest to the markets was sparse. Copper prices appear to be the subject of some uncertainty, while the oil situation was confused by the posting of Tower Southwestern quotations. Preliminary reports said that crude production in California declined moderately last week.

Heavy movements of the new crop were influential in sending wheat prices down and rallies from the lows were narrow. Closing quotations represented net losses of ¼ to 1¼. July corn advanced half a cent, but other months were fractionally lower, reflecting strength in the cash market and favorable weather. Cotton sympathized with stocks and lost $1 to $1.15 a bale.

Strength of Belgian, Swiss and Dutch exchanges was attributed to the withdrawal of funds from Germany, which amounted to about $14,000,000. The mark recovered somewhat toward the close and was moderately on the day. Sterling and the Canadian dollar were heavy.

Money markets here showed no effects of the holiday demand and accommodations could be had "outside" at 1 per cent. Demand for commercial paper was slightly more active.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—Lowest prices since 1896 today accompanied arrivals of newly harvested domestic winter wheat amounting to almost 10,000,000 bushels. Dearth of export demand for wheat from North America had a further bearish influence, and so too did fresh refusal by the Farm Board to change its sales policy in regard to Government financed wheat. Moratorium uncertainties and stock market weakness were additional bearish factors.

Wheat closed unsettled, ¼@1 cent lower, corn, ¾@⅞ off to ⅜ up; oats, ⅜@⅝ down, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents advance.

Acting as a cushion for the fall of wheat prices was announcement that despite big arrivals from the harvest fields the United States wheat visible supply had increased but 1,203,000 bushels in the last week.

Corn and oats were bearishly affected by fine weather. July corn was an exception, offerings being scarce. Provisions, although weak at times on account of lack of demand, rallied sharply when buying appeared.

Closing indemnities—Wheat, July 54⅝, 56¼; September, 55½, 58⅝, 56¾, 56⅞; December, 59⅞, 60, 61⅛, 61¼; Corn, July, 58¾, 60⅜; September, 54½, 54⅝, 55½; December, 48.

BOND PRICES CLOSE HIGHER ON LIGHT DAY

Market Is Dull With Sales of $8,332,000; Foreigns Gain Slightly.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—The bond market today was dull, but it afforded some interesting developments. Sales totaled $8,332,000 at par values on the stock exchange, the smallest aggregate for a full session since June 8, when the turnover was $8,206,000.

Fluctuations among corporate issues were irregularly higher; and, considering the restricted trading, many of them were sizable. Public utilities scored a number of gains, and a few of them touched new 1931 high levels or equaled their old ones.

German obligations were a center of interest. The 5½s and 7s of the national government receded on steady selling until late in the session, when they recovered sufficiently to close with fractional gains. A few other German issues behaved similarly, although many others closed lower. Deutsche Bank closed at a new low, at 94, after unusually heavy sales. This issue, which are the obligations of the largest bank in Germany, mature on September 1, 1932.

Among the utilities such issues as American Telephone debenture 5s of 1960 and of 1965, Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania, Series B, 5s; Consolidated Gas of New York 4½s and 5½s, Detroit Edison refunding 5s, Public Service Electric & Gas 4s of 1971, Philadelphia Co. 5s, and North American 5s of 1961 closed higher. An upward movement in these issues indicates simply the continuing preference for high-grade bonds.

The trend in railroads and industrials was less certain. St. Louis-San Francisco 4½s of 1978 and Series A 4s, St. Louis Southwestern consolidated 4s, Pittsburgh & West Virginia Series C 4½s, Missouri Pacific Series I 5s, Nickel Plate Series C 4½s, Rock Island refunding 4s, Chicago & Northwestern Series A 4¾s, and Canadian National 4½s of 1957 closed lower. A large number of rails moved in the opposite direction, but most of the more active issues showed declines.

The trading in industrials was quieter than in the rails, but the trend was similarly irregular.

Loans of the United States Government made mixed net changes, after selling off most of the time.

BANK DEPOSITS DROP IN VACATION PERIOD

June 30 Statements Show Cash $3,650,054 Less Than Previous Record.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Withdrawals to avoid the personal tax, and vacational withdrawals are believed to have sent total deposits in Washington banks on June 30, down to $278,327,970.95, or $3,650,054.99 below the all-time record high in local banking history, $281,978,025.94 on March 25, 1931. This was revealed by a call for statements of condition as of June 30, issued yesterday by Comptroller of the Currency John W. Pole.

That the thrift is persisting locally was also reflected in gains in deposits of 20 of the 22 savings banks, compared with the call of March 25, when nine of them showed decreases compared with the previous call of December 31.

The savings was the only one of the three divisions showing a net increase over the previous call total, the national bank and trust company divisions evidencing recessions in this comparison.

National Bank Deposits.

The total of national bank deposits on June 30, was $157,351,957.83, or $3,537,432.45 under that of March 25, last previous call date. Eight of the 12 national banks showed losses in the comparison. The total for the trust companies division was $77,704,605.35 and this was $1,916,539.88 behind its deposits as of March 25. Three of the five trust companies revealed declines in deposits from those of March 25. In the savings bank division, however, the deposit total of $43,271,407.77 represented an advance of $1,803,917.34 over the March 25 aggregate.

Bankers said yesterday that in spite of the approximately $4,000,000 comparative recession, within a few days all local banks will show deposits as great, perhaps greater, than the record-breaking total reflected by the March call. A complete tabulated chart of the returns is published in this issue.

Sales of Investors Syndicate certificates for the first six months of 1931 were within 2 per cent of the similar period of 1929, when a new all-time record in the 36-year history of the company was made, according to a statement yesterday by J. R. Ridgway, president of Investors Syndicate, at the company's annual sales convention in Minneapolis.

Turn for Better Seen.

"There is no question that fundamental conditions are definitely beginning to turn for the better," said Mr. Ridgway. "Signs of basic improvement have first been noted by our organization in the Northwestern and certain Southwestern States. Now the Eastern territory and the greater part of the balance of the country are beginning to follow."

Henry M. Littlefield, vice president of Rudolph Guenther-Russell Law, Inc., New York financial advertising agency, told 800 representatives and officials of Investors Syndicate that those firms which institute an aggressive sales and advertising policy now will reap the first and greatest rewards of the business revival just ahead.

"Our clients who carried on straight through the depression with a consistent advertising program felt the effects of the depression the least," said Mr. Littlefield.

"The fact that Investors Syndicate's 1930 sales were only 3 per cent under the record sales of 1929, and that current certificate sales are almost up to the 1929 figures, is a gratifying example of how depression conditions can be successfully overcome through courageous work by the sales force, supported by continued, systematic advertising in newspapers and magazines by the company.

"The revival of general business should get under way in full swing during the autumn months," Littlefield said in conclusion.

White to Head Alton If Merger Is Effected

Baltimore, July 6 (A.P.).—The Evening Sun says that R. B. White, president of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, is scheduled to become president of the Alton Railroad Co., if the purchase of the Chicago & Alton by the Baltimore & Ohio is approved. R. W. Brown, now vice president of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, is to succeed Mr. White, by the plans of the Baltimore & Ohio management, it was said.

The Alton Railroad Co. was formed by the Baltimore & Ohio to take over the Chicago & Alton. The application for approval of the purchase by the Baltimore & Ohio is now before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Chase National Receives Gold.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—The Chase National Bank of New York has received a shipment of $1,200,000 in gold from the Bank of the Nation of Buenos Aires, Argentina.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Cotton was generally lower today. After selling off to 10.25 early, October rallied to 10.36 on some covering and trade buying, but broke again, selling down to 10.18 late in the afternoon. There were partial rallies in the last few minutes, however, with October closing at 10.29 and with the general market closing very steady at net declines of 20 to 23 points.

The opening was barely steady 17 to 21 points lower under liquidation or reselling by buyers of last Friday who were disappointed by the news from the Paris debt holiday conferences. The selling was stimulated by reports of rains in the South over the holiday and relatively easy Liverpool cables. There was enough buying to cause some irregularity, but the market worked gradually off to net losses of about 24 to 26 points during the morning. Contracts then became comparatively scarce while it was said that early offerings had been absorbed by trade buying as well as covering and the market turned upward during the middle of the day on a continuation of this demand.

Rallies of some 8 to 11 points from the lowest, met a little more cotton, which seemed to be coming from commission houses, however, and after holding fairly steady during the greater part of the afternoon, prices weakened early in the last hour. There seemed to be some Liverpool selling as well as liquidation by early buyers on the break which carried prices off to 9.93 for July and 10.42 for December or about 24 to 33 points net lower. A sharp rally followed in the last few minutes, last prices showing recoveries of 9 to 11 points from the lowest on the more active positions.

The market was very quiet during the greater part of the day as if traders were awaiting further developments from Paris. Two more private crop reports were issued, one of them pointing to a reduction of 10.4 in acreage and a condition of 74.2 with a crop outlook of about 12,950,000 bales with average conditions henceforth. The other placed the reduction in acreage at 13.4 and the condition at 68.5. Exports today, 325; making 6,694,238 so far this season. Port receipts, 674. U. S. port stocks, 2,972,619.

Sugar Sales in Cuba Assure Fair Profits

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Some 157,000 tons of the 260,000 tons in sugar segregated by the National Sugar Exporting Corporation of Cuba and intended for sale this year already have been sold at a price in excess of the basis on which bonds of the exporting corporation were issued.

This was disclosed after a conference of members of the exporting corporation with Thomas L. Chadbourne and other interested parties here. Members of the corporation said there was every reason to believe that the portion of this sugar remaining unsold will be disposed of at a price which will more than take care of the principal and interest of the bonds issued against this year's quota of the segregation.

Curb Review

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—The curb market drifted irregularly lower today in the quietest trading in more than a fortnight.

Along with other financial markets, this market merely marked time pending conclusive developments in the intergovernmental debt situation. The day's turnover approximated 240,000 shares or 150,000 less than Friday.

Electric Bond & Share lost a point, while American Gas & Electric advanced fractionally. Foreign issues were adversely affected by the further dragging out of the debt negotiations. Brazilian Traction and Ford, Ltd., each lost ¾ of a point. Woolworth, Ltd., eased fractionally, then recovered, but trading in this issue was less active than last week.

Oils were dull and inclined to ease. Gulf was inactive, while Cities Service, Indiana and Vacuum yielded fractionally. Withdrawal of fixed crude purchasing prices by Gulf and Sinclair in east Texas caused a glimmering of hopes for firmer prices in the midcontinent in the near future. In the mining issues, United Verde pushed up a point in a large turnover, evidently reflecting pool activity.

Industrials in the main were neglected, and price tendencies mixed. Aluminum Co. lost 6 points. Fred T. Ley, which had last sold at 20, appeared at 10, reflecting omission of the dividend. Despite selling of farm implements on the big board, Deere was firm, finishing a fraction higher. Emerson's Bromo Seltzer B appeared at 25, up 5 from its last appearance. This advance, after a holiday weekend, gave board room wags an opportunity.

Firmness of Goldman Sachs and Shenandoah preferred marked the investment trusts, the latter gaining ¾ of a point.

Debt Delays Affect London Exchange Sales

London, July 6 (A.P.).—Delay in the debt negotiations at Paris left the stock exchange quiet this morning, with a slight easing of German and Austrian bonds and on the transatlantic favorites.

German 5½ bonds dropped 1½ and others eased fractions. Among the transatlantics, Tractions were ⅝ lower at 23⅝, hydroelectrics a quarter lower and British bonds, mining shares and oils merely maintained their positions.

Berlin Stock Prices Weather Debt Delay

Berlin, July 6 (A.P.).—For a time it looked like another black day on the stock exchange today, but the session ended less disastrously than had been feared because of a prevailing conviction that international credits shortly maturing would be extended.

Furthermore no drastic steps were announced to restrict domestic credits or to reduce the gold cover by the Reichsbank. Editorials in the financial newspapers contended that withdrawals of the French short term credits today had nothing to do with confidence or lack of it in Germany, but were inspired purely by political pressure in France. The Boersen Courier described it as "blackmailing tactics."

The use of loud and discordant horns or other noise devices on automobiles was banned by the Commissioners who issued a police regulation to cover the matter. Many complaints are said to have been received of horses being frightened by the loud "toot-toot" of some of the automobile horns.

ZOO CHIEF AWAITS GORILLA'S ARRIVAL

Monkey-Eating Eagle From Liberia One of Latest Acquisitions.

Dr. William M. Mann, director of the Smithsonian Zoological Park, yesterday said that Washington officials of the Smithsonian Institution had heard nothing definite as to whether they were to receive one of the mountain gorillas Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson brought to New York from the Belgian Congo last week.

The zoo director said that Johnson had promised to secure a specimen of the rare gorilla family that lives among mountain rocks more than in tree-tops, but said that he had heard nothing from the well-known naturalist since his return to this country.

"There's many a slip between Washington and New York," Dr. Mann remarked yesterday, "and we are making no preparations to care for the animal until we have him on hand."

Between visits of inspection to the different houses in the park containing the zoological collection, Dr. Mann took time out yesterday to show visitors one of the most interesting birds the zoo now boasts.

It is a monkey-eating eagle, and comes to Washington from its original home in Liberia via a dealer in Liverpol. It is a ferocious looking bird, with a ruff of feathers on the back of its head that it raises when disturbed.

Naturalists say the bird can handle monkeys weighing much more than itself, and one good look at its claws and beak convinces one that the statement could hardly be exaggerated. Now, instead of monkey flesh, however, the eagle is thriving well on horse meat.

Recent acquisitions at the zoo include several small fish from the Canal Zone, a coral snake from that place and several frogs and lizards. Dr. Mann expressed himself as gratified at cooperation he has had from other zoos and individuals in filling the new snake house with exhibits.

Unavoidable Accident, Verdict in Beard Death

The death of Carroll E. Beard, who died in Casualty Hospital several days after being injured in an auto accident on June 25, was due to an "avoidable accident," according to a coroner's jury which held an insuest in Marlboro last night.

Beard, manager of the Marlboro Hotel and brother of Sam Beard, was injured when the car in which he was riding blew out a tire and skidded into a tree near the Pennsylvania railroad crossing in Marlboro. Two other persons in the machine were hurt but left the hospital after a few days.

A special committee was named to plan the celebration on September 25, marking the 200th anniversary of the founding of Prince William County. It includes Lindsay Dawson, Hawes Davies, Mrs. Annie C. Cline, W. H. Lamb and Mr. Wharton.

SEWER ORDINANCE BATTLE IS PLANNED

Legal Action Looms in Event of Its Adoption in Alexandria.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

Many of the residents of the newly annexed territory, who will be affected by the passage of the proposed new sewer ordinance, requiring them to pay to the city a tax for the use of sewer connections, contemplate fighting the measure when it comes up for discussion Thursday afternoon. Legal action in event of adoption of the ordinance is contemplated in many cases.

The ordinance was placed on its first reading at last Thursday's meeting of the city council, and the property owners affected have been invited to attend the informal meeting of the council Thursday of this week, and be heard as to their views. The ordinance provides that they must pay to the city $1.20 a front foot where their homes are connected with privately owned sewers which discharge into a city sewer, or $2.20 a front foot for connection with a city-owned sewer. The council proposes to use the money collected to furnish sewerage for all time.

It is expected that those property owners who are able to do so will attend the council meeting, but many who would otherwise attend will be prevented, it is understood, on account of the difficulty in leaving their work.

Joseph M. Monroe, organist at St. Mary's Catholic Church, will, on a date in July to be set later, celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his becoming the organist of St. Mary's, during which time he has missed but one service, and that was on the occasion of the death of his wife last year.

The members of the congregation are planning a celebration, the nature of which has not yet been determined. Mr. Monroe is the only church organist in the city with such a record. His services as organist started in 1881, when he was but 18 years old.

For a period of 44 years his mother, the late Mrs. Kate Monroe, sang in the St. Mary's choir.

One of the biggest dockets on record in the police court here was handled yesterday by Judge William S. Snow, there being 64 cases which were finished, however, in an hour and a half. A large number of the cases were for disorderly conduct and fighting, in connection with a too bibulous celebration of the Fourth of July. These cases represented the harvest since Friday, there having been no session of court Saturday.

A colored man yesterday entered a lunchroom on North Rola street and eating a doughnut and drinking a cup of coffee, fell to the floor. He was taken to the Alexandria Hospital, but died fifteen minutes after arriving there.

The only identification mark was a pawn ticket bearing the name of Stephen Smith, which was found in his pocket. It is believed the man came here from Richmond.

Columbia Engine Company No. 4 has voted not to withdraw from the State Firemen's Association, but has not yet definitely decided whether the company will participate in the annual convention to be held in Winchester in August. There has been quite a controversy about the method proposed of awarding prizes at the convention to separate companies rather than departments as a whole, and the Alexandria firemen protested the action of the Winchester officials, without result.

The rescue squad of the Alexandria Fire Department made two runs yesterday, one of the home of Mose Harris, 315 North Payne street, who was taken to the Alexandria Hospital for an operation.

The second call was to 433 South Columbus street, where John Gilman, colored, was found to be suffering from an acute stomach disorder. He was also taken to the Alexandria Hospital for treatment.

400 Cases of Liquor Seized, 3 Men Arrested

Salisbury, Md., July 6 (A.P.).—A 75-foot boat, loaded with more than 400 cases of liquor and 98 barrels of malt, was seized and three men arrested by Coast Guardsmen near here last night. The craft is the Norma, of Baltimore.

FIREWORKS DISPLAY IS PLANNED TONIGHT

Takoma Park Firemen Will Stage Event if Weather Is Held Suitable.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post,
9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md.
Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

The weather man again disappointed the small citizens who are looking forward to the explosion of that supply of fireworks laid in by the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department to celebrate the Fourth of July. Rain caused postponement of the pyrotechnic display until last night, when the elements again conspired to cause a postponement.

The fireworks will be displayed on the Maryland school playground tonight, if the weather permits. The Herald and Review Band also will be present to pep up the ceremonies between blasts.

The Kensington Volunteer Fire Department also postponed its fireworks show from Saturday night to next Saturday night. It will hold its annual parade and hook-up contest Saturday afternoon, both of which were postponed from Saturday because of the inclement weather. The fireworks display will be in connection with the two days of carnival, Friday and Saturday, which have been decided upon because of the bad weather last week.

Officers were installed at a meeting of the Silver Spring Lions Club last night. Dr. Howell Forsyth, local druggist, was installed as president.

Other officers installed were the Rev. William R. Moody, first vice president; William H. Theis, second vice president; Beryl English, third vice president; W. Edwin Warfield, secretary; Raymond Johnson, treasurer; F. Joseph Weber, lion tamer; J. Oscar Foulk, tail twister; William E. Smith, James J. Hanan, Alfred T. Newbold and Albert O. Denham, directors.

Warner E. Pumphrey, Rockville undertaker, has been elected to membership in the club.

A special meeting of the Rockville Chamber of Commerce will be held tonight at the firehouse to discuss plans for the fifth annual outing of the chamber, which will be held July 16 at Chapel Point, Md.

Montgomery County Volunteer Firemen have their suitcases packed and are ready to start for the annual meeting of the Maryland State Firemen's Association which will open tomorrow at Ocean City, Md., for a three-day session. More than 2,000 volunteer firemen from Maryland, Virginia and Delaware will be in attendance.

One of the principal topics to be discussed will be the ambulance service which is now being given by many of the fire departments. Fire protection for rural communities, fire prevention, the establishment of a fire training college and other like subjects will be discussed. Red Cross representatives will be present to teach first aid, and fire chiefs from Washington, Baltimore and New York will be present to lecture on fire-fighting methods. Methods of combating forest fires, which cost the State $500,000 last year, will be discussed by the State Department of Forestry officials and the associations.

An extensive social program has been prepared and the three-day stay is expected to be one of joyous remembrance.

Suit for absolute divorce from Mrs. Maude J. Hall, of Washington, was filed yesterday in circuit court at Rockville by Dixon W. Hall, of Montgomery County, through Attorney Stedman Prescott, of Rockville. The petition alleges desertion. The couple was married March 4, 1922, and separated July 1, 1928. They have no children.

Instruction in the use of the new inhalator which has been purchased for the department through the offices of the Silver Spring Lions Club was given members of the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department last night by Dr. Gerald A. Scully, local physician. Dr. Scully is a member of the Lions Club and was actively interested in securing the apparatus for the firemen.

The apparatus was placed in service last night and space for it has been found on the No. 3 engine with other first-aid equipment.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

PSYCHOANALYZING THE CHILDREN

CASE NO. 1 (Willie D.)—Willie is seven years old. He is extremely discourteous to everybody and has even been known to kick his mother in the shins when rebuked for making chalk marks on the living room walls, dumping apple cores in the baby grand piano, trying to stab the goldfish with a pickle fork, &c. He is at his worst when company comes. He shouts "I want the white meat" at dinner and insists on being served before anybody else. After dinner he likes to sneak up behind the chairs of guests and thump the backs of their necks with his closed fist, at the same time crying "Ee-eeyah-h-h!"

Analysis:—These traits indicate that the little fellow is a profound thinker and has great emotional depths, but that he has what is known as a repression complex. He thinks he is being repressed constantly and is inclined to think strangers do not like him. Any attempts to discipline that brat should be avoided. They might change his whole nature and result in his growing up to become nothing more than a well-mannered gentleman and a pleasing companion. Proper development of his character depends on getting him a longer pickle fork, substituting a can of paint for his chalk and seating all guests in lower chairs where they can be the more easily smacked.

NO. 2 (Jeanette K.)—Jeanette likes to lean out of windows and call to people passing below. If they look up she sticks out her tongue at them and sometimes drops paper bags full of water. She never walks about the house but romps about in the manner of an athlete about to take an 8-foot hurdle. She has been in the first grade at school four successive years, refers to her teacher as "that old dumbbell," and refuses to concentrate on anything except the "funnies" in the tabloid newspapers. She greatly embarrasses her father by calling him "Old Popeyes." She likes to snip the wires when everybody is enjoying a radio concert, and the other day she was discovered sticking pins through the kitten's ears.

Analysis:—Jeanette must be nursed along very carefully. She has the makings of a great character. What she needs is kindness at all times. Her character development may be blighted by a cross word or a slight suggestion of disapproval. She evidently doesn't love her father and this raises the difficult question whether to shoot the old man or continue to tolerate him around the premises. Her aversion to an education is without special significance and it might hamper her development to insist that she learn something. Treat the imp gently at all times and allow her nature full play. It might be well to feed her raw liver now and then.

* * * *

THIRD CASE (Ignatz W.)—Ignatz is five years old and a terrible nuisance. He lacks all control and has no respect for his elders. Recently, when his mother was receiving a lady friend who was a pianist, Ignatz kept shouting "Go on and play sumpin for me. I wanna see if you're any good." When the somewhat shocked visitor had declined for about the fortieth time Ignatz went into the kitchen, got a jar of water and threw it in her face, exclaiming, "There! I guess you'll play for me the next time I ask you, you big gorilla!" When his mother threatened to chastise him he went at her with a bread knife.

Analysis: The case of Ignatz is frequently encountered. His instincts are too often misinterpreted. His behavior indicates great will power and a dominating personality. It approaches what is known as the Napoleonic complex. If not interfered with, he will probably develop into a man of tremendous powers. His nature is sufficiently sensitive, however, to be seriously injured by opposition or restraint. The incident of his throwing the water bucket at his mother's friend shows a resolute spirit and the ability to decide things quickly. Just let the darling oaf alone, speaking to him only in terms of endearment. He should go far and make the headlines in his adult years.

What a chilly stare Winnie Mae is going to get from the Spirit of St. Louis when they meet in the Smithsonian Institution!

What Mr. Hoover is giving Germany is free wheeling.

The value of the Post-Gatty flight may rest in showing to women fliers that it is possible to circle the globe and get home before the sink is full of unwashed dishes.

BLADENSBURG JAIL ESCAPE THWARTED

Police, Aroused When Lights Go Out, Find Window Bars Are Cut.

Delivery of prisoners from the Bladensburg Jail was frustrated early yesterday morning when county police and the jailer, George Wiseman, found four bars over a window cut through.

None of the prisoners in the lock-up had had a chance to make a getaway before the authorities found the cut bars. Driving by the jail, the officials grew suspicious when they saw that lights in the small stone structure had been turned out. They investigated and discovered the tampering.

All prisoners in the jail denied knowledge of the attempt, but police believe they know which is responsible. The file used was found in a sewer.

The jail, a one-room stone structure, has no jailer living in it, and it is easy for friends of prisoners to pass saws and files to them. Early this year, eleven prisoners escaped in five breaks within three months. Several weeks ago the jail was condemned by the county health officer, but it is being used until the new jail in the County Building in Hyattsville is ready.

The Forestvile Club, at Forestville, Md., was raided for the second time within ten days as Prince Georges County police finished their week-end drive on liquor resorts with three raids carried on simultaneously.

John Day, whose name is on the license of the club, was arrested and charged with maintaining a disorderly house and possession of beer. Police said they found 100 bottles of alleged beer in the place when they raided it. Two other persons, Nobbie Knockles and James Gaff, were arrested in the place and charged with disorderly conduct. Police said the pair became abusive while the raid was being conducted.

In a raid on the club June 28 police arrested Benjamin Morris for having a slot machine and possession. Morris, who is said to be a partner of Day, was fined $175 by Judge J. Chew Sheriff, but appealed.

Arrested by Federal agents Friday, on a liquor charge, Austin Jarboe was arrested in a raid by county police Sunday and charged with possession. The raiders, led by Sergt A. W. Hepburn, entered the second floor of an eating place at Silver Hill as a girl came out through the heavily barred door.

Sergt Hepburn said they found a complete bar with a barrel of beer on tap and a quart of whisky. The door was made of 6-inch timber, Sergt. Hepburn said, and was built so that it could not be battered in.

A third raid made at the same time as the two on another place in Silver Hill, resulted in finding only empty bottles.

Blowing the safe in the Sanitary Grocerry store on Baltimore boulevard at Arundel avenue, yeggs failed to find any money and threw provisions about the store, according to a report to county police yesterday. They did take a few cartons of cigarettes, however.

The thieves used gloves, according to Policeman Claude Reese, and left no fingerprints. They broke into the store through a rear door, he said. Three men who attempted to crack the safe in this store last spring were captured before they could make their escape and later sentenced to the penitentiary.

Maryland State Police have issued a warning to motorists that they will make a determined drive on the practice of speeding through small towns along the State roads. Policeman C. W. Cubbage netted 10 speeders the first day of the drive, which started Sunday, he reported yesterday.

The speed limit in towns is 20 to 25 miles an hour, and warning signs have been erected at the boundaries of all towns, the policemen say. In addition, the law provides that motorists must reduce speed when entering towns, even when no signs are to be seen. The speeding carries a penalty of from $1 to $100.

Alleging that he has been unable to obtain a refund due him from the Potomac Electric Power Co., E. W. Hobbs, of Seat Pleasant, has filed a complaint with the Maryland Public Service Commission.

Mr. Hobbs' complaint says in 1928 he paid for erection of six poles to bring electric service to his farm at Seventy-third street and Carmody road. Later the service was extended beyond his farm, the electric company using the same poles for other customers. He attempted to obtain from the company a refund of the cost of the poles, he says, but was told the refund could not be made until the customers on the extension had paid for their poles.

Mr. Hobbs says he does not understand why the other customers did not have to pay in advance, as he did, and why he has not gotten his refund.

Hubert Rasson, of Brentwood, was arrested yesterday on charges of assault and battery on his wife Pearl and is being held on bond of $200.

Officials of the University of Maryland are urging that the fight on the Mexican beetle be pressed, although damage from the insect was slight this year. They point out that if control measures are not taken, it may mean a heavy infestation during the remainder of the summer and fall.

Appointed by President Hoover to represent the United States at the annual meeting of the International Seed Congress in Holland, F. S. Holmes, of the University of Maryland, sailed Saturday from New York.

Mr. Holmes is inspector and analyst for the seed inspection service of the experiment station at the university. He is also president of the American Seed Analysts Association.

Rev. F. A. Symonds Gets Lynchburg Church Call

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., July 6.—First Presbyterian Church yesterday extended a call to Rev. F. A. Symonds, pastor First Presbyterian Church, Fayetteville, N. C.

The pastorate here has been vacant since the resignation of Dr. James D. Paxton, fourteen months ago, who had seerved nearly 26 years. Later Dr. Paxton was made pastor emeritus.
